Thousands swarm into Bonelli Park for opening

Thousands of persons took advantage last weekend of nearly $9 million worth of new recreational facilities which were dedicated at Bonelli Park in San Dimas last weekend.

The new additions to the 2,000 acre regional park included a golf course, an equestrian complex and a recreational vehicle camping ground.

The dedication and the mild weather attracted nearly 40,000 visitors to the park Saturday and Sunday. Those who attended the ceremonies heard Supervisor Peter Schabarum describe Bonelli Park as a recreation area that "takes a back seat to none in the state."

Schabarum was joined in dedication ceremonies by officials from cities throughout the First District, by members of the county Parks and Recreation Commission and the staff of the county recreation department.

The dedication of the reconstructed 18-hole Mountain Meadows golf course was academic, however, since the course itself will not be open for play until Aug. 9. Parks officials said more time was needed to allow the grass to strengthen.

But other facilities did open on schedule. They included the equestrian center comprising training rings, stables and horse renting concession, and a $6 million South Shore development, which houses the equestrian trails.

In addition to the trails, that development provides picnic areas, group camping areas, sailboat launching ramps, three fishing piers, boat rentals, expanded parking and a headquarters building.

The recreational vehicle camping grounds, built on three knolls overlooking the reservoir, was developed under a contract by the VJRS Industries. It provides 189 parking stalls, picnic areas, a general store, swimming pool and attendant facilities.

Schabarum said a three-year tree planting program has been launched by the county. He said more than 14,000 trees already have been planted under that program.

Parks officials said that with most of the summer still ahead they estimated weekend attendance of nearly 40,000 in July and August would continue.

6 die in Cal State Fullerton shooting

FULLERTON (AP) — Six persons were reported killed and three wounded after a man toting a .22-caliber rifle walked into a university library and opened fire, authorities said.

The man, whose identity was not immediately available, fled from the scene but was apprehended moments later at the nearby Hilton Inn, police said. The gunman's wife apparently is employed at the hotel, authorities said.

Authorities at California State University at Fullerton said the shooting took place in the basement of an instructional media library. The victims, whose identities were not immediately available, were apparently employees of the university.

There was no known motive for the killings.

2 men held in slaying of Mafia figures

DETROIT (AP) — Two men were in custody today following the Sunday night slayings of three reputed Detroit Mafia figures in the basement of the home of one victim.

Police say they are looking for a motive in the shooting deaths of Frank "Rah-Rah" Randazzo, 62, and Joseph Seregusa, 66, both of Detroit; and Nick Ditta, 69, of St. Clair Shores.

Police said they found the bodies of Randazzo and Seregusa in the basement of Randazzo's home on Detroit's east side. Both were shot in the chest.

Ditta, although wounded, managed to climb the basement stairs and call the emergency police number to report the shootings. He died a short time later at St. John's Hospital.

Police said the suspects were arrested when they went to a hospital in Madison Heights for treatment of minor stab wounds. Hospital officials called police.

KILLER LANDSLIDE

Side of a hill in Shimoda, Japan, covers railway tracks and houses after a landslide Sunday. Nine persons were reported killed, and about 30 homes destroyed.

Christians at gates of Tripoli

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Christians claimed today that their forces have overrun all Moslem strongholds in the Koura region of northern Lebanon and are "within grenade-throwing distance" of Tripoli, Lebanon's biggest Moslem city 60 miles north of Beirut.

A Palestinian communique reported that Syrian troops and tanks were "savagely shelling" the Nahr el Bared and Badawi refugee camps on the northern and eastern edges of Tripoli with artillery and rocket launchers.

The Palestinians also accused the Syrian army of attacking their forces and those of their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies in eastern and southern Lebanon as well as in the north.

Security and hospital sources estimated that more than 325 persons were killed in the past 36 hours on all fronts, raising the estimated toll for 15 months of civil war to more than 32,000 dead.

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, Prince Saud al-Faisal, arrived in Damascus with a representative of Yasir Arafat's Al Fatah Palestinian guerrillas, Hani Hassan. Also in the Syrian capital was a delegation representing all major Christian militias in the Lebanese war.

Arafat appealed Sunday to Egypt, Libya and Iraq for immediate troop reinforcements but got nothing.

The Moslems are "caught in the jaws of a nutcracker," the Palestinian leader said in a message to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. "There is deterioration, and the situation is worse than you think."

Glenn to open convention

NEW YORK (AP) — John Glenn, one of America's keynoters in space, opens the Democratic National Convention tonight as a senator from Ohio and a name on an exclusive list: one of those who might be chosen as Jimmy Carter's running mate.

It's been more than 14 years since Glenn took the 4-hour, 55 minute ride in a tiny capsule that pulled America even in the space race and made Glenn a national hero.

The passing years have been kind. Glenn, who was 40 when he became the first American to orbit the earth, still has the trim figure of an astronaut. His hair is a little thinner, but age hasn't slowed him down.

He's able to say now that he can go into a crowd and nobody asks him anymore if he drinks the orange-flavored beverage that astronauts took into space.

People began talking about Glenn running for office while he was still getting the tickertape treatment for the Feb. 20, 1962, flight.

As a senator, Glenn has concentrated on energy legislation. He has fought against removing federal controls from oil prices. He has been active in trying to strengthen government controls over handling of nuclear materials. He has been pushing for laws to increase incentives for home and factory improvements to save energy.

Those making up lists of potential vice presidential nominees to be considered by Carter consistently have included Glenn. Carter and his emissaries have talked with the senator.

Carter free of usual horsetrading in choice of VP running mate

NEW YORK (AP) — With Democrats displaying rare unity in the hours before tonight's opening session of their national convention, Jimmy Carter enjoyed the kind of political strength usually reserved for incumbent presidents and concentrated on avoiding divisive floor fights and on choosing a compatible running mate.

Needing no help to win the presidential nomination, Carter was free to ignore traditional convention horse trading in his search for a vice presidential nominee.

Carter interviewed Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and then praised the senator's youth and experience but gave no indication where he might rank among the seven men from among whom the former Georgia governor has said he would choose a running mate.

Also on Carter's schedule was an interview with Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois.

Carter already has talked with the other five prospects. He has said he doesn't expect to announce his choice until after the convention votes on the presidential nomination on Wednesday night.

The Democrats approached the start of their 37th national convention in an atmosphere of harmony that contrasted sharply with the bitterness and brawling that marked the 1968 and 1972 sessions. The Democratic unity also was in contrast to the down-the-wire battle between President Ford and Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, whose undeclared candidacy for the presidency was once considered a major potential obstacle to Carter, urged his state's delegation to back the former Georgia governor.

Humphrey also met with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, who remains a candidate for the presidential nomination while acknowledging that Carter is certain of a first ballot victory.

Asked if he would release his delegates, numbering a bit over 300, Brown said, "I will certainly not force them into not voting for me."

Asked if he were interested in the vice presidential nomination, Brown said, "You can squelch that one."

Brown and Humphrey told reporters after their meeting that they spent "only a little time" discussing convention politics.

Carter arrived at the convention with 19 primary victories to his credit and with an Associated Press delegate poll showing him with 1,653 votes, far more than the 1,505 required for the nomination.

Seldom in recent political history has a potential presidential nominee had so much freedom of choice.

"I've had a unique opportunity in not having to respond to the pressures of special interest groups," Carter said Sunday. He was speaking of issues, but the implication extended throughout his campaign.

"I've gone directly to the people because the powerful political figures didn't have any confidence that I might win," he said on a television panel show.

The vice presidential selection has emerged as the major unresolved issue at the convention in the absence of a race for the top of the ticket and the calm of a party platform so secure that it's already printed and bound and in the hands of each delegate.

Carter's personal public opinion pollster, Patrick Caddell, has concluded that no particular vice presidential prospect would ap-

Carter mobilizes army for convention war—what war?

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter is equipped for a small political war on the floor of the Democratic National Convention even though no one else has the votes to mount more than a skirmish.

The Carter campaign has spent a total of $350,000 on its convention operations, including those at Madison Square Garden where the votes are taken and at the Americana Hotel where Carter is staying, spokesman Peter Emerson said Sunday.

At the convention hall, Carter's forces have four trailers manned by 25 persons, 50 telephones and 44 floor workers, including 30 VIP floor leaders. These VIPs, empowered to speak for the Carter campaign and spotted around the convention floor, include Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, whom Carter bested in the presidential primaries, and Frank Mankiewicz, who was Sen. George McGovern's press secretary during the 1972 presidential campaign.

But the big artillery in the Carter arsenal is a private telephone system at the Garden. There are 20 green telephones in a network throughout the hall. Each is connected directly to a telephone in one of the Carter trailers a dozen yards off the convention floor.

At each state delegation there are red telephones to link the delegation chairman with the podium, and a white telephone which is part of a system set up by the Democratic National Committee to link all parts of the floor, key party officials, and candidate and ex-candidate headquarters inside Madison Square Garden.

The Carter people also have their own internal telephone system between their rooms at the Americana and their trailers at the Garden. And they have the ability to join their system to others for conference calls.

No other candidate has his own telephone system on the floor.

Carter's trailers are gathered, covered-wagon-style, to form an angular compound. Two are devoted to the delegate-management operation and are equipped with folding chairs and the green telephones. Another is for Carter's press operation and a fourth is an air-conditioned VIP lounge, with two love seats, an arm chair, and a bathroom. All the trailers have three televisions sets to monitor the three commercial networks at once.

Fifteen feet away is the lone trailer for California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., the holdout presidential aspirant. Other than Brown stickers on the windows and a flock of telephones gathering dust inside, the Brown trailer was deserted all day Sunday.

Carter's spokesmen admit there appears to be little need for all this paraphernalia, but they point out that it was designed in February, the month of the first primary when there were more Democratic presidential candidates and potential candidates than there are buttons on a Touch-tone phone.

Normally such a telephone set-up is used to keep a candidate's delegates in line and give them instructions about how he wishes them to vote on any platform, rules or credentials fights.

Rather than dismantle the system as Carter eliminated his opponents and with them most of the controversy in the party, his campaign decided to keep it to avoid surprises and help quell rumors. The Carter staff is convinced that the aisles, some only six feet wide, will be virtually impassable during convention sessions and they count on the telephones to stem waves of rumor that sweep such gatherings.

The other telephones on the convention floor are a key component of the Democratic National Committee's plan to end each session by midnight, so they can put their show on during prime television time.

Officials expect to contain blaze

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Officials expected to have full control by this morning of a blaze that blackened 5,000 acres of brush and timber and destroyed 10 structures in the San Bernardino Mountains.

The expected control time was set at 7 a.m., a California Division of Forestry spokesman said early today. He said the cause of the fire was still under investigation.

Three firemen reportedly received minor injuries during the three-day blaze and a fourth remained hospitalized in San Bernardino with a back injury he received Friday.

Cher gives birth to son—Elijah

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Cher Allman was resting comfortably at Cedars-Sinai Hospital today after giving birth to a healthy seven-pound, six-ounce boy.

The infant, Elijah Blue Allman, was born Saturday five hours after Cher entered the hospital.

A spokesman said Sunday Cher was "feeling well and doing fine." He said her husband, singer Greg Allman was with her during labor and delivery and visited with her Sunday.

Cher is expected to leave the hospital Tuesday or Wednesday, the spokesman said.

Sinatra weds in Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Ronald Reagan and Spiro Agnew were there. So were Kirk Douglas and Gregory Peck. Even Leo Durocher made a rare public appearance.

It was all for the wedding of Frank Sinatra. He was married Sunday to Barbara Marx, once the wife of Zeppo Marx.

The best man at the ceremony, held at the 1,000-acre desert estate of former U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain Walter Annenberg, was Freeman Gosden, 77, who played Amos in the old "Amos 'n Andy" radio show.

Beatrice Korshak, wife of Los Angeles attorney Sidney Korshak, was matron of honor. Sinatra had previously said that he and his wife would marry Oct. 10 in Beverly Hills.

Car theft ring bust in Mexico

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eleven persons have been arrested in connection with the theft of about 3,000 automobiles and pickup trucks in Southern California during the past two years.

Bill Robinson, spokesman for the San Diego Police Department, said Sunday the arrests were made by Mexican Police last week.

Robinson said the ring, believed to be one of the biggest vehicle theft rings ever broken in the area, operated marketing outlets in Mexico City and other metroplitan areas across the border. He said most of the vehicles, including about 2,000 late model pickups, had been reported missing from the Los Angeles area.

The suspects reportedly are from the San Diego and Tijuana areas.

FLOWER FOR PAT

Former President Richard Nixon, arriving at a Long Beach hospital Sunday with a gardenia for his wife, extends the flower for a reporter to smell. He said he picked it from a bush at his wife's bedroom window at their San Clemente home.

Pat's progress encouraging to Nixon family

LONG BEACH (AP) — The Nixon family's optimism is rising with reports that Pat Nixon is out of the critical stage in her recovery from a partially paralyzing stroke.

Former President Nixon said late Sunday as he left Long Beach Memorial Hospital that he was "encouraged" by his wife's progress.

Nixon and daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower left the hospital after spending more than four hours with Mrs. Nixon. It was the longest visit since she was hospitalized Thursday a day after she was stricken.

Earlier Sunday doctors announced that Mrs. Nixon was no longer in the critical stage, but warned the danger was not yet over.

"Due to the nature of the stroke, there is always a chance of a patient's condition suddenly deteriorating," said a hospital spokeswoman.

"Mrs. Nixon's blood pressure is responding to treatment and remains within normal imits," she said.

Dr. Jack M. Mosier, a neurologist treating the 64-year-old former first lady, said Sunday that it would be two to three months before doctors know if she has suffered any permanent damage.

He noted she was feeling more comfortable Sunday, although there was still weakness in her left side and some slurring of speech.

Sunday began with Mrs. Nixon moved from her windowless hospital room to one with a distant ocean view.

The room was the same one in which her husband was treated for phlebitis in 1974.

Told that his wife had been moved to his old room, Nixon said, "That room holds some rather unpleasant memories for me but in the end I finally was able to come out of it and so that perhaps perks up her spirit a little bit. It may be a lucky room.

"I think she is passing through the crisis... maybe has passed through it — time will tell — but most important now comes the long haul and that is a difficult time."

Nixon said his wife may require therapy for several months.

To cheer his wife, Nixon brought a special gift Sunday which he displayed for reporters. It was a waxy and fragrant gardenia — one plucked from the bush at his wife's bedroom window at their San Clemente estate.

Third Viking landing site found rough

PASADENA (AP)—Early photos show the third proposed Viking 1 landing site may be too rough for a safe touchdown, but scientists say later pictures and other analyses may yet uncover a smooth landing surface along the deeply-cratered "Western Front" of Mars.

A spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Sunday that preliminary pictures of the latest site revealed rough ground similar to the rugged terrain at two previously rejected landing sites.

But he emphasized that more photos and radar studies could reveal a safe spot.

Scientists said other new pictures obtained Sunday showed some sites in the previously uncharted region similar to the broad plains on the Moon that accomodated earlier spacecraft landings.

The new photographs show a surface of broad plains of hardened lava flows, called mare, like those on the Moon, as well as widely spaced craters.

"The plains are rather dull and very, very similar to the lunar mare. They cover the whole area," said Mike Carr, director of orbiting photography for the Viking mission.

Based on pictures disclosing a system of channels, scientists speculated that shallow currents of water once meandered across the area.

"I'm not disturbed by what we see in the eastern coverage," said Carr, referring to the eastern portion of the area scientists have named the West-Northwest region.

Dr. Harold Masursky, head of the Viking site certification team, said there was a chance that some of the sediment was smooth enough to support a landing.

NWLF bomb threats just a 'diversion'....

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New World Liberation Front's threat to bomb two Pacific Gas & Electric Co. sites was only a diversionary tactic, says a self-proclaimed spokeswoman.

The NWLF's warning that three bombs had been planted at two PG&E sites in the San Francisco area was part of "a war of nerves," Ande Lougher, 25, said Saturday just before the NWLF's midnight deadline passed without any reported bombings.

Miss Lougher of the People's Information Relay-1, an above-ground NWLF support group, said the diversion was created to allow "work on other projects."

She was subpoenaed Saturday night by FBI agents after she read the NWLF communique to a coffee house audience in the Haight-Ashbury district. She said she would honor the subpoena which ordered her to appear before a federal grand jury Wednesday to answer questions about the NWLF.

...then ka-boom!

ROSEVILLE (AP) — Police say an "explosive device" went off late Sunday night behind a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. office in Roseville, but damage was rated as light. No one was hurt.

Police said the blast occurred at 10:51 p.m. No one was in the office building. It was not announced whether any note was found, or any warning given beforehand. The FBI was called in immediately.

Office manager Fred White said, "Some kind of explosive device was placed...damage was to the back door and a little bit of the roof. It spread a little dust around inside the office. Not much damage."

The blast occurred a week after the terrorist New World Liberation Front issued a warning that three bombs were timed to explode by last Saturday at two PG&E sites in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Roseville is about 95 miles northeast of San Francisco and not considered to be in the Bay Area.

No Bay Area PG&E blasts were detonated. An NWLF source said over the weekend that the NWLF's threat to PG&E was a "diversion" to allow the terrorists to work on other unspecified "projects."

The threat of a week ago warned PG&E employes to stay away from work until after July 10 for their own safety.

Start of Harris trial may have slight delay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although opening statements and testimony are scheduled to begin today in the William and Emily Harris trial, there could be a last minute delay.

The defendants, one-time fugitive traveling companions of Patricia Hearst, want to revisit the scene of their alleged crimes before proceedings begin.

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler, who has scheduled a special early morning hearing on the matter indicated he would allow either the Harrises or their lawyers to take the requested trip to Mel's Sporting Goods store in Inglewood.

The visit would require at least a day delay in the trial.

The sheriff's department has discouraged the judge from allowing the Harrises themselves out of jail for the journey, insisting it would be a security risk.

The defense team says it needs to survey the store area, taking measurements of key points in order to present adequate evidence in the Harrises' behalf.

It was at Mel's on May 16, 1974, that Miss Hearst admittedly fired two machine guns, starting a chain of events which led to her indictment with the Harrises on charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault.

The newspaper heiress, awaiting sentencing on a San Francisco bank robbery conviction, is not standing trial with the Harrises, but her name is expected to arise frequently in their trial.

She has testified that she was the lone gunwoman who fired wildly from a waiting van to provide cover for the Harrises' getaway from a shoplifting.

The Harrises don't deny they were at the sporting goods store — nor do they deny most of the other events alleged in their 11-count indictment. But they say they committed no crimes.

They are charged with kidpnaping two men, stealing three vehicles, and committing six assaults with a deadly weapon.

Mrs. Harris, 29, who is acting as her own co-counsel, plans to join her attorney in delivering opening remarks to the jury. She has said she will testify in her own defense and it is likely that Harris, 31, also will take the stand.

Skeleton of 19th-century soldier found in Barstow

BARSTOW (AP) — Children playing in a backyard have discovered a skeleton authorities say is apparently that of a 19th century cavalry soldier.

San Bernardino County Museum officials said Sunday they believed the cavalryman died sometime between 1860 and 1880.

They reached that conclusion after examining square nails used in the crude wooden coffin, some wooden buttons and shreds of blue clothing.

Two boys playing in a backyard in this Mojave Desert community had found the skeleton lying in an open casket filled with sand.

The grave was only 16 to 18 inches deep, officials said, and the coffin was discovered as winds shifted the sand covering it.

Coroner's deputies said it was unlikely the remains will ever be identified.

Brown may enter name and then withdraw it

NEW YORK (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, the last remaining challenger to Jimmy Carter's claim on the Democratic presidential nomination, says he's staying in the race even though his defeat is virtually certain.

Arriving in New York with his home state delegation Sunday, Brown said his name will be entered for consideration when balloting for a nominee begins Wednesday night. But there were indications he would withdraw it before the roll call ends. And he left no doubt he would work to put Carter in the White House.

Some of Brown's supporters in the California delegation said they were ready to help nominate Carter and then work for his election.

"My name will be in nomination," Brown told reporters at John F. Kennedy Airport. "I don't think it's appropriate just to walk away because the process is rather inevitable.

"If you embark upon a campaign, people work very hard for you. Just to walk away from them isn't my idea of the Democratic party as I know it."

Brown, who now has 302 delegates according to The Associated Press' tally, did not say if he would leave his name in contention after the balloting begins. Carter now holds 1,653 delegate votes, more than the 1,505 he needs for the nomination.

But Brown supporters indicated he would withdraw his name at some point during the balloting.

Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., said before Brown arrived that the California governor would allow his name to be placed in nomination.

"But then I would not be surprised if he released all his delegates right afterward," the junior senator from Brown's home state said.

Others close to Brown indicated he might pull his name off the ballot before Carter reaches the magic 1,505 figure, perhaps throwing his votes to Carter and putting him over the majority mark.

Two boys held in thefts from Ontario crypts

Two Ontario teen-agers have been arrested in connection with the theft of 10 police badges and airman's wings from crypts at the Bellevue Mausoleum, 1240 W. G St.

Officers indicated an unidentified informant led them to the two boys, 13 and 14, in the theft which occurred last weekend.

Police had reported that thieves used a heavy tool to pry badges and wings of the policemen and airmen from their crypts. Value of the badges and wings was about $250, but sentimental value was much greater, officers said.

Two more teen-agers were being sought by officers who believe a total of four youths were involved in the theft.

Hit by bullets

A young Pomona man told police early Sunday that he was walking in the 1300 block of S. Gibbs Street when he was struck in a fusillade of shots fired from a passing car.

The victim, Steven M. Duenas, 18, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where it was determined that he had been hit twice in the lower left leg. Both bullets, believed to be .22-caliber, passed through the leg without striking the bone and duenas was released after treatment.

The victim said he was shot by a youth who leaned from the car, a white sedan, and fired approximately 10 rounds. Several of the bullets struck cars parked nearby.

Arby's robbed

A lone gunman vaulted the counter at Arby's Roast Beef restaurant at 1175 E. Holt Ave. and robbed the place late Sunday night, POMONA police reported.

Two employes, Priscilla Lee Hancock and Maureen Anna Mageean, were working when the man entered shortly before 10 o'clock. One was locked in a back room and the other was forced to lie on the floor when the robber prepared to flee.

He was white, about 35, 5 feet 6 weighing 145 pounds. He had dark-brown hair and wore a brown-and-yellow shortsleeved shirt, dark trousers and tennis shoes. He was armed with a nickel plated automatic.

Girl wins fight

A 16-year-old girl fought off a man who attempted to rape her in her Ontario home Saturday night.

The 16-year-old girl told officers that the man was waiting for her in the den when she returned home about 10 p.m. He scratched her arms and attempted to disrobe her, but she fought him off by kicking him, police added.

The man allegedly had taken a fur stole and television set from the bedroom prior to the attack. He had gained entry to the home through an unlocked window, police said.

Officers described the suspect as white, 6 feet 1, 190 pounds, wearing blue jeans and a t-shirt.

Demonstrators gather at Demo convention

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrats gathered here for their presidential nominating convention awaited messages today from groups as varied as Friends of the Earth and the Committee for Anti-Legal Tender.

The demonstration fare follows Sunday's march and rally against abortion that drew only a fraction of the 100,000 supporters police were told to expect.

Since demonstrations go hand in hand with political conventions, the 10,000-strong Right to Life throng shared the streets around Madison Square Garden with birth control and abortion advocates as well as gay activists.

In steamy summer weather, several hundred men and women marched under the banner of the New York State Coalition of Gay Organizations from Greenwich Village's Washington Square Park uptown to the national convention site.

"I'm ashamed, I'm appalled by my colleagues — Democrats and Conservatives — that they could ignore a constituency made up of 10 per cent of the population," state Human Rights Commissioner Werner Kramarsky said, referring to homosexuals.

Coalition spokesman Arthur Goodman said the march was to dramatize gay opposition to sodomy laws still on the books of many states. And one marcher, Doris Lunden, 40, of Manhattan, declared:

"I'm mad that there's no gay rights plank in the the Democratic platform. I'm mad about housing discrimination. I'm just mad."

Car rental firms OK price fix order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three largest passenger car rental companies in the nation have signed consent orders prohibiting them from trying to squeeze out competitors and fix prices among themselves, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC said today that Hertz Corp., Avis Rent-A-Car System, Inc., and National Car Rental System, Inc., have agreed to the consent orders.

The FTC has unanimously accepted the agreements signed by the rental firms, but could withdraw its approval later.

The consent order is the result of an FTC complaint filed more than a year ago, alleging that Hertz, Avis and National had conspired since at least 1968 to monopolize airport car rentals, forcing customers to pay inflated rates.

In its complaint, the FTC said the three companies held 96 per cent of the airport auto rental market in 1973.

Officials noted the consent order does not signify admission by the companies to any of the allegations.

Under the order, the FTC said all three companies will be prohibited from conspiring to monopolize any portion of the passenger automobile rental business or conspiring to fix or stabilize prices.

The firms also will be prohibited from obtaining agreements from airports that would hinder would-be competitors from locating on airport property and will be barred from providing false information to airport authorities in an effort to adversely affect competitors.

In its complaint, the FTC had accused the three firms of submitting common bid specifications and contracts for airport concessions, fixing prices, entering into anticompetitive agreements with auto makers for advertising subsidies and harassing small competitors.

Such action, the FTC complaint alleged, meant that customers were forced to pay "substantially higher prices," the supply of rental cars at airports was reduced, profits for the three firms were excessive and smaller companies were blocked from entering the airport rental car business.

Mexico condemns commando rescue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Mexico told the United Nations today that Israel's commando rescue of more than 100 hostages from Uganda a week ago creates "precedents of incalculable danger for all civilized coexistence."

In a letter to the president of the Security Council, Mexican Ambassador Roberto de Rosenzwig Diaz denounced the Israeli action as "a flagrant violation" of the U.N. Charter and "universally accepted principles of international law."

Mexico was subjected to a tourist boycott by American Jewish organizations last winter after voting for a U.N. General Assembly resolution equating Zionism, the movement for a Jewish national homeland, with racism.

The boycott was called off in March after Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa went to Israel to explain the vote and President Luis Echeverria invited a group of American Jewish leaders to Mexico to discuss the issue. Rabasa resigned during the controversy.

The Mexican Hotel Association estimated its members had 100,000 cancellations during the boycott and lost at least $9 million.

preciably help or hurt Carter's own chances of winning the fall election, campaign aides said.

Carter revealed Sunday that he is taking unprecedented steps to keep that sort of thing from happening to him. He said he has requested financial and medical information from everyone on his list of possible running mates.

The accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. was engaged to go over the financial data, including tax returns, Carter said, and "they have found nothing to cause me concern."

Carter said Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, one of the finalists, reported he suffers from a mild case of high blood pressure and takes medication for it.

Carter said this "is a factor but not an over-riding factor" in his decision. Later, after meeting with Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, Carter said Rodino's age, 67, also would be a factor but not an over-riding one.

Carter also has interviewed Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Sen. John Glenn of Ohio in his search for a ticket-mate. Church and Stevenson round out the seven finalists.

Since all seven are members of either the U.S. Senate or House, this might be seen as a concession to balance the ticket. Carter, a former governor but with no experience in federal government, campaigned in the primaries as a critic of the Washington bureaucracy.

Tonight's opening session of the convention was to be largely ceremonial, with keynote speeches by Glenn and Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas. Tuesday night, the platform will be presented by a procession of Democratic political stars including Muskie, Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Barring some unexpected development, Carter will be nominated on Wednesday and his running mate on Thursday, followed by Carter's acceptance speech.

Barbara Jordan keynote speaker

BARBARA JORDAN

NEW YORK (AP) — When Barbara Jordan speaks, her words flow in precise, measured tones far closer to the Queen's English than to the dialect of the dilapidated section of Houston where she was raised.

Miss Jordan, the first black woman elected to Congress from the South, says her speaking voice comes naturally to her, and she can remember using no other. In fact, her two sisters who are school teachers in Houston speak with the same accent.

The 40-year-old, second-term congresswoman from Houston is one of two keynote speakers tonight at the Democratic National Convention, sharing the duty with Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, the former astronaut.

Miss Jordan gained national attention two years ago with a speech during the House Judiciary Committee's debate on whether to impeach Richard M. Nixon.

In her deep, quiet but powerful tones, she discussed the meaning that the Constitution of the United States had for her and said, "I am not going to sit here and be an idle spectator to the diminution, the perversion and the subversion of the Constitution."

She recited a list of presidential actions she said represented "a course of conduct the Constitution cannot tolerate," and stated, "If these offenses are beyond the reach of the Constitution, then perhaps that 18th Century document should be abandoned to a 20th Century paper shredder."

Asked Sunday about whether she feels pressured to produce as memorable a keynote, she said, "Let it be understood that Barbara Jordan has no illusions that her keynote speech will be remembered any more than anyone else's."

Congresswoman Jordan has a reputation of maintaining a certain independence from the other black members in the House and the group of women in Congress, although she is considered strong on women's issues.

When the National Women's Political Caucus held a national convention in Houston several years ago, Miss Jordan had to be persuaded to talk even briefly to the group.

She also is known for her ability to gravitate toward the centers of power in Congress, and until recently she frequently sat in the House chamber near Rep. Wayne Hays, the Ohio Democrat who chaired the House Administration Committee.

One former Texas reporter who covered Miss Jordan when she was a member of the Texas Senate said that the congresswomen's occasional support for issues unpopular with fellow liberals shows "she is effective at getting elected to office.

"If she didn't support those things, she would be citizen Barbara Jordan, not Rep. Barbara Jordan."

Miss Jordan was graduated magna cum laude from all-black Texas Southern University in Houston. She received a law degree from Boston University.

After finishing law school, she worked for a judge in Houston, where her father was a Baptist minister and a warehouse clerk. She was the first black elected to the Texas Senate.

Ford staff shaken up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is making major changes in his big public relations staff a month before the Republican National Convention.

David Gergen, a veteran of the Nixon administration, is being made director of communications, replacing Margita White, who has been nominated for a place on the Federal Communications Commission.

For the moment, Ford is without a television adviser. Former CBS producer Robert Mead, who held that position since Ford took office, resigned during the weekend. Although Mead had been unhappy about his working arrangements at the White House for some time, the immediate cause of his departure was widespread criticism of the Public Broadcasting System's live television coverage of last week's White House state dinner for visiting Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain.

ARRIVES AT CITY HALL — Queen Elizabeth II, flanked by Mayor and Mrs. Kevin White, arrives at Boston City Hall for a luncheon. Behind the Queen some of the crowd demonstrated with placcards urging an end to British control over Northern Ireland. Police estimated the crowd at 100,000 in the City Hall Plaza. The British royal family visited Boston for the day.

Thousands cheer Queen in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The Founding Fathers would have been surprised but pleased, said Queen Elizabeth II, as she heard the cheers of thousands at the spot where colonists first read a Declaration of Independence from Britain.

They would have liked the idea, she said, "that eventually we came together again as free peoples and friends and defended together the very ideals for which the American Revolution was fought."

Her reception was certainly different from anything King George III would have received when Massachusetts was a rebellious colony.

Spectators lined the route of her motorcade tour, stood on rooftops and looked from windows to catch a glimpse of the only reigning monarch ever to visit this city.

Banners saying "Welcome Liz" were strung from apartment buildings and cyclists pedaled uriously to keep pace with the royal limousine.

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, stood and waved to a sea of well-wishers from the balcony of the Old State House, where the Declaration of Independence was read for the first time to the people of Boston.

"We could think of no one person who could do a Bicentennial greater honor by their presence than the queen," said Boston Mayor Kevin H. White as he welcomed her.

Queen Elizabeth began her visit in the company of the 200-year-old frigate USS Constitution. Old Ironsides sailed alongside as the royal yacht Britannia glided into Boston Harbor, where rebellious colonists dumped British tea into the water 200 years ago.

The queen toured the Constitution, and as she left, 16 crew members, resplendent in Navy uniforms of 1812, jumped into the lower rigging and gave three cheers.

Then the queen visited the Old North Church for a morning service.

The church is best known for its "One if by land, Two if by sea" lanterns that dispatched Paul Revere on his midnight ride to warn the colonists that British troops were coming.

The most colorful event of the day took place in front of historic Faneuil Hall, as military bands and nearly 100 militia companies, dressed in full revolutionary garb, paraded before the queen.

In this heavily Irish-American city, the only demonstration against the queen came near City Hall where a group of about 75 protestors carried signs calling for the removal of English influence from Northern Ireland.

Later, aboard the yacht, the queen knighted the man who had arranged her trip through the United States. It was apparently the first time knighthood has been bestowed in America.

John Moreton, British minister in the Washington embassy, became Sir John Moreton.

Miss Debra Gale Thompson of West Covina and Michael Dale England of Pomona were married in the First Baptist Church of Covina.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of West Covina and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William England of Pomona recited their vows in an evening, double-ring ceremony read by the Rev. Jack Loo.

MRS. MICHAEL ENGLAND

Honor attendant was Mrs. Nella Baker of Covina, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Jeanne Rough, Becky Bass and Debbie Prothero, all of West Covina, Mrs. Cindy Stapleton, La Verne, and Mrs. Margie Barber, San Dimas.

Standing as best man was Scott Jacobs of Isla Vista. Ushers were Patrick England, Pomona, Mark Stapleton, La Verne, Gordon Akers, San Diego, Rick Landorf, La Verne, and Dale Overholt, Pomona.

The flower girl was Michelle Baker, niece of the bride, and the ring bearer was Tyler Gabriel of Covina.

Following the rite, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. When the couple returns from a wedding trip to New York and the Virgin Islands, the newlyweds will make their home in Covina.

When buying sunglasses, make sure there are no bubbles or flaws. These will distort vision. Entirely plastic lenses and frames are the safest of all nonprescription glasses. They stand up to impact better.

Greener pastures

Americans haven't shed their pioneer spirit — they're still migrating to greener pastures. Commenting on the phenomenon, the July Reader's Digest says the trend today is away from urban locales to rural areas, chiefly the South and Southwest.

Joyce Brothers

Mom in school?

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband left me a short time ago and I'm finding it very tough trying to support my baby. My mother has offered to keep the baby during the day if I'll go back to school. This seems like a backward step and I wonder what effect it would have on my child. Since I don't have a decent job, I'm tempted. I can't afford a nursery school so I don't have much choice, unless I latch onto another man. — W.Y.

Dear W.Y.: You're fortunate to have a mother who can help you out. There are more than 9 million children living with only mothers. Many of these young women are finding it extremely difficult to enter the job market. Only about 15 per cent have some college education.

Your chances for getting a job are much better if you have training and skill. It seems to me you and your baby have everything to gain by your returning to school.

Even if you were financially able to leave your baby in a nursery school, it would be most unwise, unless your baby is at least three years old. I think most experts agree that a child is far better off being cared for at home until he is three. If you can attend school near your home, the chances are that you'd be able to see much more of your child than if you were working on a 9 to 5 job. The more time you can be with your baby during these years, the better it will be.

It would be unfair to any man, to you and to your child, to use the man only as a walking checkbook.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm in good health and in my early 40s but I have such a fear of dying that I find it hard to get to sleep. I know I probably won't die in my sleep and that my fear is irrational but it's a constant source of depression. This obsession started around my 40th birthday. Is this a normal part of growing older? Should I do something about it? I haven't even discussed it with my wife. — B.T.

Dear B.T.: Everyone fears death to some degree although a good many people deny or are not aware of their anxiety. What you describe is somewhat unusual, however, and I feel it's important for you to take some action.

There are courses in various colleges and churches to help people cope with this problem. There are also some good books on this subject and your clergyman or librarian may be able to suggest specific titles.

You might be interested to know that University of Iowa researchers interviewed 104 people who survived near-death situations and many described their emotional state as pleasurable. Twenty-three per cent even acknowledged joy.

You're going through a difficult period and may be suffering from what is called the male menopause. Often, the man who has thought of himself as successful during young adulthood becomes disenchanted with his work, his marriage and his life style. This is when he may begin to question the whole meaning of life, and may feel he's wasted much of it on superficial things. A fear of death may accompany this attitude.

To overcome what you call your obsession, it would be helpful to bring it out into the open and share it with others, especially with your wife. You may discover that she has similar feelings. Whether you're religious or not, if often helps to discuss death with those who have been close to the dying, such as priests, ministers or rabbis.

'Hollywood's Greatest Love Stories'

Grace takes a second chance

By Dick Kleiner

It was spring along the Mediterranean coast, a time for romance. But Albert Alexandre Louis Pierre Grimaldi, better known as Prince Rainier III, had only thoughts of bitterness that spring of 1955.

His advisers had recently put an abrupt ending to his romance with Giselle Pascal, a beautiful young French actress, because they had discovered that she was sterile. Of course, one of the functions of any princess would be to bear heirs to the throne.

At first Rainier had argued, but eventually his sense of duty triumphed. He was left alone and embittered.

In 1955, MGM was having trouble with one of its brighest new stars, the blonde society girl, Grace Kelly. The studio has cast her in a costume epic, Quentin Durward, and she had flatly said she wouldn't do it. So they had suspended her, and she had gone back to her apartment in New York, taking advantage of the time off to refurnish.

Meanwhile, the men who were running the Cannes Film Festival wanted a big Hollywood name for the festival and had wired MGM and asked if they could arrange for Grace Kelly to attend. She decided to go, mostly because she had nothing else to do at the moment.

The next day Pierre Gallant, editor of Paris-Match, told her he would like to do a pictorial layout with her. She agreed, and Gallant got permission from his friend the prince to lend his castle for the undertaking.

The date was arranged. Grace, the photographers and Gallant were all welcomed warmly at the castle by the prince, but he dind't linger to watch the pictures being taken.

It was an unromantic beginning to one of the great romances of the century. They didn't see each other again for eight months, but behind the scenes there was activity.

GRACE AND RAINIER

The chief manipulators were Rainier's American chaplain, Father Francis Tucker, and some friends of the Kelly family in Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Austin.

Father Tucker had become deeply concerned about the mental well-being of the prince. The American priest could see how Rainier, who had always been cheerful and lighthearted had turned bitter and morose.

Tucker started considering ways and means of bringing the prince and Grace Kelly together again. It was then that the Austins entered the picture.

That summer of 1955, the Austins were vacationing in Cannes and eager to attend the Red Cross Gala, but were unable to find any tickets. Austin wrote a letter to Prince Rainier, introducing himself as "a great friend of Grace Kelly," and asked if there were any way he could buy two tickets to the gala. The prince turned the letter over to Father Tucker.

Tucker got two tickets, drove to Cannes himself to deliver them, and began to pump the Austins politely. The Austins, recognizing a pumping when they saw one, put two and two together and came up with the wrong conclusion.

They leaped to the happy belief that Rainier had fallen in love with Grace during that one brief meeting and had sent his chaplain to learn what he could of the girl's family. The began telling everyone about the budding royal romance. Inevitably, their story reached the press.

Rumors of Rainier's supposed infatuation with Grace Kelly began apearing in print late that summer. Rainier read them and was astounded. Miss Kelly read them and was just as stunned.

During the autumn that year, Tucker suggested that the prince might like to visit Los Angeles. The subject of Grace Kelly was never mentioned, but it was obviously on Tucker's mind and possibly on Rainier's mind as well. A trip was arranged, and Look magazine asked if they might send a photographer along with the prince to cover the trip. Someone had suggested to Look that it would be a sensational idea if, when Rainier reached Hollywood, he was photographed with a major star. The perfect star would be Grace Kelly. The lady was amenable, but she felt the whole thing was very curious.

She called up Look's West Coast editor in Hollywood and cautioned him against the magazine making too much of the whole situation. She said it was all merely a coincidence, and that they shouldn't try to read anything into it.

She wasn't at the studio when Rainier and his party arrived because she wanted to get back home for Christmas. But the machinations continued behind the scenes.

When Grace got back to Philadelhia on Dec. 23, she learned that the family would be having their holiday dinner with the Austins, and Prince Rainier would be there, too. Her consternation was understandable. Someone, she felt, seemed bent on throwing them together.

But she went dutifully with her family on Christmas Day. Prince Rainier and Grace were seated next to each other at the festive table and she introduced him to American Christmas customs. They spent much of the next two days together.

On the following day, Father Tucker asked John Kelly, Grace's father, if he might talk to him. The priest told the Philadelhia businessman that he was speaking for the prince, and asking for his daughter's hand in marriage.

Kelly said that he could not speak for Grace, but that she seemed to be quite fond of the prince.

"Then you think she would accept?" Tucker pressed.

"No guarantees," said the pragmatic Kelly. "But I'd say it's a pretty good bet."

On that slender assurance, Rainier proposed the next day and Grace immediately accepted.

The news had already leaked out, because Rainier and Grace had appeared very romantic when they dined at the Stock Club in New York. It was made official with a joint announcement, issued simulataneously in Philadelphia and Monaco, on Jan. 5, 1956.

They shared a feeling that the time was ripe for both of them to marry. Rainier's spoiled romance with Giselle Pascal had left him alone, contemplating a middle age with no one to share his princely estate. Grace was 26 and most of her friends had long since married and become mothers. She had her career, her fame, her money — but no husband, and no children.

Perhaps most important, they shared the same goals in life. They wanted a marriage that would last. He had that desire because he was a prince and even though his own parents had divorced, a divorce in princely circles was considered undesirable. For her, religious considerations made a solid marriage a necessity. Reared Roman Catholic she was particularly devout young woman and believed in the sanctity of marriage.

Olympics go on without Taiwan

IOC bows to Canada

MONTREAL (AP) — The Olympic Games go on in Montreal, but the hopes of the Taiwanese and the spirit of the Olympic movement lie buried beneath a million bushels of Canadian wheat.

Canada's vast overseas trading interests are the underlying factor behind one of the worst crises in Olympic history.

The International Olympic Committee bowed on Sunday to the Canadian government which, under pressure from Peking, refused to allow Taiwan's athletes into the country because they would not change their official name or their flag.

It is the first time since the Games began in 1896 that a host country has shut out athletes recognized by the IOC. Unless there is a last-minute change of heart, the Taiwanese will be missing from Saturday's opening ceremony.

Behind Canada's decision, which was sprung on the IOC only six weeks ago, is its wheat exporting deal with Communist China, its biggest overseas trading partner. Selling wheat to Peking has brought new prosperity to farmers in Western Canada.

Communist China applied last year for Olympic recognition, but with the qualification that Taiwan be kicked out of the Games. The IOC took no immediate action. Peking then made a direct approach to Canada and demanded that Taiwanese athletes be shut out during the Olympids.

The Canadians met them halfway and said the Taiwanese would be allowed in only if they dropped the name of the Republic of China—the name by which their national Olympic committee is recognized by the IOC. The Taiwanese refused.

The IOC, which prides itself on being above politics and dealing only with sport, pleaded with Canada to honor the Olympic charter and grant free entry to the Taiwanese.

But Sunday night, Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, admitted he had failed. The Canadians refused to move one inch.

The IOC Executive Board suggested to the Taiwanese that for the sake of the Olympics and the 4,000 athletes expected here, they march in the opening parade behind the Olympic flag and a plaque bearing the name of the IOC. The Taiwanese rejected the idea and said they would pull out of the Olympics if they were forced into such conditions.

Killanin, announcing the loss of the battle, accused the Canadians at a news conference of a breach of faith. He said they gave a written pledge six years ago that all sportsmen recognized by the IOC would be allowed in the Olympics without visas and raised no objection even last year when the subject of Taiwan was raised in conversation.

Killanin told a news conference: "The whole world is absolutely fed up with politicians interfering with sport."

For once the press laid down pencils and notebooks and applauded.

Montreal has survived as host city for the 1976 Olympics by the skin of its teeth. Some 18 months ago when Montreal was lagging behind schedule with the building of its stadium and the budget was getting out of hand, Killanin and his vice presidents seriously considered switching the Games to another country.

Killanin said if he had known then what would happen over Taiwan, he would have moved the Games.

"Taking into account the state of construction in Montreal, I could certainly have recommended moving the Games elsewhere," he said.

The main body of Taiwan's athletes are in the United States. They failed to get further. They were sacrificed to Canada's political needs because, Killanin said, thousands of athletes from all over the world would have suffered if the Olympics were canceled.

Now the IOC faces a new political threat—from the African countries which may demand an Olympic ban on New Zealand because a New Zealand rugby team is touring segregationist South Africa.

Olympic delegates are waiting to see how Abraham Ordia, president of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa, will act. He led the campaign which led to Rhodesia being shut out of the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

Two African countries, Tanzania and Mauritius have already announced they are pulling out of the Games because of the New Zealand issue.

American reaction to the IOC's capitulation was predictable. "This is the beginning of the fall of the Olympic games," said Doug Roby of Detroit, long-time member of the IOC. "It is not just this issue but I see politics peeking in from several other windows. There is Tanzania's pullout because of the New Zealand matter. The Middle East is in turmoil.

"The situation becomes even more precarious when you consider that Moscow is scheduled to host the 1980 Games. I am deeply disappointed. We caved in to Canada. I think we should have stood up to them."

Philip Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and also a member of the IOC, called Sunday's action "pitiful" and added:

"This blatant and unwarranted action casts aside all of the Olympic principles and the code under which we are pledged to hold the Games. We have turned the Olympic Games into a competition between nations. Political power determines who can compete instead of a world competition as demonstrated by the skills of friendly nations."

Dodgers rally over Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Had Don Sutton known he would be pitching for the Los Angeles Dodgers in their game Sunday with the St. Louis Cardinals, his pregame activities would have been considerably different.

But after all, Burt Hooton had the starting call and Sutton, a member of the starting rotation, had not appeared in relief in about five years.

So before the game, played in near-100-degree temperatures, Sutton ran 2½ miles in the outfield and then rollicked with some teammates in a game of "slip-and-slide" on the artificial playing surface, which had been wetted down to cool it off.

The tiring effects of the unusual warmup by the 31-year-old veteran failed to show when he was called into action in the seventh inning. He held the Cardinals to one hit, a pinch home run by Bake McBride, and was credited with a victory as the Dodgers rallied for a 9-6 triumph.

Sutton was one of six starting pitchers who saw action for both teams in the free-scoring game which the Dodgers won by scoring seven times in the seventh inning.

After returning to the dugout from the slip-and-slide game, Sutton said, Manager Walter Alston informed him that an appearance was possible.

"Walt asked me, 'How would you feel about pitching today?' I said, OK skip. What could you say?" Sutton related.

Alston, who had relieved Hooton with another starter, Doug Rau, before bringing on Sutton, based his decision on the heat and the coming All-Star break.

"Sutton had three full days of rest and Rau was ready," Alston said. "With the heat, I didn't expect anyone to go nine. With the long All-Star break coming up, I thought it would be to his (Sutton's) benefit to stay in tune by going three."

The big blow in the Dodgers' seventh was a three-run homer by Reggie Smith, traded to the Dodgers by the Cardinals earlier this season.

Smith, who said he has "a lot of fond memories" of his playing days at Busch Stadium, didn't let sentimentality stand in the way of performance. He also hit home runs in each of the other two games of the series.

Showdown looms in Cinema 'Cap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Fifth Marine, winner of the recent $132,400 American Derby at Chicago, and Majestic Light, hero of the $165,450 Swaps Stakes here, head the probable line-up as 3-year-olds take center stage at Hollywood Park next Sunday. The setting, the $100,000-added Cinema Handicap at 1⅛ miles, could be a rematch of the Chicago Derby when Fifth Marine defeated Majestic Light. Santa Anita Derby winner An Act, consistent Double Discount and other sophomores are slated to compete.

The past weekend opened with a mild upset as Home Jerome won the $44,050 Lakes and Flowers Hanidcap and returned $11.20. As the second betting choice, Home Jermone beat favored Shirley's Champion by 2 lengths.

The next upset came in Sunday's $112,200 Vanity Hanidcap for mares and fillies. Miss Toshiba was the winner as the third fancy of a crowd of 37,630, with the big surprise being the fifth place finish of 3-1 favorite, Dahlia, the million-dollar mare.

Bastonera 11, the second betting favorite was second, a head back of the winning 4-year-old Miss Toshiba.

Miss Toshiba and Bastonera 11 each carried 120 pounds, Dahlia was high weight at 127 and has yet to win a race on a main dirt course. Her winnings of $1,540,639 have all been earned on grass tracks in Europe and the U.S.

"No real excuses — she just didn't fire," said jockey Bill Shoemaker of Dahlia.

Shoemaker at one stage got up to fourth, fell back to seventh and came on again to finish fifth in the field of 11.

Miss Toshiba is owned by Robert Sangster and trained by Tom Pratt, who said the biggest problem was whether to run the filly on the dirt for the first time in her career.

"After he win in the Wilshire, I talked it over with Fernando Toro and we decided it would be best to keep her on the grass. But since she had done almost all of her training on the dirt, I gave it added consideration. Then I looked at the nominations and thought about the $100,000 and decided to try it," Pratt said.

HARPER RESTRAINED

Baltimore's Tommy Harper is collared by Orioles' manager Earl Weaver (center) and coach Jim Frey Sunday after umpire Alan Clark (far right) called Harper out on a Nolan Ryan pickoff attempt in the eighth inning. Harper was ejected from game but Birds went on to win,

Birds sweep Angels

ANAHEIM (AP) — Three months ago, California manager Dick Williams felt it wasn't unreasonable to expect his team to finish in the first division in the American League West.

Now at the All-Star break and 52 losses in 87 games later, it is unreasonable.

"But," the Angel skipper reflected, "there's no reason why we can't finish ahead of Minnesota and Chicago. I'd say we're on a par with them."

However, the Angels don't appear to be on a par with the Baltimore Orioles.

The Birds, behind the pitching of Dave Pagan and Tippy Martinez and the home run bat of Reggie Jackson, dealt the Angels a 3-1 loss Sunday and sent Nolan Ryan reeling to his 10th loss, despite a 12-strikeout, five-walk performance.

It was the fourth straight win for the Orioles and their sixth in a row over California as they completed a sweep of the three-game series.

Following the All-Star break, the same two teams renew acquaintances Thursday night in BAltimore in the opener of a four-game set.

"I feel sorry for our pitchers," said Williams. "I've felt sorry all year and today I felt sorry for Nolan Ryan."

Jackson slugged his ninth homer following a Tim Nordbrook single in the first inning and it was enough to give Pagan his second victory of the year in his first starting assignment for the Birds since coming over from the New York Yankees in a 10-player deal June 15.

"You have to be on your toes against Ryan or you'll end up a statistic....a strikeout statistic." Jackson smiled. "I've paid my dues for that homer. I can remember striking out two and three times a game against Ryan."

Ryan's 12 strikeouts boosted his major league-leading total to 166 and it marked the sixth time this season and the 77th in his career that the flame-throwing veteran has fanned 10 or more in a game.

After Jackson propelled Baltimore into a quick 2-0 lead in the first, the Angels battled back for a run as Mario Guerrero singled. Dan Briggs doubled and Bobby Bonds lofted a sacrifice fly.

The Orioles added an insurance run in the eighth when Ken Singleton doubled to center and scored on a single by Terry Crowley.

Baltimore managed nine hits off Ryan with Nordbrook the only player to collect more than one. He had a pair of singles.

Dan Briggs doubled twice for the Angels.

ANGEL ANGLES — The Angels and Orioles go at it again Thursday night when they open a four-game series in Baltimore.

Relief pitcher John Verhoeven, the former La Verne College star, didn't see any action after his successful major league debut against the Indians last Tuesday. Verhoeven and his wife, Kathy, moved into a new home in Anaheim Saturday.

Williams said second baseman Jerry Remy, who has been sidelined with an injury, will probably be ready in Baltimore. He has been out about 15 days.

McCulloch signs Rams' contract

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Rams coach Chuck Knox has welcomed 20 veterans and 42 rookies to the opening of the club's summer training camp.

The 62 players were the first of 96 rostered players to report Sunday to the Rams' camp at California State University at Fullerton. Knox expects the remaining veterans to be on hand by Thursday.

The coach had dinner with the team Sunday evening and then spent several hours in meetings. The defending NFL Western Division champions are expected to begin twice daily workouts today.

The Rams signed six free agents, including former Long Beach prep and Southern Cal star Earl McCulloch. McCulloch, a wide receiver, was Rookie of the Year in the NFL while with the Detroit Lions and played six seasons with the Lions and New Orleans Saints before moving to the Portland Storm of the WFL last year.

The 30-year-old veteran has caught 124 passes for 2,319 yards and 19 touchdowns in his pro career.

Other free agents signed include offensive tackle Gene Ferguson of Norfolk State, guard Myke Horton of UCLA, linebacker Ron Davis of Boise State, tight end Phil Rowblicky of Oregon and offensive tackle Melvin Crenshaw of Nebraska.

The Rams also announced the addition of placekicker John Delaney from Nichols College, who was picked up in the supplemental draft.

Defensive lineman Ken Bordelon was sent to the Saints for an undisclosed draft choice. Bordelon was a fifth round draft choice from LSU.

The club waived Alvin White, who was claimed by New Orleans.

All-Star Game gets Mark Fidrych show

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If ABC, televising the All-Star game, ever wants to add some zing to the coverage, it could hang a microphone around the neck of young Mark Fidrych and tune in on the rookie pitcher's conversation with the baseball.

Fidrych, 9-2 with Detroit, will open for the American League in Tuesday night's 47th clash with the two leagues. He'll be opposed at the start by San Diego's sensational Randy Jones, who reached the All-Star break with a National League record 16 victories and only three losses.

Jones is just 26, but he's been around. He lost 22 games two years go, but turned that around by winning 20 last season. The fans are fimilar with the frizzy-haired left-hander.

But Fidrych is a new act. A 21-year-old right-hander, he has captivated Detroit fans with his exuberance. When he works, he thinks nothing of going down on all fours to smooth out the pitcher's mound to his specifications. He cheers for his fielders and perhaps most important are his exortations to the baseball.

Before he delivers the pitch, Fidrych discusses direction and location with the baseball. No one except the Tiger rookie knows if the ball answers him.

Can the expected capacity crowd of 61,000, including President Ford, expect the usual antics from the rookie who is nicknamed "The Bird"?

"I hope I won't change," he said. "It'll be the same game."

Fidrych will be only the second rookie pitcher to start an All-Star Game. The only other one was Dave Stenhouse of the Washington Senators, who pitched the first two innings in what developed into a 9-4 AL victory in 1962.

Those were the days when the Americans still held the upper hand in All-Star competition. Since that 1962 victory, the AL has won only once while the Nationals have taken a dozen games for an over-all 27-18-1 edge in the series.

Fidrych, a cool customer, says he feels no pressure about starting the big game.

"What kind of pressure can there be,?" he said. "It'll be just the same kind of nervousness as before any game."

Maybe Mark won't be nervous but you could bet some AL officials will be. Recent NL domination of the All-Star series has been a growing source of embarrassement for the Americans.

"I am sick and tired of the National League beating us," said AL Manager Derrell Johnson. "We'll use the best players who give us the chance to win. I think we have the pitchers who can do the job they're suppose to do—beat the other league."

Johnson's roster included one last minute change. Oakland second baseman Phil Garner was added to the AL squad to replace rookie Willie Randolph of the New York Yankees, who is nursing an injured knee.

Randolph will be on hand for a pre-game bow, but another casuality, Atlanta pitcher Andy Messersmith, won't be. Messersmith, who was selected for the National League's squad by Manager Sparky Anderson begged off with a hamstring injury and was replaced by teammate Dick Ruthven. But the injured Braves' ace was well enough to pitch eight innings Saturday night against the New York Mets.

While both teams were scheduled to take a pre-game look at Veterans Stadium in brief workouts today, Marvin Miller, executive director for the Players Association, had a closed-door conference with all of the player representatives to discuss the status of contract negotiations. There are still some 40 major leaguers who have not signed 1976 contracts and unless some settlement is reached, they will be free agents in October under terms of an arbitrator's decision and two Federal Court rulings.

Sandra Palmer sets up Open showdown

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sandra Palmer sounded more like a loser than a contender after she rolled in the five-foot putt that sent her into today's 18-hole playoff with JoAnne Carner for the 1976 U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

"I played poorly ... I putted poorly . . . It was pretty sad, really," said the little Texan.

The 35-year-old Miss Palmer dropped a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole to tie Mrs. Carner. She needed a par on the 18th to set up a playoff, a birdie to win.

Mrs. Carner, winner of the Open in 1971, stood at the 18th green and watched as Miss Palmer hit her third shot on the par-five hole 40 feet past the pin. The first putt was five feet short.

"When she hit her first putt and lined up her second and shook her head, I knew she was going to knock it in," Mrs. Carner said later.

While Mrs. Carner and Miss Palmer were at the top, a disappointed Jane Blalock finished third, four strokes off the pace.

The 30-yearold Miss Blalock was tied for the lead on the back nine of the final round Sunday, but she double-bogeyed the 16th to fall out of contention. She finished 75-72-73-76—296.

Mrs. Carner, longest hitter among woman golfers, appeared to have won her second Open when she holed a fourfoot birdie putt on the par-five 17th. But Miss Palmer, the defending champion, refused to quit.

She demonstrated that indominatable spirit that prompted her to comment earlier in the week, "If I were tall, I'll bet I'd be the best player in the world forever."

Miss Palmer, of course, isn't tall. She's 5 foot-1, the smallest player on the pro tour. She makes up with style and heart the yardage she has to concede to other golfers.

The two finalists, a study in contrast when they stand next to each other, completed the 72 holes at Rolling Green Golf Club with eight-over-par 292s to produce the fourth playoff in the tournament's history.

The other playoffs were in 1953, when Betsy Rawls beat Jacqueline Pung; 1956 with Kathy Cornelius topping Barbara McIntire, and 1964, Mickey Wright over Ruth Jessen.

This is the second playoff this year for the two women. Mrs. Carner and Miss Palmer met in a sudden death playoff at St. Petersburg, Fla., this year and Mrs. Carner won on the fourth extra hole.

Susie McAllister, a pro from Beaumont, Tex., shot a final three over par 74, and wound up fourth at 297. Then came Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., who shot the best final round Sunday, 72, and tied for fifth with Amy Alcott at 299.

Mary Beth King of Bernville, Pa., the top amateur, tied for eighth.

Mrs. Carner, who won five U.S. Amateur titles before turning pro in 1970, said the greens were slow Sunday, and she complained that the pin placement on the last hole was the hardest of the entire week.

"The rough was wet and heavy," said Mrs. Carner of Lake Wales, Fla., referring to the early morning rain that delayed the start of the final round several hours. "I just about broke my neck trying to get out of it (the rough)."

Miss Palmer, who started the last round two strokes in front of Miss Palmer, lamented her first nine holes. She bogeyed four of the first five and the eighth, had one birdie and made the turn two down.

"I was discouraged on the front nine," she said. "I thought I was out of it. I told myself, 'Be patient, maybe things will happen and I'll birdie a hole.'"

Miss Palmer said she used the wrong club at 18, on her shot to the green. She used an eight iron and choked up on the club. The ball hit the back part of the green. She had a tough putt on the slick surface.

"I think I had by eyes closed when I stroked the ball," she said. "I kept my head down."

She didn't have to look. The roar of the crowd said it all.

Mrs. Carner rolled in her birdie putt at 17, and Miss Palmer, playing a twosome behind, holed a 20-foot to match that. Both got par at 18, and turned to thoughts of Monday.

Miss Palmer, left with a significant remark: "She (Mrs. Carner) owes me one," referring to the playoff she lost to Mrs. Carner last February.

Mrs. Carner just smiled. It was a smile of confidence.

The winner today earns $9,000. But the money really is insignificant when compared to the prestige at stake for winning the premier tournament on the women's tour.

Judy Rankin, the LPGA's top money winner, finished tied for 14th place, but she earned $1,229, enough to boost her year's earnings to $100,614 and make her the first woman in golf history to earn $100,000 in a single season.

Sports briefs

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets and Golden State Warriors, pro basketball's winningest teams this past season, will meet in a pair of pre-season games in October, Nuggets president-general manager Carl Scheer announced.

The first game of the series will be in Oakland Oct. 9, with the teams playing in Denver Oct. 19.

The teams split a pair of exhibitions last season, with the Nuggets winning 111-107 at Oakland, and the Warriors taking a 115-110 decision at Denver.

Golden State finished with a 59-23 record last season, while Denver was 60-24. Both, however, were eliminated in the playoffs.

SAN JOSE (AP) — Paul Colwell and Don Johnson rolled past three teams Sunday to take top money in the $70,000 Professional Bowlers Association Doubles Classic.

Colwell, Tuscon, Ariz., and Johnson, Las Vegas, Nev., defeated top seeds Steve Neff and Eddie Ressler 447-414 in the championship match to claim the $10,000 first prize in the PBA's first doubles championship.

In the first game of the nationally televised four-team showdown, Johnson and Colwell beat Mike Matosich and Tom Wright 461-393. They followed that with a tight 430-414 victory over Ed DiTolla and Craig Mueller to win a berth in the finals.

Johnson praised the teamwork which brought him and Colwell to the top. "I carried us all week," he joked after the match, "and Paul carried us today."

Johnson's win moved him into a tie with Dick Weber for first on the all-time PBA list with 25, only a week after Earl Anthony tied Johnson for second with 24. The victory was number eight in Colwell's career — and his second in three weeks.

Neff and Ressler split $6,400 for second, DiTolla and Mueller received $5,000 for third and Matosich and Wright divided $4,000 for their fourth place finish.

Next stop on the PBA tour is Tuscon, Ariz. for a $60,000 tournament which begins Saturday.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harry Wendelstedt, a 10-year National League umpire, will call balls and strikes Tuesday night in the All-Star game, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Sunday.

Joining Wendestedt, who will be appearing in his second All-Star game, will be Jerry Neudecker, American League, first base; Andy Olsen, NL, second base; Don Denkinger, AL, third base; Dave Davidson, NL, left field foul line, and Jim Evans, AL, right field foul line.

Neduecker will be in his third All-Star Game and Denkinger in his second. The other three will be making their debuts.

Kuhn also announced that the official scorers will be Richard Dozer of the Chicago Tribune, president of the Baseball Writers Association of America; Ray Kelly of the Philadelphia Bulletin, and Bill Liston of the Boston Herald American.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Roman Gabriel of the Philadelphia Eagles will retire this season if the team can't use him, Eagle coach Dick Vermeil said in a press release Sunday.

Gabriel has been working at Rancho Mirage, Calif., on his right knee, which underwent surgery last January, Vermeil said, "but his knee hasn't progressed far enough for him to be a football player."

If his knee improves, Gabriel will call the Eagles in two weeks "to find out if we have a spot available for him," Vermeil said. "Otherwise he is going to retire."

Gabriel became a free agent when he played out his option with the Eagles last season.

BAASTAD, Sweden — Antonio Zugarelli of Italy upset countryman and top-seeded Corrado Barazzutti 4-6, 7-5, 6-2 to win the men's singles in the $100,000 Swedish Open Tennis Championships.

GSTAAD, Switzerland — Mexico's Raul Ramirez captured the Swiss International Open Tennis Championships with a 7-5, 6-7, 6-1, 6-3 triumph over top-seeded Adriano Panatta of Italy.

MOLINE, Ill. — New Zealand's John Lister won the $100,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament with a final round four-under-par 67, two strokes better than Fuzzy Zoeller.

EVERGREEN, Colo. — Veteran Dave Hill scored an easy six-stroke victory in the 13th Colorado Open with a final round two-under-par 69.

RANZAN, Japan — Jumbo Ozaki of Japan birdied the final hole to win the Kanto Golf Tournament by one stroke over countryman Takashi Murakami.

Driver unhappy with '5000' win

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — A victory with a new car, in its first race, would normally leave a driver pretty optimistic about the future.

Not so with Alan Jones.

Despite winning Sunday's rain drenched 100-mile Formula 5000 road racing feature here, Jones remained pessimistic about the potential of his new March 76A, in a reluctant debut.

"The car still has many problems, mostly the problems of a new car. It does show a great deal of promise in straightaway speed, but the cornering is not good at this point," asserted the 29-year-old Britisher.

Jones would have driven his backup Lola T332 in the race if he'd had a choice. But that choice was eliminated Friday when Jones destroyed the car in a practice crash.

Asked if the other car might won even more handily, Jones replied, "We'll never know, will we?"

The actual potential of the March was hard to determine in the race, however, because of the rain, he said.

Jones took the lead on the 28th of 30 laps and finished 6.8 seconds ahead of pole position winner Al Unser, who along with Brian Redman won split victories in the two 33 mile heat races prior to the feature. Both of those races were run before the rains came.

Unser asserted he thought Jones was merely unlapping himself. Jones had made a two-minute pit stop earlier for fresh tires. "I wasn't really racing him as hard as I would have been, if I'd known he was going for the lead," Unser said grimly afterward. "My crew was showing me the P-1 sign (first position) on the pit board."

"Well he didn't exactly wave me through when I passed him," Jones responded.

Figueroa knows his time is coming

By Associated Press

Ed Figueroa will spend the All-Star break with his family this year, but he knows his time is coming.

After firing a three-hit shutout Sunday in New York's 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox, Figueroa reflected on his role with the Yankees and his own stature in baseball.

"It is my second year in the big leagues," said 27-year-old native of Puerto Rico. "I just want to win my games. Then next year I have the name. Maybe I can win 20 games with this club.

"Last year I had only seven wins before the All-Star Game. This year I have 10," said Figueroa, 10-6, the third Yankee pitcher to win 10 games before midseason. The other two are Catfish Hunter and Dock Ellis.

"I'd like to go to the All-Star Game, but it is too late now," he said. "I have to wait until next year, so I spend three days with my family. The guys who were picked just beat me to No. 10."

In other American League games, Detroit nipped Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston defeated Minnesota 6-4, Baltimore beat California 3-1, Oakland whipped Cleveland 9-3 and Milwaukee took two from Texas, 6-3 and 5-4 in 10 innings.

Going into Tuesday's All-Star Game in Philadelphia, the Yankees lead Boston by 9½ games in the AL East Pennant race.

Oscar Gamble's two-run, 400-foot homer in the second inning gave the 6-foot right-handed Figueroa all the firepower he needed to give the Yanks their ninth victory in 10 games between the two teams this season.

Figueroa allowed three singles, gave up two walks and struck out four. Chicago starter Bart Johnson, 7-8, seeking his fifth straight victory, took the loss.

Tigers 6, Royals 5

Rusty Staub's two-out, 12th-inning single scored John Wockenfuss and gave Detroit its victory. Wockenfuss had walked and advanced to third on successive sacifice bunts.

John Hiller, 8-4, got the victory in relief, while Steve Mingori, 3-1, was tagged with the loss.

The Royals had tied the game in the seventh inning with three runs.

Red Sox 6, Twins 4

Fred Lynn ignited a 13-hit Boston attack with a first-inning home run, his sixth of the year, and Ferguson Jenkins evened his record at 8-8 in Boston's win.

Jenkins scattered 10 hits before giving way to Jim Willoughby in the ninth. Denny Doyle had a two-run single in the third for Boston, which evened its record at 40-40 going into the All-Star Game.

A's 9, Indians 3

Bill North drove in two runs, scored three more and extended his league-leading stolen bases mark to 42 with a single swipe in Oakland's victory. The A's have won seven of their past eight games.

Winning pitcher Paul Mitchell, 5-5, got relief help from Paul Lindblad, who gave up just one hit and held Cleveland scoreless for the final 3 2/3 innings. The loser was Dennis Eckersley, 4-8.

Brewers 6-5, Rangers 3-4

Hank Aaron homered in the 10th inning to give Milwaukee a sweep of its doubleheader with Texas and a sweep of their five-game series. The Rangers now have lost six in a row.

Aaron's 340-foot homer into the left field stands was his ninth of the season and 754th of his career.

Milwaukee tied the nightcap 4-4 in the ninth on run-scoring singles by Bernie Carbo, who had a two-run homer earlier in the game, and Robin Yount. Bill Castro, 2-0, got the victory in relief.

Jim Slaton picked up his 10th victory against six losses in the opener as Gorman Thomas's two-run double highlighted Milwaukee's five-run seventh inning.

N.L. hurlers have busy day

By Associated Press

How well a pitcher does is up to the man himself. But when he does it is up to his manager, especially around All-Star time...in the National League, anyway.

The American League, having dropped 12 of the last 13 midseason classics, has been given an order by AL President Lee MacPahil the last three years—don't use any of your All-Star hurlers on the Sunday before the game.

But in the NL, anything goes—which is why Jon Matlack, surprise reliever Tom Seaver and Dick Ruthven went.

None of the hurlers picked for Tuesday night's All-Star Game got anything but a workout in Atlanta's 9-8 victory over the New York Mets. But Don Sutton, normally another starter, found himself in an unaccustomed relief role—and found a victory in the process as Los Angeles beat St. Louis 9-6.

In the rest of the NL, Ed Halicki baffled Chicago with a two-hitter as San Francisco beat the Cubs 2-0, Jim Kaat pitched a nine-hit shutout in Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over San Diego, Joaquin Andujar did the same in Touston's 1-0 squeaker over Montreal and Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 8-5.

Matlack, the winner of last year's All-Star Game, had an easy time with the Braves until they bombed him during a five-run seventh inning. One of his successors was Seaver.

"I volunteered to relieve," the Mets' ace right-hander said. "If they thought they could use me, I wanted to play."

Giants 2, Cubs 0

Halicki, who pitched a no-hitter against the Mets last season, had another one going against Chicago until Jose Cardenal grounded a single up the middle leading off the seventh inning. The only hit he and the Giants needed was Gary Matthews' first-inning homer.

"I was disappointed to lose the no-hitter, but it was just as important to me to win the game," Halicki said. "That's what I'm paid for. It's a pretty thin line between a shutout and no-hit ball. You have to be sharp in this league to get either one."

Phillies 3, Padres 0

Greg Luzinski's three-run double in the sixth inning and a strong defense that turned three double plays gave Kaat his first NL shutout, despite his being peppered for nine San Diego hits.

"As long as you don't start keeping score by who gets the most hits, we're not going to worry about it," Kaat laughed. "Without our defense, those nine would have been 15 or 16."

Astros 1, Expos 0

Andujar's shutout was his third of the season. "I've been sick for about four or five days," he admitted afterwards. "I felt dizzy before the game. But I love baseball. Every time I go out there, I give 200 per cent. The way I was hustling, no one could tell I was sick. You have to be a man to play this game."

The man who gave him the game was Leon Roberts with a fifth-inning single that drove in the game's only run.

Pirates 8, Reds 5

Cincinnati relievers Pedro Borbon and Will McEnaney gave Pittsburgh its victory.

First Borbon hit Tommy Helms with a bases-loaded pitch in the eighth inning to force in the tie-breaking run, then McEnaney served up a juicy pitch that Rennie Stennett ripped for a two-run double.

American Legion roundup

Claremont wins easily

Claremont Post 78, 21-13 and 5-1 in the second half of league action, built up a 6-0 lead and coasted to a 14-5 victory over Rowland Sunday afternoon at Pomona College.

In other valley American legion action, Montclair's Keith McCune hurled a five inning no-hitter as Montclair drubbed Chino 12-0 at Montclair High. West Covina downed LaVerne 10-4 and El Monte defeated Pomona, 4-2.

Brad Kirkendall hurled a shutout at Rowland into the eighth inning before Rowland was able to score. However, Kirkendall was forced out, after he hit the lead-off man in the inning, due to a sprained thumb.

Before injuring the thumb, Kirkendall hurled a strong seven innings as he held Rowland to just five hits while fanning 9 batters. His control was perfect until the hit batsman as he didn't walk a batter. Kirkendall hurt the thumb at the plate as a batter.

Mike Davis and Jim Tullis paced the 16-hit Claremont attack as they each banged out three hits apiece.

Tullis finished the game with four RBI's and in his last 40 at bats he has collected 14 base hits for a .350 average. Tullis, who at one time in the season was 2-for-26 at the plate, has lifted his average to .342.

Claremont broke open the contest with four runs in the second inning. Kirkendall singled and advanced to second as Jim Healey beat out an infield hit and he scored as Paul Sokolowski singled. Mike Davis singled in Healey and Sokolowski advanced to third as Davis took second. Dick Bell singled to drive in Davis and Sokolowski. Tullis singled in Bell after Peacock had walked with the fourth run of the inning.

Claremont, 5-1 in second half action leads Pomona by two full games. Post 78, 11-5 overall in District 18 league travels to Whittier Narrows to battle El Monte Wednesday night in a 7 p.m. contest. Len Peacock (6-3) is the probable starter Wednesday night for Post 78.

Montclair jumped off with a three run first inning, a four-run second inning and five-run third frame to defeat Chino Sunday afternoon. Montclair forced the five inning rule which stops the game when a team is leading by a score of 12-0.

McCune stopped Chino cold as he allowed only two free passes while striking out eight Post 299 batters.

Rick Adams backed McCune's no-hit pitching with a three-hit performance which included two triples and a home run. The three extra base hits gave Adams a total of five runs batted in.

West Covina, red hot since the Upland American Legion tournament, banged out 13 hits to down a cold La Verne squad. La Verne has not dropped five of its last six contests since the holiday tournament.

West Covina broke open the contest with a four-run fourth inning. Post 790 had built a 3-1 lead through the first three frames of the contest. Two La Verne errors helped West Covina in the fourth as they put three base hits together for the runs. Mark Bridgewater continued his hot hitting with a solo homer.

La Verne was throttled by Don Groh until the sixth inning when Post 330 scored two runs off the West Covina pitching ace. Both runs were unearned as Groh threw the ball away on a pickoff attempt and tossed two wild pitches. Groh was relieved by Mike Pill who fanned five La Verne batters in the 3 and 1/3 innings he pitched.

La Verne's roster has been reduced to 10 men due to injuries. Gregg Sayegh injured a shoulder, Steve Benoit hurt his elbow, and Steve Campbell rebroke his wrist.

Post 330, 23-9 on the year, returns to action Tuesday night against Anaheim in a 5:30 p.m. contest at La Verne College.

Pomona Post 30 record dropped to 18-12 overall and 2-3 in District 18 play during the second half of action. Post 30 got a forfeit win Saturday night because Baldwin Park folded.

El Monte scored only one earned run as Pomona's defense fell apart. Post 30 committed five errors in the contest.

Pomona's two runs came on a fifth inning double by Jeff Seaman and a triple by Mike Keegan in the sixth frame.

Post 30 resumes action Friday when they host Hacienda Heights at Ralph Welch Park in a 7 p.m. contest.

Big rally gives win to West

OAKLAND (AP) — After three hours of tennis, it came down to one point — and longtime rivals Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong were on opposite sides of the net as it was played.

When it was over, Goolagong had returned a short, crisp Evert shot into the net, and the West had won an incredible come-from-behind 28-27 victory with a 5-4 super tie-breaker round at the World Team Tennis All-Star Classic Saturday.

Did the cheers of 12,581 fans, most partisans for the West, help her game? "The crowd's reaction was just great," a smiling Miss Evert said after the match. "It really helps psyche you up."

The West, guided by Golden Gaters coach Frew McMillan, took an early 6-2 lead when men's doubles teammates Rod Laver, San Diego Friars, and Tom Okker, Golden Gaters, trounced Tom Alexander of the Boston Lobsters and Phil Dent of the New York Sets.

The East, coached by Fred Stolle, pulled to within one game when Goolagong, Pittsburgh Triangles, trimmed Phoenix Racquets ace Evert 6-3 in women's singles.

The East then surged to a 1411 lead as New York Sets teammates Billie Jean King and Sandy Mayer crushed the West's Tony Roche, Phoenix, and Golden Gater Francoise Durr in mixed doubles 6-2.

Hectic pace agrees with Ilie Nastase

MYRTLE BEACH (AP) — Ilie Nastase has kept a hectic pace in recent weeks — getting from one corner of the globe to another — and he gives no indication of slowing down.

The colorful Rumanian flew into Myrtle Beach Friday night from Hawaii for the first Grand Slam of Tennis, which he handily won Sunday by downing Manuel Orantes of Spain 6-4, 6-3.

Nastase hurried back Sunday afternoon to Hawaii where he plays World Team Tennis for the Hawaii Leis.

Just a little more than a week ago, he was in England, losing in the finals of Wimbledon to Sweden's Bjorn Borg.

The 30-year-old shotmaker says he plans a rest in a few months. He says he'll take November and December off, but in the meantime, he is scheduled for one tournament after another and in between he'll take the court for the Leis.

In his first set Saturday in the tournament at the Myrtle Beach Tennis Club, he seemed to be suffering from jet lag as he fell 0-6 to Jimmy Connors. But, he quickly found his stride and rushed through the remainder of the tournament without dropping a set to claim the $75,000 championship prize.

"That's pretty good money for two days," he said Sunday.

All four said they liked the tournament format and playing for one of tennis' largest purses.

Amer. ends season

Pomona American B downed Pomona American A 14-6 Sunday afternoon at Simons Junior High as both big league teams concluded their seasons. Neither team will be in the upcoming playoffs.

Chino Hills swept a doubleheader from Chino 3B as Gene Campbell hurled a five-hitter in the opener. Chino Hills captured the first game 5-1 before being awarded the night-cap as Chino 3 B forfeited the contest.

Pomona American B Bill-s Tree Service iced the contest with a 10-run third inning. Pomona First Federal had taken a brief 6-3 lead with a five run second inning outburst.

The key blows of the 10 run frame were a two-run single by Elton Keyes and a bases loaded triple by Ken Gendreau. Bill's Tree Service was aided by one big First Federal error and six free passes by Pomona First Federal pitching.

Jim Saige paced Bill's Tree Service attack with a single and double in four trips to the plate. Gendreau drove in three runs with a triple and base on balls. Keyes knocked in three runs with a single and ground ball to short.

Pomona First Federal's attack was led by Larry Acosta with three hits in four at bats.

Chino Hills, which had five players named to the Inland All-Star squad defeated Chino 3 B on just two hits. Chino Hills won the second game on the strength of a forfeit. The game was played anyway and Mark White was credited with a victory.

In the opener, Campbell was the main story for Chino Hills as he fanned eight batters while walking two.

The Inland Big League All-Star squad was picked this week and they will begin action on July 26 at Riverside. Joe Pimentel, manager of Chino Hills was named as the squads manager and Richard Pimentel was named coach of the squad.

Six hurt in traffic accidents

Progress Bulletin

Pomona, California ■ Monday, July 12, 1976

Four traffic accidents in the Chino and Pomona areas injured six persons over the weekend.

One of three persons injured in a two-car collision at Euclid and Kimball avenues, Chino area, Saturday was still hospitalized today.

Stephanie E. Summers, 18, of Riverside was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Kaiser Hospital in Fontana.

Her eastbound car crashed into a northbound car driven by Geraldine Campbell, 32, of 1692 E. Granada Ct., Ontario, highway patrolmen reported.

Mrs. Campbell and her passenger, John R. Campbell, 32, of the same address, were treated at Chino General Hospital and released. Miss Summers was taken to the same hospital and later transferred to Kaiser Hospital.

Allen L. Bell, 24, of 329 W. Bonita Ave., San Dimas, escaped with minor injuries when his pickup truck crashed through the cul-de-sac of the Grand Avenue service road a half-mile west of Grand Avenue, Pomona area, Saturday night.

The car was airborne for several feet and crashed through a barbed wire fence, coming to rest just short of a four-foot deep concrete drainage ditch.

Bell told the highway patrol he had fallen asleep. He was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

A motorist was arrested Saturday night after his car was involved in a collision at Holt Avenue and Fillmore Street, Pomona police reported.

The collision was between cars driven by Earl Joseph Bliss, 34, Pomona, and Frank A. Cardoso, 16, Upland. Bliss was arrested on a drunken driving charge.

A passenger in Cardoso's car, Frank V. Toeda, Chino, suffered a cut eye and was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Also in Pomona, a young woman escaped serious injury Saturday night when she lost control of her car in the 1200 block of E. Kingsley Avenue and it jumped a curb and ran through several front yards before stopping.

The driver, Laurie Jean Swann, 21, said she was turning when the car skidded in a puddle of water and she lost control of it.

The victim was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was released after treatment of mouth injuries.

Two lawns and a flower bed were damaged.

MALE EXCLUSIVE?

If this long line of men waiting their turn for agility testing is any indication, service in the fire department is still a career for men. Only a few women applied. More than 500 took agility tests Saturday after passing earlier written examinations administered by Pomona, Upland and West Covina fire departments. Those who successfully passed this second phase of testing went on to oral interviews later in the afternoon.

Fleet convention

Delegates selected

Delegates to the Fleet Reserve Association's Southwest Regional Convention and National Convention will be elected Wednesday at 8 p.m. when Branch 211 and Unit 211 of the Ladies Auxiliary meet at the American Legion Hall at Chino.

The Southwest Regional Convention will be held at El Cortez Hotel, San Diego, Aug. 14. The National Convention is scheduled for Sept. 19-21 at Waikiki, Oahu.

At a recent joint meeting, Joseph P. Moran, national Fleet Reserve Association president, presented a 30-year membership pin to Harold Edick of Pomona, a charter member of Branch 211.

Dave Terwilliger of San Dimas, newly elected president of Branch 211, has announced that the branch and the unit will launch a drive for new members.

Sally Terwilliger, newly-elected president of Unit 211, reported that light refreshments will be served at the meeting.

Chino board continues developers' tax talks

A controversial tax on developers to provide money for new schools in Chino will be discussed further at Tuesday's school board meeting.

The proposal for a possible $200 tax per dwelling unit was considered briefly at last week's board meeting but no action was taken. The issue also was pondered at a recent joint session of the Chino City Council and Planning Commission.

Supt. Royce Lapp said this type of tax is under a "legal cloud" with developers in Northern California suing cities to recover back fees. Whether cities legally can charge developers for new schools is being questioned, he noted.

Lapp said the fee hopefully would slow Chino's growth by increasing the price of homes. New people in the community would begin paying for schools, he added.

Pico Rivera man drowns in dam

A 32-year-old Pico Rivera man slipped beneath the surface of the water in San Gabriel Canyon Dam and drowned early Sunday afternoon, sheriff's deputies reported.

The victim was Angel M. Medina, whose body was recovered by divers.

Russia supplied by 3rd parties

It is obvious Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld don't read their own agencies' reports.

If they did, the Ford administration would not even consider supplying some of its latest military hardware to Yugoslavia — reportedly including the TOW wire-guided missile, in short supply even in the United States, if recent columns are to be believed.

This aid is ostensibly being given to enable President Tito and his successors to fend off an invasion by the Russians — it being essential to U. S. interests, according to Kissinger's advisers, to maintain Yugoslav independence. This in addition to more than a billion dollars in military and economic assistance in the past.

There's a great deal of malarky here.

Tito has put on a show of independence. But study what and who he's worked for in virtually every crisis. Inevitably it is in the interests of the USSR or one of Moscow's allies. Moreover, both the Pentagon and State department know that any advanced weapon supplied to Belgrade will be in the hands of the Russians soon after, delivered by high Yugoslav officials. Past cases can be documented by U. S. and British intelligence.

The Russians have no need to take over the country. They have it in their pocket. Its "independence" serves Moscow well.

Like the Soviets, the Yugoslavs have been angling for advanced U. S. technology, both military and civilian, and for a reason. There's a limit to what we will supply the Russians even under the Kissinger form of detente. Moscow therefore seeks what it wants through third parties. To make these "third-country" requests more palatable to Washington, Communists in other lands have been pushing the concept they are not tied to the Soviet Union and, in fact, are in deadly fear of what Russians agents and troops might do given the chance.

Now some of these Communists, as in China, mean what they say in this instance, though there are strong forces even within China favoring rapproachment with the USSR. Yugoslavia, despite its elaborate system of guerrilla regional forces, is not in this category.

No guerrilla force in its right mind would turn over secret night-fighting devices upon which its security could hinge, to any country it feared would invade them. These Yugoslav officials did within weeks of being supplied such equipment by an American firm whose officers were encouraged in this sale to Yugoslavia by the Pentagon and State Department. No isolated example, the transfer of these weapons to Moscow by the Yugoslavs was reported by British intelligence. The information has been in the hands of U. S. intelligence for more than six months.

Yugoslavia, thus, is a convenient channel through which the Russians can secure advanced industrial and military technology.

Why then do Kissinger's men "leak" that these deals will show the world and Moscow we are determined to halt Soviet takeovers?

The plea for arms for Angola was another hypocritical gesture. Kissinger did not take the time to determine the type of individuals or organizations U. S. arms would go to or whether they had the cohesion and military know-how to survive if given American assistance. It was enough to say the enemy was Communist.

Now there is no doubt the victors won because of Russian supplies and Cuban troops. The U. S. government's own specialists reported to the State Department and Pentagon there was no evidence the Russo-Cuban-backed victors were Red. There is no way of knowing whether this analysis was correct or not; but it was the information President Ford and Kissinger had at hand when they asked Congress for arms assistance.

Sometimes it is difficult to figure what is going on in the minds of our top government officials.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

An attitude we often share is . . . what's the use? Why make an effort when no one particularly cares? Why put ourselves to any trouble when no one is going to notice anyway?

No matter what we do, it is for us — the individual. Maybe it is to salve our own conscience, to save face or just to put us in a better light — but it is for us. We cannot deny how much better we feel when we have met a responsibility, or given for a good purpose, though no one even bothered to say "thanks." There are a lot of reasons for doing something well, but the main one is that it steps us up in our own eyes. If we do not have that self respect, we are far more apt to give up and ask, "What's the use?"

Thought

Therefore you have no excuse, O man, whoever you are, when you judge another; for in passing judgment upon him you condemn yourself, because you, the judge, are doing the very same things. — Romans 2:1.

The public forum

Who is to blame?

Dear Editor:

The temination of the bookmobile of the Pomona public library has caused much displeasure among those who had come to depend upon it in its four years of existence.

The question isbeing asked, "Why give up the bookmobile? Why can't the library cut some other service?"

There are many good justifications for the phase-out of the bookmobile. It was done with great reluctance after serious planning and it is hoped that reasonable people will understand that the library is not to blame for its demise.

Because of the huge deficit existing within the citv of Pomona it has been necessary for the city council and administration to trim all city expenses, including funding for the library. Therefore, because of inflation and no tax increase earmarked for the library, the budget could not be balanced without drastic cuts.

In compliance with city hall's decree, the library administration is attempting to use the reduced funds available to meet the needs of the greatest number of patrons.

Statistics show that maintaining the services of the main library must be the primary goal. On the other hand, the bookmobile was a special, separate service that could be cut without jeopardizing other services. Also, an additional consideration was an annual cost savings of $47,000.

The Saturday and Sunday closings, reductions of library hours from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays, are further efforts by the library administration to save overhead and personnel cost while continuing to maintain efficient services.

It is a sad situation indeed, when desirable and beneficial programs such as offered by our library must be restricted or eliminated. Just what is the cause? Who is to blame? True, the city council holds the purse strings, but who is to blame for inflation, for higher costs of everything from utilities and office supplies to employe wages and fringe benefits? Who is to blame for a crime rate that requires top budget attention for police and fire protection while those activities that contribute to and enhance the quality of life in a community must be given the lowest priority?

Gone are the good old days

WASHINGTON — For the first time in the roaring, rollicking, recent history of presidential conventions, the delegates may have to buy their own booze and take taxis instead of riding around in corporate Cadillacs.

The painful memory of Watergate has brought an end to the glorious freeloading that characterized the Democratic and Republican convocations of the past. Upon the advice of their lawyers and priests, the corporate Samaritans no longer dare lavish favors upon the political luminaries who will gather this summer to nominate the next President.

In this post-Watergate year, the auto manufacturers won't furnish gleaming new automobiles to whisk the delegates around the convention cities. The distillers don't plan to dispatch long-legged girls dispensing free booze. The once-pampered delegates won't return home laden with goodies. There'll be no free briefcases for carrying their papers, no free pen-and-pencil sets for marking ballots, no yacht cruises to relax from the political rhetoric.

Those corporate contributors who haven't been infused with the new Watergate morality have been impressed at least by the new federal election laws. Their lawyers have advised them not to make an offering that might faintly resemble a corporate campaign contribution.

A few brave corporations will maintain hospitality suites, where stray delegates may relax over Scotch and soda. The American Bankers Assn. and the mutual savings banks, for example, will provide suitable refuges for their political friends.

At the Democratic convention, which starts today, the machinists and the ladies' garment workers will throw a bash for the friends of labor.

The railroads will operate a lounge, stocked with roast beef and beer, for working reporters. But anyone who even looks like a politician will be barred at the door. The Pepsi people will also provide free cola for the press. But the delegates will have to pay for their Pepsis. Elsewhere the politicians, who used to be the objects of corporate attention, will be turned away.

International Telephone and Telegraph began the 1972 political season by offering to help subsidize the Republican convention. Richard Nixon wanted to stage his renomination rites in San Diego, a city that had been witness to his early struggles and triumphs and had historically given him a higher vote than any other comparable metropolis.

But the burghers of San Diego were oblivious to the honor President Nixon held out and the city fathers voted against even submitting a bid for the convention. To prevent a presidential humiliation, ITT offered $400,000 to help out with the expenses and to make the convention financially attractive to the city.

Eight days after San Diego was selected, the Justice Dept. announced the dropping of its antitrust suits against ITT. Then we got hold of the famous Dita Beard memo, which linked the $400,000 offer with the antitrust settlement. The scandal caused Nixon to abandon San Diego and ITT to withdraw its financial pledge in awkward haste.

Yet other corporations, undeterred, coughed up huge sums to make the 1972 conventions more pleasant for both the Republicans and Democrats. The Whittaker Corp., for example, provided Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien with a $200,000 pleasure boat and even offered to name it the "Larry O" in his honor. He accepted the yacht but declined the name, not wishing to advertise his free yachting privileges. The boat came stocked, incidentally, with free booze.

Both parties ganged up on the corporate fat cats in 1972 to squeeze advertisements from them for the convention programs. In a rare example of cooperation, representatives from the two parties met secretly at Ford Motor headquarters in Washington to plot together how to get the most possible advertising from the corporations.

But on the eve of the 1976 conventions, the whole atmosphere has changed. ITT, laying low, won't even put up money for a hospitality suite this year. The company will send a couple of lobbyists to observe the conventions, with instructions not to pick up any checks for strangers.

The convention programs this year will be published without ads. The airlines, which have provided the traditional delegates' lounge in the past, will leave the delegates to find their own retreats. "We're leaning over backwards this year," said a spokesman.

At past conventions, the Big Three auto manufacturers donated 400 to 500 free cars for the political bigwigs. Attendants were provided to give the cars a daily scrubdown and mechanics were dispatched to keep the motors running. Even the parking was free.

It usually took days to round up the cars after the delegates had gone home. Some of the cars were abandoned, with the keys still in them. Some were stolen, a few wrecked. The total cost to the auto companies ran around $200,000.

The motor moguls are secretly delighted with the new campaign law, which gives them an excuse to withdraw the free cars and buses. "We wanted to be sure everything was legal, so we cut it out," explained a General Motors spokesman.

Our man in Washington

Bend when necessary

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Welcome to the third century!

Americans everywhere are recovering from a celebration of our 200th birthday and things are beginning to return to normal.

It is almost a shame that it must end so soon. Oh! The celebration will continue for the rest of this year, but the climax has been reached. It is all downhill from this point forward.

This anniversary was so grand it almost makes you want to stick around for the tricentennial.

Like President Ford observed, the bicentennial celebration brought out the best in people.

In this city where just over one year ago more than 500 Washingtonians and visitors were attacked during the "Human Kindness Day" celebration there was a festive and peaceful mood despite the hundreds of thousands of people crowded together for the fireworks and parades.

For the first time in years, maybe decades for some people, there was a true neighborliness about the District of Columbia.

From all the reports we've seen the same was true in the rest of the nation. While this type of peace and serenity may be common to middle America it is a welcome change to the cities.

It was a spectacular way to end 200 years of freedom and a bombastic entry into the next century.

Unfortunately we are still plagued by the same problems that confronted us prior to the July 4 celebrations and those problems will undoubtedly continue to cause the friction that has dominated much of the news.

Still a national election is upon us and with that an opportunity to choose someone we believe can bring us into the full, free and prosperous era we all long for.

We are finally at peace with the world, albeit a tense peace in some areas. If we can only return the economy to stability we can move to the final step of creating the perfect nation.

Equality for all people is within our grasp today. Blacks, women, Mexican-Americans, Jews and all other ethnic, and religious groups have a real opportunity in this land known for opportunity.

The differences we consider major today will look insignificant with the passage of time, but we must approach it with the same tolerance we approached the recent celebration.

We must remember that we cannot do it in one day and we must forgive the impatience of the underprivileged.

We must also instill the basic philosphies that have made us a great nation. We must not destroy our morality and our beliefs to meet the needs, but we must bend a little when it is necessary.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Did you notice that on one of the TV networks broadcasting this country's all-day July 4th Bicentennial celebration the program's principal sponsor was Ex-Lax? Probably a good thing, too. For, if you gotta go all out, you gotta go all out. And, thanks to Ex-Lax, we could be sure there would be no irregular patriots half-heartedly celebrating our nation's 200th birthday.

Ralph Nader nears his nadir

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — All heroes become bores in the end, but Ralph Nader?

Ten years ago when he published his classic work on the car as citrus, "Unsafe at Any Speed", he was a worried-looking nobody with a sense that the world was mad — and he was wonderful. Since then he has published 40 more books, organized into a dozen corporations, hasn't said a positive word about anything on the continent — and appears increasingly to be wearing out his welcome.

Assuredly, Big N always had critics. Corporation barons, government flunkies — those kinds of people. Now, however, his worth is decreasing in the public sector. College kids don't send him money so readily as before; the press is not so easily manipulated to praise his view; and, most importantly, there are even one or two consumers who are beginning to wonder about the wisdom of a man who, in the name of progress, would give the government of Wayne Hays, William Simon and Hubert Humphrey greater control over private industry.

This erosion of public confidence in Nader did not set in suddenly. It started, perhaps, when the man of the people lobbied successfully for such things as automobile seatbelt buzzers. In the old days they would have guillotined a man for less. Nader was spared but cautioned: "Ralph, you can't help humanity by driving it crazy." Nader responded by lobbying for buzzers on the ignition switch as well.

And this is what he has become, to a degree: arrogant. Once when he presented a $34.12 ticket to Allegheny Airlines for a flight, he was apologetically refused a seat. The airline said it had overbooked the flight, which was a hedge against those ticketholders who traditionally do not show at departure time.

The airline said, correctly, that if the overbooking procedure was not followed the fare costs would eventually go up. To hell with higher prices, said Nader, who earns $250,000 a year himself, and besides has most of his fares paid by others. And he has sued. This is consumer protection?

There are those who say Ralph Nader has become not so much arrogant as touchy. And perhaps this is kinder as well as more accurate. It was not arrogance, after all, that led him to withdraw his name this year from the Massachusetts presidential primary, and it was certainly a matter of remarkable sensitivity when he gave his reasons: "Arbitrary and capricious," he said of the state's decision to include his name on the ballot, then he followed by accusing Massachusetts officials of conspiring to turn him into a "partisan politician." How awful.

Indeed, for a man who can dish it out, Nader is uncommonly delicate when it comes to affronts against him, real or imagined. He brooks no criticism from the unwashed. Currently he is suing a writer named Ralph de Toledano for $1,005,000 worth of libel. De Toledano's offense? He dared to write that Nader used "falsified and distorted evidence to make his case against the automobile." Every Nader foe east of Detroit has said the same thing, but Big N is making certain De Toledano doesn't say it again, at least for awhile. There is nothing like a civil suit to dampen the first amendment. It narrows the enthusiasm greatly when one sees he may go broke for his opinions.

And yet Nader believes in nothing so much as opinions, his own: nuclear power must be stopped; safe automobiles must be manufactured, however financially impractical; the nation needs yet another bureaucracy acting for consumers.

Lately Big N has even been hinting of economic revolution; and though the does quite well himself in the present system — in 1974 he raised $1.4 million from college students who checked off portions of their school fees to him — he nonetheless is pushing for government of the John Kenneth Galbraith kind of socialism.

For many, Big N's ideas still have merit, even excitement. But what is worrisome is that they now smack, as does he, of zealotry. Big N was born without a neutral gear, he would either be the man who saves us with foresight or destroys us through blindness. As time passes that choice seems less and less appropriate. Undoubtedly, Ralph Nader is still a wonder. He is offensive, though when he tries to walk on water.

Where to get canning lids

Last year there was a terrible shortage of canning lids.

Recently I read a newspaper article to the effect that there are enough lids to meet the demand this year but I couldn't find any at the store where I have bought them in the past.

Can you tell me where to find some? — J.S., Upland.

We can, although they are still not plentiful.

Stater Bros Market in Claremont had a case of the regular size lids when we called.

Alpha Beta at 2109 S. Garey Ave., Pomona, had some but only in one size.

We struck gold at Gold Strike Market, 412 N. Park Ave., Pomona. John Norr, grocery manager, said he had a "fair supply, not enough to set the world on fire." His "fair supply" proved to be six cases. He had both regular and wide mouth lids.

Upland Feed and Fuel Co., in your home town, had none but was going to try to get some.

On June 16 I went to the emergency room of a hospital in the valley area.

My husband accompanied me. We were asked to have a seat. There were two people ahead of us.

We had entered the emergency room at 6 p.m. At 7:10 p.m. I went to the desk and asked for my insurance form back as I was too sick to wait any longer. I had had a headache four days but it developed into a migraine on the day I went to the hospital.

The receptionist told me to wait as I was the next one to be called to see the doctor. Two more people were called in. One had obvious burn injuries.

I was called and put in a cubicle. My blood pressure and temperature were taken and then the nurse left (there was a screaming child).

After I waited 35 more minutes, nauseated, my head splitting, I walked out.

I went to another facility and received immediate care.

The hospital has billed me for $22. I don't think I should have to pay this although the business manager says I must. — J.S., Chino.

The hospital administrator investigated your complaint at our request.

He upheld the business manager, who said you requested treatment in the emergency department on your own volition, stating you had no family physician.

Acknowledging that you did wait because of other patients being treated, he said the waiting period in the emergency department is very unpredictable because of the nature of services rendered.

The bill for $22 was listed as a "basic charge." As a courtesy to you, the hospital has billed your insurance carrier but will expect payment from you if your benefits don't cover the service given.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You tend to expect more today than conditions warrant. Building unrealistic hopes is foolish. View things with a jaundiced eye.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't rely solely on Lady Luck and your good looks to get you by today. You'll have to work for any rewards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't let hunches or intuition take precedence over logic today. If it doesn't compute in your mind, chances are it won't work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Normally you can't be mistaken where bargains are concerned. Today, you may be taken in by the glitter and overlook the value.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Friends are prone to tell you what you'd like to hear today rather than give you a frank opinion. Bear this in mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Stick to your sensible health habits today. The temptation to overindulge will be strong. You'll stray without rigid self-discipline.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It could prove costly on a risky financial expenditure to take the word of someone who tends to exaggerate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Look for ways to trim the family budget today. Remember, it's not made of rubber and has limits to its elasticity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're liable to make some lavish promises today in order to get others to do things. Remember, if they produce you'll have to pay.

Ann Landers

A look at that 'other man'

Dear Ann Landers: You recently had a column describing "The Other Woman." Why is it no one has ever described "The Other Man"? He is everywhere. Places you'd never suspect. I'd like to try my hand at it, since I know him well. My wife knows him even better.

The other man is never seen in the morning, unshaven, with hair disheveled, in a ratty bathrobe, groping for his glasses. He appears in the morning (at work) or in the evening at a favorite rendezvous, looking perfectly groomed and very appealing.

The other man is not puttering around the house in torn trousers and an old shirt, trying to fix the plumbing or a garage door or a leak in the roof. No hint of perspiration from mowing the lawn or washing the car. He smells of cologne, toothpaste and aftershave.

The over man is always in a good mood. When he is with you, he is out for a good time. He leaves his worries at home.

The other man invariably has a wife who has back trouble, is emotionally disturbed, frigid, and is a terrible nag. She doesn't understand him and talks of nothing but bills, unmanageable kids, bothersome relatives and things that are depressing. But he can't leave her to marry you — for awhile — because of financial circumstances, the children, his aging mother, his religion or his boss. His list of excuses is endless.

The other man doesn't care that he has caused his wife untold hours of anguish, that she has become a guilt-ridden nervous wreck, confused and unsure of herself. He doesn't give a thought to the fact that his children have heard rumors, or sense something is terribly wrong in the family. He is having a great big round ball — concerned only with himself, his pleasure and his ego, in spite of what he has led his playmate to believe. Do you know him? Look again. — Watching It All From Up Close

Dear Watching: Thank you for an insightful description. It's bound to hit a lot of people where they live — or at least visit.

Dear Ann Landers: The reader who signed himself "Tokyo" was wrong and you were right. He said the letter about the Japanese surgeon who sewed sheep hymens in deflowered virgins was a phony. The operation was, according to the original writer, called "maku saisel."

The Doubting Thomas pointed out to you (with a great deal of personal satisfaction) that there is no letter "l" in the Japanese alphabet. He said that was the tip-off.

I was born and raised in Japan and can vouch for the fact that the surgery described is not uncommon in that country. It is called "amku seisei," which means membrane regeneration. Obviously, someone made a typographical error. It should have been an "i" instead of an "1." So don't let the so-and-so grind you down, honey. — Nagasaki Nick

Dear Nick: I appreciate the vote of confidence, as well as the research. You are right. It was indeed a typo, as several of my Japanese friends pointed out. (This column appears in the Asahi Evening News, an English-language paper in Tokyo.) Thanks for writing.

Joe Firman

After effects of affluency

A child of the Depression am I, one of millions of now portly and prosperous men and women who lived through "the Big One." Who compulsively eat everything on our plate, save string and paper bags, eye $49.99 bargains with deep suspicion, and talk wistfully of when bread was a dime a loaf.

My generation was raised to "make do or do without," and while my early years were not spent in grinding poverty, as the saying goes, still I wore my brother's hand-me-down suits, my soles had holes, and Mother cut my hair. My brothers and I scoured alleys and vacant lots for empty bottles that could be redeemed at 2¢ each and perhaps add up to a Saturday afternoon movie (25¢).

In those days of my youth, the guy with a job was a hero, lucky stiff. The high school boy who pumped gas at the Shell station or hustled vegetables at Schultz' grocery store after school was admired and envied more than the captain of the football team. Delivery boy jobs were eagerly sought; newspaper routes were at a premium. You'd wash a car, mow a lawn, shovel snow from a driveway for 25¢ — and be grateful.

Times, it seems, have changed. The younger generation has grown up without that rigorous discipline we endured, and they accept all the luxuries of our fat-cat society without effort or commitment. And, of course, it's our fault, not theirs.

Our generation had suffered, and we didn't want our kids to have the same hangups. So we lavished on them the material goodies of a world they never made — motorcycles, surfboards, guitars, tickets to rock concerts, tuition for college.

After the Depression (it's always capitalized) with its stock market crash, Wall Street suicides, unemployment, bread lines, apple stands, CCC, Hoover, and "Prosperity is just around the corner," America took the only sensible way out — by going to war. This brought practically instant prosperity (not capitalized) as well as Roosevelt, ration stamps, D Day, the St. Louis Browns' first pennant of the millennium and Gen. George Patton (played by George Scott). We used to say, "It's a helluva war, but it's better than no war at all!"

Now America is a fat cat again. There is prosperity, inflation, unemployment, crime in the streets, and all the other attributes of an affluent society. The new generation will spoil and coddle its sprouts as we did ours. Parents today will give the kid a car when he reaches 16, instead of sharing the family car. Rather than get a summer job, the youngster will go to Europe. His $25-a-week allowance will keep him in hamburgers and fries and Elton John records. Only the truly harsh disciplinarian will make his child use his allowance for bail when he's picked up for smoking pot. "Underprivileged" means the boy has black-and-white TV instead of a color set.

By the year 2000, I expect the weekly allowance of the average middle class, suburban American boy and girl will be $1,000, and they'll be buying tape decks for their own airplanes. "Underprivleged" will mean not having their own theater.

O tempora! O mores!

Dr. Lamb

Test shows nervous stomach

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on a nervous stomach. I have a bitter taste almost every morning when I first get up.

I went for a gall bladder X ray and my doctor gave me eight dye tablets to take 14 hours before the X ray. Around 4:30 the next morning my head started spinning and I almost passed out. Then I had diarrhea. I asked the nurse about this and she said the dye pills sometimes did this.

My gall bladder had swollen to the size of a hen's egg. Then I was given an egg yolk mix to drink, waited 40 minutes and had two more X rays. My gall bladder had returned to normal.

The doctor said my gall bladder was OK but I had a nervous stomach. Could this be true? Is it serious? When I was X-rayed could they tell if I had ulcers or a tumor too?

DEAR READER — Your experience with the gall bladder test was not too unusual. The nurse was right — the pills do act as a laxative to some people.

Your gall bladder did not swell up in an abnormal fashion. The gall bladder is designed to collect bile formed by the liver. When it fills it swells normally. The pills you took contain a dye that is excreted by the liver in the bile. The dye shows up on X rays and in this way the gall bladder, full of dye stained bile, can be seen. Your description is a normally filled gall bladder.

If your gall bladder had contained stones they would have been outlined in the dye-stained bile. Then the drink you had contained fat. Fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract, expelling the stored bile. The X rays showed that your gall bladder responded normally and emptied when you drank or ate fat. The very reason why you are not supposed to eat anything that would contain any fat after you have taken the dye pills and before you have your first X ray is because fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-9, Gall Stones and Gall Bladder Disease. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

"Nervous stomach" covers a lot of territory. It is true that nervous tension can cause indigestion symptoms or acid indigestion. The nervous tension causes the stomach to form excess amounts of acid digestive juice. This condition can lead to ulcers. The taste in your mouth suggests through that the stomach contents leaked backward into the lower esophagus while you were lying down. Try not eating anything for at least three hours before you go to bed, take some antacid also, and see if that helps.

An X ray of the gall bladder alone will not outline the stomach to tell you if there is disease in the stomach or if you have a hernia through the diaphragm. However, if your doctor had you drink a milk shake thickenss drink after your gall bladder X rays he may have been X-raying your stomach at that time. Ask him what he did and how he knows that you do not have a hernia through the diaphragm or a peptic ulcer. Look at the bill and if it does not include a bill for X rays of the stomach — perhaps labled as examination of the upper gastrointestinal system (often noted Upper G.I.) your stomach has not been examined.

Oswald: "How about some examples of strategic bidding?"

Jim: "I have a good example right here. The game was team-of-four with international match-point scoring. South was pretty sure that he could wrap up seven hearts. His problem was to get to play hearts when his not vulnerable opponents held the spade suit."

Oswald: "His bid of just five hearts was a calculated risk. He would have looked mighty silly if East-West had let him play there."

Jim: "Strangely enough, five hearts making seven would have been a score of 710. At the other table North and South slam-banged into seven hearts and East-West took the save at seven spades. The defense collected just four tricks to score a mere 700."

Oswald: "I don't like to take away credit from South's virtuouso bidding performance, but I feel that if East had been really alert he would still have bid seven spades rather than risk letting his opponents score their vulnerable grand slam."

Jim: "I agree but you can't quarrel with success."

Black, blond and red wigs

Envision three actors on a stage, each wearing a different colored wig, one straight, one curly blonde and one tousled red. Which is the villain? The hero? The comic servant? Correct, the stereotypes go all the way back to the ancient Greek theatre. Black was villainous, blond heroic, and red humorous. It's utterly unreal. There's no basis at all for tying together the colors with the characters. But when I asked you to identify the roles by the wigs, you guessed rightly, did you not?

Q. "About 20 years ago, the Hollywood Women's Press Club gave some sort of honorary title to Ronald Reagan. What was it?"

A. "World's most sincere actor."

LOVE AND WAR

Among the pirates on the sea of matrimony, the women outnumber the men considerably. Or so our Love and War man has reported. By pirates, he refers to those citizens who break up other people's marriages. Most men tend to keep a hands-off attitude towards seemingly happy marriages. But most women, if they pirate at all, are inclined to regard a seemingly happy marriage as a challenge. When queried in the matter, they say that a marriage that can be broken up isn't worth saving.

Before we can understand how water puts a fire out we have to remember that before wood and other fuels will burn they must be heated to their kindling points, the temperatures at which the fuel can easily combine with oxygen. (There must also be plenty of oxygen, which usually comes from the air.)

When a fireman squirts water on a burning wall he is putting the fire out in two ways.

The heat of the fire turns the water to steam. The expanding steam smothers the fire by shutting out the air needed by the blaze, and the fire dies down.

At the same time, the water cools the burning material. Cooling is the main thing that puts the fire out. The wood cannot burn, even with air around it, unless it is hot enough.

Fire extinguishers, such as those in public buildings, usually contain chemicals that form a gas that will not burn.

The gas spreads over the burning material, shuts out the air, and smothers the fire.

Thousands swarm into Bonelli Park for opening

Thousands of persons took advantage last weekend of nearly $9 million worth of new recreational facilities which were dedicated at Bonelli Park in San Dimas last weekend.

The new additions to the 2,000 acre regional park included a golf course, an equestrian complex and a recreational vehicle camping ground.

The dedication and the mild weather attracted nearly 40,000 visitors to the park Saturday and Sunday. Those who attended the ceremonies heard Supervisor Peter Schabarum describe Bonelli Park as a recreation area that "takes a back seat to none in the state."

Schabarum was joined in dedication ceremonies by officials from cities throughout the First District, by members of the county Parks and Recreation Commission and the staff of the county recreation department.

The dedication of the reconstructed 18-hole Mountain Meadows golf course was academic, however, since the course itself will not be open for play until Aug. 9. Parks officials said more time was needed to allow the grass to strengthen.

But other facilities did open on schedule. They included the equestrian center comprising training rings, stables and horse renting concession, and a $6 million South Shore development, which houses the equestrian trails.

In addition to the trails, that development provides picnic areas, group camping areas, sailboat launching ramps, three fishing piers, boat rentals, expanded parking and a headquarters building.

The recreational vehicle camping grounds, built on three knolls overlooking the reservoir, was developed under a contract by the VJRS Industries. It provides 189 parking stalls, picnic areas, a general store, swimming pool and attendant facilities.

Schabarum said a three-year tree planting program has been launched by the county. He said more than 14,000 trees already have been planted under that program.

Parks officials said that with most of the summer still ahead they estimated weekend attendance of nearly 40,000 in July and August would continue.

6 die in Cal State Fullerton shooting

FULLERTON (AP) — Six persons were reported killed and three wounded after a man toting a .22-caliber rifle walked into a university library and opened fire, authorities said.

The man, whose identity was not immediately available, fled from the scene but was apprehended moments later at the nearby Hilton Inn, police said. The gunman's wife apparently is employed at the hotel, authorities said.

Authorities at California State University at Fullerton said the shooting took place in the basement of an instructional media library. The victims, whose identities were not immediately available, were apparently employees of the university.

There was no known motive for the killings.

2 men held in slaying of Mafia figures

DETROIT (AP) — Two men were in custody today following the Sunday night slayings of three reputed Detroit Mafia figures in the basement of the home of one victim.

Police say they are looking for a motive in the shooting deaths of Frank "Rah-Rah" Randazzo, 62, and Joseph Seregusa, 66, both of Detroit; and Nick Ditta, 69, of St. Clair Shores.

Police said they found the bodies of Randazzo and Seregusa in the basement of Randazzo's home on Detroit's east side. Both were shot in the chest.

Ditta, although wounded, managed to climb the basement stairs and call the emergency police number to report the shootings. He died a short time later at St. John's Hospital.

Police said the suspects were arrested when they went to a hospital in Madison Heights for treatment of minor stab wounds. Hospital officials called police.

KILLER LANDSLIDE

Side of a hill in Shimoda, Japan, covers railway tracks and houses after a landslide Sunday. Nine persons were reported killed, and about 30 homes destroyed.

Christians at gates of Tripoli

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Christians claimed today that their forces have overrun all Moslem strongholds in the Koura region of northern Lebanon and are "within grenade-throwing distance" of Tripoli, Lebanon's biggest Moslem city 60 miles north of Beirut.

A Palestinian communique reported that Syrian troops and tanks were "savagely shelling" the Nahr el Bared and Badawi refugee camps on the northern and eastern edges of Tripoli with artillery and rocket launchers.

The Palestinians also accused the Syrian army of attacking their forces and those of their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies in eastern and southern Lebanon as well as in the north.

Security and hospital sources estimated that more than 325 persons were killed in the past 36 hours on all fronts, raising the estimated toll for 15 months of civil war to more than 32,000 dead.

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, Prince Saud al-Faisal, arrived in Damascus with a representative of Yasir Arafat's Al Fatah Palestinian guerrillas, Hani Hassan. Also in the Syrian capital was a delegation representing all major Christian militias in the Lebanese war.

Arafat appealed Sunday to Egypt, Libya and Iraq for immediate troop reinforcements but got nothing.

The Moslems are "caught in the jaws of a nutcracker," the Palestinian leader said in a message to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. "There is deterioration, and the situation is worse than you think."

Glenn to open convention

NEW YORK (AP) — John Glenn, one of America's keynoters in space, opens the Democratic National Convention tonight as a senator from Ohio and a name on an exclusive list: one of those who might be chosen as Jimmy Carter's running mate.

It's been more than 14 years since Glenn took the 4-hour, 55 minute ride in a tiny capsule that pulled America even in the space race and made Glenn a national hero.

The passing years have been kind. Glenn, who was 40 when he became the first American to orbit the earth, still has the trim figure of an astronaut. His hair is a little thinner, but age hasn't slowed him down.

He's able to say now that he can go into a crowd and nobody asks him anymore if he drinks the orange-flavored beverage that astronauts took into space.

People began talking about Glenn running for office while he was still getting the tickertape treatment for the Feb. 20, 1962, flight.

As a senator, Glenn has concentrated on energy legislation. He has fought against removing federal controls from oil prices. He has been active in trying to strengthen government controls over handling of nuclear materials. He has been pushing for laws to increase incentives for home and factory improvements to save energy.

Those making up lists of potential vice presidential nominees to be considered by Carter consistently have included Glenn. Carter and his emissaries have talked with the senator.

Carter free of usual horsetrading in choice of VP running mate

NEW YORK (AP) — With Democrats displaying rare unity in the hours before tonight's opening session of their national convention, Jimmy Carter enjoyed the kind of political strength usually reserved for incumbent presidents and concentrated on avoiding divisive floor fights and on choosing a compatible running mate.

Needing no help to win the presidential nomination, Carter was free to ignore traditional convention horse trading in his search for a vice presidential nominee.

Carter interviewed Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and then praised the senator's youth and experience but gave no indication where he might rank among the seven men from among whom the former Georgia governor has said he would choose a running mate.

Also on Carter's schedule was an interview with Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois.

Carter already has talked with the other five prospects. He has said he doesn't expect to announce his choice until after the convention votes on the presidential nomination on Wednesday night.

The Democrats approached the start of their 37th national convention in an atmosphere of harmony that contrasted sharply with the bitterness and brawling that marked the 1968 and 1972 sessions. The Democratic unity also was in contrast to the down-the-wire battle between President Ford and Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, whose undeclared candidacy for the presidency was once considered a major potential obstacle to Carter, urged his state's delegation to back the former Georgia governor.

Humphrey also met with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, who remains a candidate for the presidential nomination while acknowledging that Carter is certain of a first ballot victory.

Asked if he would release his delegates, numbering a bit over 300, Brown said, "I will certainly not force them into not voting for me."

Asked if he were interested in the vice presidential nomination, Brown said, "You can squelch that one."

Brown and Humphrey told reporters after their meeting that they spent "only a little time" discussing convention politics.

Carter arrived at the convention with 19 primary victories to his credit and with an Associated Press delegate poll showing him with 1,653 votes, far more than the 1,505 required for the nomination.

Seldom in recent political history has a potential presidential nominee had so much freedom of choice.

"I've had a unique opportunity in not having to respond to the pressures of special interest groups," Carter said Sunday. He was speaking of issues, but the implication extended throughout his campaign.

"I've gone directly to the people because the powerful political figures didn't have any confidence that I might win," he said on a television panel show.

The vice presidential selection has emerged as the major unresolved issue at the convention in the absence of a race for the top of the ticket and the calm of a party platform so secure that it's already printed and bound and in the hands of each delegate.

Carter's personal public opinion pollster, Patrick Caddell, has concluded that no particular vice presidential prospect would ap-

Carter mobilizes army for convention war—what war?

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter is equipped for a small political war on the floor of the Democratic National Convention even though no one else has the votes to mount more than a skirmish.

The Carter campaign has spent a total of $350,000 on its convention operations, including those at Madison Square Garden where the votes are taken and at the Americana Hotel where Carter is staying, spokesman Peter Emerson said Sunday.

At the convention hall, Carter's forces have four trailers manned by 25 persons, 50 telephones and 44 floor workers, including 30 VIP floor leaders. These VIPs, empowered to speak for the Carter campaign and spotted around the convention floor, include Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, whom Carter bested in the presidential primaries, and Frank Mankiewicz, who was Sen. George McGovern's press secretary during the 1972 presidential campaign.

But the big artillery in the Carter arsenal is a private telephone system at the Garden. There are 20 green telephones in a network throughout the hall. Each is connected directly to a telephone in one of the Carter trailers a dozen yards off the convention floor.

At each state delegation there are red telephones to link the delegation chairman with the podium, and a white telephone which is part of a system set up by the Democratic National Committee to link all parts of the floor, key party officials, and candidate and ex-candidate headquarters inside Madison Square Garden.

The Carter people also have their own internal telephone system between their rooms at the Americana and their trailers at the Garden. And they have the ability to join their system to others for conference calls.

No other candidate has his own telephone system on the floor.

Carter's trailers are gathered, covered-wagon-style, to form an angular compound. Two are devoted to the delegate-management operation and are equipped with folding chairs and the green telephones. Another is for Carter's press operation and a fourth is an air-conditioned VIP lounge, with two love seats, an arm chair, and a bathroom. All the trailers have three televisions sets to monitor the three commercial networks at once.

Fifteen feet away is the lone trailer for California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., the holdout presidential aspirant. Other than Brown stickers on the windows and a flock of telephones gathering dust inside, the Brown trailer was deserted all day Sunday.

Carter's spokesmen admit there appears to be little need for all this paraphernalia, but they point out that it was designed in February, the month of the first primary when there were more Democratic presidential candidates and potential candidates than there are buttons on a Touch-tone phone.

Normally such a telephone set-up is used to keep a candidate's delegates in line and give them instructions about how he wishes them to vote on any platform, rules or credentials fights.

Rather than dismantle the system as Carter eliminated his opponents and with them most of the controversy in the party, his campaign decided to keep it to avoid surprises and help quell rumors. The Carter staff is convinced that the aisles, some only six feet wide, will be virtually impassable during convention sessions and they count on the telephones to stem waves of rumor that sweep such gatherings.

The other telephones on the convention floor are a key component of the Democratic National Committee's plan to end each session by midnight, so they can put their show on during prime television time.

Officials expect to contain blaze

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Officials expected to have full control by this morning of a blaze that blackened 5,000 acres of brush and timber and destroyed 10 structures in the San Bernardino Mountains.

The expected control time was set at 7 a.m., a California Division of Forestry spokesman said early today. He said the cause of the fire was still under investigation.

Three firemen reportedly received minor injuries during the three-day blaze and a fourth remained hospitalized in San Bernardino with a back injury he received Friday.

Cher gives birth to son—Elijah

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Cher Allman was resting comfortably at Cedars-Sinai Hospital today after giving birth to a healthy seven-pound, six-ounce boy.

The infant, Elijah Blue Allman, was born Saturday five hours after Cher entered the hospital.

A spokesman said Sunday Cher was "feeling well and doing fine." He said her husband, singer Greg Allman was with her during labor and delivery and visited with her Sunday.

Cher is expected to leave the hospital Tuesday or Wednesday, the spokesman said.

Sinatra weds in Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Ronald Reagan and Spiro Agnew were there. So were Kirk Douglas and Gregory Peck. Even Leo Durocher made a rare public appearance.

It was all for the wedding of Frank Sinatra. He was married Sunday to Barbara Marx, once the wife of Zeppo Marx.

The best man at the ceremony, held at the 1,000-acre desert estate of former U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain Walter Annenberg, was Freeman Gosden, 77, who played Amos in the old "Amos 'n Andy" radio show.

Beatrice Korshak, wife of Los Angeles attorney Sidney Korshak, was matron of honor. Sinatra had previously said that he and his wife would marry Oct. 10 in Beverly Hills.

Car theft ring bust in Mexico

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eleven persons have been arrested in connection with the theft of about 3,000 automobiles and pickup trucks in Southern California during the past two years.

Bill Robinson, spokesman for the San Diego Police Department, said Sunday the arrests were made by Mexican Police last week.

Robinson said the ring, believed to be one of the biggest vehicle theft rings ever broken in the area, operated marketing outlets in Mexico City and other metroplitan areas across the border. He said most of the vehicles, including about 2,000 late model pickups, had been reported missing from the Los Angeles area.

The suspects reportedly are from the San Diego and Tijuana areas.

FLOWER FOR PAT

Former President Richard Nixon, arriving at a Long Beach hospital Sunday with a gardenia for his wife, extends the flower for a reporter to smell. He said he picked it from a bush at his wife's bedroom window at their San Clemente home.

Pat's progress encouraging to Nixon family

LONG BEACH (AP) — The Nixon family's optimism is rising with reports that Pat Nixon is out of the critical stage in her recovery from a partially paralyzing stroke.

Former President Nixon said late Sunday as he left Long Beach Memorial Hospital that he was "encouraged" by his wife's progress.

Nixon and daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower left the hospital after spending more than four hours with Mrs. Nixon. It was the longest visit since she was hospitalized Thursday a day after she was stricken.

Earlier Sunday doctors announced that Mrs. Nixon was no longer in the critical stage, but warned the danger was not yet over.

"Due to the nature of the stroke, there is always a chance of a patient's condition suddenly deteriorating," said a hospital spokeswoman.

"Mrs. Nixon's blood pressure is responding to treatment and remains within normal imits," she said.

Dr. Jack M. Mosier, a neurologist treating the 64-year-old former first lady, said Sunday that it would be two to three months before doctors know if she has suffered any permanent damage.

He noted she was feeling more comfortable Sunday, although there was still weakness in her left side and some slurring of speech.

Sunday began with Mrs. Nixon moved from her windowless hospital room to one with a distant ocean view.

The room was the same one in which her husband was treated for phlebitis in 1974.

Told that his wife had been moved to his old room, Nixon said, "That room holds some rather unpleasant memories for me but in the end I finally was able to come out of it and so that perhaps perks up her spirit a little bit. It may be a lucky room.

"I think she is passing through the crisis... maybe has passed through it — time will tell — but most important now comes the long haul and that is a difficult time."

Nixon said his wife may require therapy for several months.

To cheer his wife, Nixon brought a special gift Sunday which he displayed for reporters. It was a waxy and fragrant gardenia — one plucked from the bush at his wife's bedroom window at their San Clemente estate.

Third Viking landing site found rough

PASADENA (AP)—Early photos show the third proposed Viking 1 landing site may be too rough for a safe touchdown, but scientists say later pictures and other analyses may yet uncover a smooth landing surface along the deeply-cratered "Western Front" of Mars.

A spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Sunday that preliminary pictures of the latest site revealed rough ground similar to the rugged terrain at two previously rejected landing sites.

But he emphasized that more photos and radar studies could reveal a safe spot.

Scientists said other new pictures obtained Sunday showed some sites in the previously uncharted region similar to the broad plains on the Moon that accomodated earlier spacecraft landings.

The new photographs show a surface of broad plains of hardened lava flows, called mare, like those on the Moon, as well as widely spaced craters.

"The plains are rather dull and very, very similar to the lunar mare. They cover the whole area," said Mike Carr, director of orbiting photography for the Viking mission.

Based on pictures disclosing a system of channels, scientists speculated that shallow currents of water once meandered across the area.

"I'm not disturbed by what we see in the eastern coverage," said Carr, referring to the eastern portion of the area scientists have named the West-Northwest region.

Dr. Harold Masursky, head of the Viking site certification team, said there was a chance that some of the sediment was smooth enough to support a landing.

NWLF bomb threats just a 'diversion'....

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New World Liberation Front's threat to bomb two Pacific Gas & Electric Co. sites was only a diversionary tactic, says a self-proclaimed spokeswoman.

The NWLF's warning that three bombs had been planted at two PG&E sites in the San Francisco area was part of "a war of nerves," Ande Lougher, 25, said Saturday just before the NWLF's midnight deadline passed without any reported bombings.

Miss Lougher of the People's Information Relay-1, an above-ground NWLF support group, said the diversion was created to allow "work on other projects."

She was subpoenaed Saturday night by FBI agents after she read the NWLF communique to a coffee house audience in the Haight-Ashbury district. She said she would honor the subpoena which ordered her to appear before a federal grand jury Wednesday to answer questions about the NWLF.

...then ka-boom!

ROSEVILLE (AP) — Police say an "explosive device" went off late Sunday night behind a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. office in Roseville, but damage was rated as light. No one was hurt.

Police said the blast occurred at 10:51 p.m. No one was in the office building. It was not announced whether any note was found, or any warning given beforehand. The FBI was called in immediately.

Office manager Fred White said, "Some kind of explosive device was placed. . .damage was to the back door and a little bit of the roof. It spread a little dust around inside the office. Not much damage."

The blast occurred a week after the terrorist New World Liberation Front issued a warning that three bombs were timed to explode by last Saturday at two PG&E sites in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Roseville is about 95 miles northeast of San Francisco and not considered to be in the Bay Area.

No Bay Area PG&E blasts were detonated. An NWLF source said over the weekend that the NWLF's threat to PG&E was a "diversion" to allow the terrorists to work on other unspecified "projects."

The threat of a week ago warned PG&E employes to stay away from work until after July 10 for their own safety.

Start of Harris trial may have slight delay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although opening statements and testimony are scheduled to begin today in the William and Emily Harris trial, there could be a last minute delay.

The defendants, one-time fugitive traveling companions of Patricia Hearst, want to revisit the scene of their alleged crimes before proceedings begin.

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler, who has scheduled a special early morning hearing on the matter indicated he would allow either the Harrises or their lawyers to take the requested trip to Mel's Sporting Goods store in Inglewood.

The visit would require at least a day delay in the trial.

The sheriff's department has discouraged the judge from allowing the Harrises themselves out of jail for the journey, insisting it would be a security risk.

The defense team says it needs to survey the store area, taking measurements of key points in order to present adequate evidence in the Harrises' behalf.

It was at Mel's on May 16, 1974, that Miss Hearst admittedly fired two machine guns, starting a chain of events which led to her indictment with the Harrises on charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault.

The newspaper heiress, awaiting sentencing on a San Francisco bank robbery conviction, is not standing trial with the Harrises, but her name is expected to arise frequently in their trial.

She has testified that she was the lone gunwoman who fired wildly from a waiting van to provide cover for the Harrises' getaway from a shoplifting.

The Harrises don't deny they were at the sporting goods store — nor do they deny most of the other events alleged in their 11-count indictment. But they say they committed no crimes.

They are charged with kidpnaping two men, stealing three vehicles, and committing six assaults with a deadly weapon.

Mrs. Harris, 29, who is acting as her own co-counsel, plans to join her attorney in delivering opening remarks to the jury. She has said she will testify in her own defense and it is likely that Harris, 31, also will take the stand.

Skeleton of 19th-century soldier found in Barstow

BARSTOW (AP) — Children playing in a backyard have discovered a skeleton authorities say is apparently that of a 19th century cavalry soldier.

San Bernardino County Museum officials said Sunday they believed the cavalryman died sometime between 1860 and 1880.

They reached that conclusion after examining square nails used in the crude wooden coffin, some wooden buttons and shreds of blue clothing.

Two boys playing in a backyard in this Mojave Desert community had found the skeleton lying in an open casket filled with sand.

The grave was only 16 to 18 inches deep, officials said, and the coffin was discovered as winds shifted the sand covering it.

Coroner's deputies said it was unlikely the remains will ever be identified.

Brown may enter name and then withdraw it

NEW YORK (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, the last remaining challenger to Jimmy Carter's claim on the Democratic presidential nomination, says he's staying in the race even though his defeat is virtually certain.

Arriving in New York with his home state delegation Sunday, Brown said his name will be entered for consideration when balloting for a nominee begins Wednesday night. But there were indications he would withdraw it before the roll call ends. And he left no doubt he would work to put Carter in the White House.

Some of Brown's supporters in the California delegation said they were ready to help nominate Carter and then work for his election.

"My name will be in nomination," Brown told reporters at John F. Kennedy Airport. "I don't think it's appropriate just to walk away because the process is rather inevitable.

"If you embark upon a campaign, people work very hard for you. Just to walk away from them isn't my idea of the Democratic party as I know it."

Brown, who now has 302 delegates according to The Associated Press' tally, did not say if he would leave his name in contention after the balloting begins. Carter now holds 1,653 delegate votes, more than the 1,505 he needs for the nomination.

But Brown supporters indicated he would withdraw his name at some point during the balloting.

Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., said before Brown arrived that the California governor would allow his name to be placed in nomination.

"But then I would not be surprised if he released all his delegates right afterward," the junior senator from Brown's home state said.

Others close to Brown indicated he might pull his name off the ballot before Carter reaches the magic 1,505 figure, perhaps throwing his votes to Carter and putting him over the majority mark.

Two boys held in thefts from Ontario crypts

Two Ontario teen-agers have been arrested in connection with the theft of 10 police badges and airman's wings from crypts at the Bellevue Mausoleum, 1240 W. G St.

Officers indicated an unidentified informant led them to the two boys, 13 and 14, in the theft which occurred last weekend.

Police had reported that thieves used a heavy tool to pry badges and wings of the policemen and airmen from their crypts. Value of the badges and wings was about $250, but sentimental value was much greater, officers said.

Two more teen-agers were being sought by officers who believe a total of four youths were involved in the theft.

Hit by bullets

A young Pomona man told police early Sunday that he was walking in the 1300 block of S. Gibbs Street when he was struck in a fusillade of shots fired from a passing car.

The victim, Steven M. Duenas, 18, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where it was determined that he had been hit twice in the lower left leg. Both bullets, believed to be .22-caliber, passed through the leg without striking the bone and duenas was released after treatment.

The victim said he was shot by a youth who leaned from the car, a white sedan, and fired approximately 10 rounds. Several of the bullets struck cars parked nearby.

Arby's robbed

A lone gunman vaulted the counter at Arby's Roast Beef restaurant at 1175 E. Holt Ave. and robbed the place late Sunday night, POMONA police reported.

Two employes, Priscilla Lee Hancock and Maureen Anna Mageean, were working when the man entered shortly before 10 o'clock. One was locked in a back room and the other was forced to lie on the floor when the robber prepared to flee.

He was white, about 35, 5 feet 6 weighing 145 pounds. He had dark-brown hair and wore a brown-and-yellow shortsleeved shirt, dark trousers and tennis shoes. He was armed with a nickel plated automatic.

Girl wins fight

A 16-year-old girl fought off a man who attempted to rape her in her Ontario home Saturday night.

The 16-year-old girl told officers that the man was waiting for her in the den when she returned home about 10 p.m. He scratched her arms and attempted to disrobe her, but she fought him off by kicking him, police added.

The man allegedly had taken a fur stole and television set from the bedroom prior to the attack. He had gained entry to the home through an unlocked window, police said.

Officers described the suspect as white, 6 feet 1, 190 pounds, wearing blue jeans and a t-shirt.

Demonstrators gather at Demo convention

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrats gathered here for their presidential nominating convention awaited messages today from groups as varied as Friends of the Earth and the Committee for Anti-Legal Tender.

The demonstration fare follows Sunday's march and rally against abortion that drew only a fraction of the 100,000 supporters police were told to expect.

Since demonstrations go hand in hand with political conventions, the 10,000-strong Right to Life throng shared the streets around Madison Square Garden with birth control and abortion advocates as well as gay activists.

In steamy summer weather, several hundred men and women marched under the banner of the New York State Coalition of Gay Organizations from Greenwich Village's Washington Square Park uptown to the national convention site.

"I'm ashamed, I'm appalled by my colleagues — Democrats and Conservatives — that they could ignore a constituency made up of 10 per cent of the population," state Human Rights Commissioner Werner Kramarsky said, referring to homosexuals.

Coalition spokesman Arthur Goodman said the march was to dramatize gay opposition to sodomy laws still on the books of many states. And one marcher, Doris Lunden, 40, of Manhattan, declared:

"I'm mad that there's no gay rights plank in the the Democratic platform. I'm mad about housing discrimination. I'm just mad."

Car rental firms OK price fix order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three largest passenger car rental companies in the nation have signed consent orders prohibiting them from trying to squeeze out competitors and fix prices among themselves, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC said today that Hertz Corp., Avis Rent-A-Car System, Inc., and National Car Rental System, Inc., have agreed to the consent orders.

The FTC has unanimously accepted the agreements signed by the rental firms, but could withdraw its approval later.

The consent order is the result of an FTC complaint filed more than a year ago, alleging that Hertz, Avis and National had conspired since at least 1968 to monopolize airport car rentals, forcing customers to pay inflated rates.

In its complaint, the FTC said the three companies held 96 per cent of the airport auto rental market in 1973.

Officials noted the consent order does not signify admission by the companies to any of the allegations.

Under the order, the FTC said all three companies will be prohibited from conspiring to monopolize any portion of the passenger automobile rental business or conspiring to fix or stabilize prices.

The firms also will be prohibited from obtaining agreements from airports that would hinder would-be competitors from locating on airport property and will be barred from providing false information to airport authorities in an effort to adversely affect competitors.

In its complaint, the FTC had accused the three firms of submitting common bid specifications and contracts for airport concessions, fixing prices, entering into anticompetitive agreements with auto makers for advertising subsidies and harassing small competitors.

Such action, the FTC complaint alleged, meant that customers were forced to pay "substantially higher prices," the supply of rental cars at airports was reduced, profits for the three firms were excessive and smaller companies were blocked from entering the airport rental car business.

Mexico condemns commando rescue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Mexico told the United Nations today that Israel's commando rescue of more than 100 hostages from Uganda a week ago creates "precedents of incalculable danger for all civilized coexistence."

In a letter to the president of the Security Council, Mexican Ambassador Roberto de Rosenzwig Diaz denounced the Israeli action as "a flagrant violation" of the U.N. Charter and "universally accepted principles of international law."

Mexico was subjected to a tourist boycott by American Jewish organizations last winter after voting for a U.N. General Assembly resolution equating Zionism, the movement for a Jewish national homeland, with racism.

The boycott was called off in March after Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa went to Israel to explain the vote and President Luis Echeverria invited a group of American Jewish leaders to Mexico to discuss the issue. Rabasa resigned during the controversy.

The Mexican Hotel Association estimated its members had 100,000 cancellations during the boycott and lost at least $9 million.

preciably help or hurt Carter's own chances of winning the fall election, campaign aides said.

Carter revealed Sunday that he is taking unprecedented steps to keep that sort of thing from happening to him. He said he has requested financial and medical information from everyone on his list of possible running mates.

The accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. was engaged to go over the financial data, including tax returns, Carter said, and "they have found nothing to cause me concern."

Carter said Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, one of the finalists, reported he suffers from a mild case of high blood pressure and takes medication for it.

Carter said this "is a factor but not an over-riding factor" in his decision. Later, after meeting with Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, Carter said Rodino's age, 67, also would be a factor but not an over-riding one.

Carter also has interviewed Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Sen. John Glenn of Ohio in his search for a ticket-mate. Church and Stevenson round out the seven finalists.

Since all seven are members of either the U.S. Senate or House, this might be seen as a concession to balance the ticket. Carter, a former governor but with no experience in federal government, campaigned in the primaries as a critic of the Washington bureaucracy.

Tonight's opening session of the convention was to be largely ceremonial, with keynote speeches by Glenn and Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas. Tuesday night, the platform will be presented by a procession of Democratic political stars including Muskie, Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Barring some unexpected development, Carter will be nominated on Wednesday and his running mate on Thursday, followed by Carter's acceptance speech.

Barbara Jordan keynote speaker

NEW YORK (AP) — When Barbara Jordan speaks, her words flow in precise, measured tones far closer to the Queen's English than to the dialect of the dilapidated section of Houston where she was raised.

Miss Jordan, the first black woman elected to Congress from the South, says her speaking voice comes naturally to her, and she can remember using no other. In fact, her two sisters who are school teachers in Houston speak with the same accent.

The 40-year-old, second-term congresswoman from Houston is one of two keynote speakers tonight at the Democratic National Convention, sharing the duty with Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, the former astronaut.

Miss Jordan gained national attention two years ago with a speech during the House Judiciary Committee's debate on whether to impeach Richard M. Nixon.

In her deep, quiet but powerful tones, she discussed the meaning that the Constitution of the United States had for her and said, "I am not going to sit here and be an idle spectator to the diminution, the perversion and the subversion of the Constitution."

She recited a list of presidential actions she said represented "a course of conduct the Constitution cannot tolerate," and stated, "If these offenses are beyond the reach of the Constitution, then perhaps that 18th Century document should be abandoned to a 20th Century paper shredder."

Asked Sunday about whether she feels pressured to produce as memorable a keynote, she said, "Let it be understood that Barbara Jordan has no illusions that her keynote speech will be remembered any more than anyone else's."

Congresswoman Jordan has a reputation of maintaining a certain independence from the other black members in the House and the group of women in Congress, although she is considered strong on women's issues.

When the National Women's Political Caucus held a national convention in Houston several years ago, Miss Jordan had to be persuaded to talk even briefly to the group.

She also is known for her ability to gravitate toward the centers of power in Congress, and until recently she frequently sat in the House chamber near Rep. Wayne Hays, the Ohio Democrat who chaired the House Administration Committee.

One former Texas reporter who covered Miss Jordan when she was a member of the Texas Senate said that the congresswomen's occasional support for issues unpopular with fellow liberals shows "she is effective at getting elected to office.

BARBARA JORDAN

"If she didn't support those things, she would be citizen Barbara Jordan, not Rep. Barbara Jordan."

Miss Jordan was graduated magna cum laude from all-black Texas Southern University in Houston. She received a law degree from Boston University.

After finishing law school, she worked for a judge in Houston, where her father was a Baptist minister and a warehouse clerk. She was the first black elected to the Texas Senate.

Ford staff shaken up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is making major changes in his big public relations staff a month before the Republican National Convention.

David Gergen, a veteran of the Nixon administration, is being made director of communications, replacing Margita White, who has been nominated for a place on the Federal Communications Commission.

For the moment, Ford is without a television adviser. Former CBS producer Robert Mead, who held that position since Ford took office, resigned during the weekend. Although Mead had been unhappy about his working arrangements at the White House for some time, the immediate cause of his departure was widespread criticism of the Public Broadcasting System's live television coverage of last week's White House state dinner for visiting Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain.

ARRIVES AT CITY HALL — Queen Elizabeth II, flanked by Mayor and Mrs. Kevin White, arrives at Boston City Hall for a luncheon. Behind the Queen some of the crowd demonstrated with placcards urging an end to British control over Northern Ireland. Police estimated the crowd at 100,000 in the City Hall Plaza. The British royal family visited Boston for the day.

Thousands cheer Queen in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The Founding Fathers would have been surprised but pleased, said Queen Elizabeth II, as she heard the cheers of thousands at the spot where colonists first read a Declaration of Independence from Britain.

They would have liked the idea, she said, "that eventually we came together again as free peoples and friends and defended together the very ideals for which the American Revolution was fought."

Her reception was certainly different from anything King George III would have received when Massachusetts was a rebellious colony.

Spectators lined the route of her motorcade tour, stood on rooftops and looked from windows to catch a glimpse of the only reigning monarch ever to visit this city.

Banners saying "Welcome Liz" were strung from apartment buildings and cyclists pedaled uriously to keep pace with the royal limousine.

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, stood and waved to a sea of well-wishers from the balcony of the Old State House, where the Declaration of Independence was read for the first time to the people of Boston.

"We could think of no one person who could do a Bicentennial greater honor by their presence than the queen," said Boston Mayor Kevin H. White as he welcomed her.

Queen Elizabeth began her visit in the company of the 200-year-old frigate USS Constitution. Old Ironsides sailed alongside as the royal yacht Britannia glided into Boston Harbor, where rebellious colonists dumped British tea into the water 200 years ago.

The queen toured the Constitution, and as she left, 16 crew members, resplendent in Navy uniforms of 1812, jumped into the lower rigging and gave three cheers.

Then the queen visited the Old North Church for a morning service.

The church is best known for its "One if by land, Two if by sea" lanterns that dispatched Paul Revere on his midnight ride to warn the colonists that British troops were coming.

The most colorful event of the day took place in front of historic Faneuil Hall, as military bands and nearly 100 militia companies, dressed in full revolutionary garb, paraded before the queen.

In this heavily Irish-American city, the only demonstration against the queen came near City Hall where a group of about 75 protestors carried signs calling for the removal of English influence from Northern Ireland.

Later, aboard the yacht, the queen knighted the man who had arranged her trip through the United States. It was apparently the first time knighthood has been bestowed in America.

John Moreton, British minister in the Washington embassy, became Sir John Moreton.

Miss Debra Gale Thompson of West Covina and Michael Dale England of Pomona were married in the First Baptist Church of Covina.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of West Covina and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William England of Pomona recited their vows in an evening, double-ring ceremony read by the Rev. Jack Loo.

MRS. MICHAEL ENGLAND

Honor attendant was Mrs. Nella Baker of Covina, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Jeanne Rough, Becky Bass and Debbie Prothero, all of West Covina, Mrs. Cindy Stapleton, La Verne, and Mrs. Margie Barber, San Dimas.

Standing as best man was Scott Jacobs of Isla Vista. Ushers were Patrick England, Pomona, Mark Stapleton, La Verne, Gordon Akers, San Diego, Rick Landorf, La Verne, and Dale Overholt, Pomona.

The flower girl was Michelle Baker, niece of the bride, and the ring bearer was Tyler Gabriel of Covina.

Following the rite, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. When the couple returns from a wedding trip to New York and the Virgin Islands, the newlyweds will make their home in Covina.

When buying sunglasses, make sure there are no bubbles or flaws. These will distort vision. Entirely plastic lenses and frames are the safest of all nonprescription glasses. They stand up to impact better.

Greener pastures

Americans haven't shed their pioneer spirit — they're still migrating to greener pastures. Commenting on the phenomenon, the July Reader's Digest says the trend today is away from urban locales to rural areas, chiefly the South and Southwest.

Mom in school?

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband left me a short time ago and I'm finding it very tough trying to support my baby. My mother has offered to keep the baby during the day if I'll go back to school. This seems like a backward step and I wonder what effect it would have on my child. Since I don't have a decent job, I'm tempted. I can't afford a nursery school so I don't have much choice, unless I latch onto another man. — W.Y.

Dear W.Y.: You're fortunate to have a mother who can help you out. There are more than 9 million children living with only mothers. Many of these young women are finding it extremely difficult to enter the job market. Only about 15 per cent have some college education.

Your chances for getting a job are much better if you have training and skill. It seems to me you and your baby have everything to gain by your returning to school.

Even if you were financially able to leave your baby in a nursery school, it would be most unwise, unless your baby is at least three years old. I think most experts agree that a child is far better off being cared for at home until he is three. If you can attend school near your home, the chances are that you'd be able to see much more of your child than if you were working on a 9 to 5 job. The more time you can be with your baby during these years, the better it will be.

It would be unfair to any man, to you and to your child, to use the man only as a walking checkbook.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm in good health and in my early 40s but I have such a fear of dying that I find it hard to get to sleep. I know I probably won't die in my sleep and that my fear is irrational but it's a constant source of depression. This obsession started around my 40th birthday. Is this a normal part of growing older? Should I do something about it? I haven't even discussed it with my wife. — B.T.

Dear B.T.: Everyone fears death to some degree although a good many people deny or are not aware of their anxiety. What you describe is somewhat unusual, however, and I feel it's important for you to take some action.

There are courses in various colleges and churches to help people cope with this problem. There are also some good books on this subject and your clergyman or librarian may be able to suggest specific titles.

You might be interested to know that University of Iowa researchers interviewed 104 people who survived near-death situations and many described their emotional state as pleasurable. Twenty-three per cent even acknowledged joy.

You're going through a difficult period and may be suffering from what is called the male menopause. Often, the man who has thought of himself as successful during young adulthood becomes disenchanted with his work, his marriage and his life style. This is when he may begin to question the whole meaning of life, and may feel he's wasted much of it on superficial things. A fear of death may accompany this attitude.

To overcome what you call your obsession, it would be helpful to bring it out into the open and share it with others, especially with your wife. You may discover that she has similar feelings. Whether you're religious or not, if often helps to discuss death with those who have been close to the dying, such as priests, ministers or rabbis.

PWP sets Tuesday meeting

Pomona Valley Chapter of Parents Without Partners will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Imperial Savings and Loan Association, Claremont.

The Rev. Dan A. N. Bacot, acting director of Family Service Association in Riverside, will be the speaker. His topic is "Developing Self-Esteem." Mr. Bacot is a former Episcopal minister and has trained in "communications in inter-relationships."

Dick Renchard of Cucamonga has been named to fill the office of president recently vacated by Ethel Wilson of Claremont.

The chapter is open to all singles parents, whether separated, divorced or widowed, and regardless of child custody.

The local parlor won a $50 award for greatest increase in overall membership plus a $35 award for increase of membership in its category.

The parlor president, Mrs. Alphonse B. Fages, received a certificate as winner of the third state prize for personal recruitment of 16 new members. During the contest, Parlor 307 initiated 26 candidates from the west end of San Bernardino Country and the eastern section of Los Angeles County.

At the recent conclave in Newport Beach, Mrs. Donald E. Carpenter, a past president of the local parlor, was named supervising district deputy grand president.

Mrs. Edwin M. Greenwald, another local past president, becomes deputy grand president to Ontario Parlor 251.

Native Daughters participated in the Bicentennial celebration at the Los Angeles Country fairgrounds on July 4. Mr. and Mrs. Greenwald impersonated President and Mrs. George Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Fages represented Juan Bautista de Anza and wife, Mrs. Carpenter appeared as a Spanish lady and another past president of the chapter, Miss Elizabeth Zilles, was the official hostess as Pomona's Centennial queen.

Parlor members also served as hostesses at the Phillips Mansion during the recent Historical Society barbeque attended by 1,000 guests.

Dessert

It's fresh strawberry time. Beat ½ cup fresh, sliced strawberries with mixer or blender to give ¼ cup pulp. Fold pulp with 2 tablespoons of confectioners' sugar into one cup of whipping cream, whipped (that gives 2 cups). Spread over Angel Food, Pound or Hot Milk Sponge Cake for a delightful dessert.

'Hollywood's Greatest Love Stories'

Grace takes a second chance

By Dick Kleiner

It was spring along the Mediterranean coast, a time for romance. But Albert Alexandre Louis Pierre Grimaldi, better known as Prince Rainier III, had only thoughts of bitterness that spring of 1955.

His advisers had recently put an abrupt ending to his romance with Giselle Pascal, a beautiful young French actress, because they had discovered that she was sterile. Of course, one of the functions of any princess would be to bear heirs to the throne.

At first Rainier had argued, but eventually his sense of duty triumphed. He was left alone and embittered.

In 1955, MGM was having trouble with one of its brighest new stars, the blonde society girl, Grace Kelly. The studio has cast her in a costume epic, Quentin Durward, and she had flatly said she wouldn't do it. So they had suspended her, and she had gone back to her apartment in New York, taking advantage of the time off to refurnish.

Meanwhile, the men who were running the Cannes Film Festival wanted a big Hollywood name for the festival and had wired MGM and asked if they could arrange for Grace Kelly to attend. She decided to go, mostly because she had nothing else to do at the moment.

The next day Pierre Gallant, editor of Paris-Match, told her he would like to do a pictorial layout with her. She agreed, and Gallant got permission from his friend the prince to lend his castle for the undertaking.

The date was arranged. Grace, the photographers and Gallant were all welcomed warmly at the castle by the prince, but he dind't linger to watch the pictures being taken.

It was an unromantic beginning to one of the great romances of the century. They didn't see each other again for eight months, but behind the scenes there was activity.

GRACE AND RAINIER

The chief manipulators were Rainier's American chaplain, Father Francis Tucker, and some friends of the Kelly family in Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Austin.

Father Tucker had become deeply concerned about the mental well-being of the prince. The American priest could see how Rainier, who had always been cheerful and lighthearted had turned bitter and morose.

Tucker started considering ways and means of bringing the prince and Grace Kelly together again. It was then that the Austins entered the picture.

That summer of 1955, the Austins were vacationing in Cannes and eager to attend the Red Cross Gala, but were unable to find any tickets. Austin wrote a letter to Prince Rainier, introducing himself as "a great friend of Grace Kelly," and asked if there were any way he could buy two tickets to the gala. The prince turned the letter over to Father Tucker.

Tucker got two tickets, drove to Cannes himself to deliver them, and began to pump the Austins politely. The Austins, recognizing a pumping when they saw one, put two and two together and came up with the wrong conclusion.

They leaped to the happy belief that Rainier had fallen in love with Grace during that one brief meeting and had sent his chaplain to learn what he could of the girl's family. The began telling everyone about the budding royal romance. Inevitably, their story reached the press.

Rumors of Rainier's supposed infatuation with Grace Kelly began apearing in print late that summer. Rainier read them and was astounded. Miss Kelly read them and was just as stunned.

During the autumn that year, Tucker suggested that the prince might like to visit Los Angeles. The subject of Grace Kelly was never mentioned, but it was obviously on Tucker's mind and possibly on Rainier's mind as well. A trip was arranged, and Look magazine asked if they might send a photographer along with the prince to cover the trip. Someone had suggested to Look that it would be a sensational idea if, when Rainier reached Hollywood, he was photographed with a major star. The perfect star would be Grace Kelly. The lady was amenable, but she felt the whole thing was very curious.

She called up Look's West Coast editor in Hollywood and cautioned him against the magazine making too much of the whole situation. She said it was all merely a coincidence, and that they shouldn't try to read anything into it.

She wasn't at the studio when Rainier and his party arrived because she wanted to get back home for Christmas. But the machinations continued behind the scenes.

When Grace got back to Philadelhia on Dec. 23, she learned that the family would be having their holiday dinner with the Austins, and Prince Rainier would be there, too. Her consternation was understandable. Someone, she felt, seemed bent on throwing them together.

But she went dutifully with her family on Christmas Day. Prince Rainier and Grace were seated next to each other at the festive table and she introduced him to American Christmas customs. They spent much of the next two days together.

On the following day, Father Tucker asked John Kelly, Grace's father, if he might talk to him. The priest told the Philadelhia businessman that he was speaking for the prince, and asking for his daughter's hand in marriage.

Kelly said that he could not speak for Grace, but that she seemed to be quite fond of the prince.

"Then you think she would accept?" Tucker pressed.

"No guarantees," said the pragmatic Kelly. "But I'd say it's a pretty good bet."

On that slender assurance, Rainier proposed the next day and Grace immediately accepted.

The news had already leaked out, because Rainier and Grace had appeared very romantic when they dined at the Stock Club in New York. It was made official with a joint announcement, issued simulataneously in Philadelphia and Monaco, on Jan. 5, 1956.

They shared a feeling that the time was ripe for both of them to marry. Rainier's spoiled romance with Giselle Pascal had left him alone, contemplating a middle age with no one to share his princely estate. Grace was 26 and most of her friends had long since married and become mothers. She had her career, her fame, her money — but no husband, and no children.

Perhaps most important, they shared the same goals in life. They wanted a marriage that would last. He had that desire because he was a prince and even though his own parents had divorced, a divorce in princely circles was considered undesirable. For her, religious considerations made a solid marriage a necessity. Reared Roman Catholic she was particularly devout young woman and believed in the sanctity of marriage.

Olympics go on without Taiwan

IOC bows to Canada

MONTREAL (AP) — The Olympic Games go on in Montreal, but the hopes of the Taiwanese and the spirit of the Olympic movement lie buried beneath a million bushels of Canadian wheat.

Canada's vast overseas trading interests are the underlying factor behind one of the worst crises in Olympic history.

The International Olympic Committee bowed on Sunday to the Canadian government which, under pressure from Peking, refused to allow Taiwan's athletes into the country because they would not change their official name or their flag.

It is the first time since the Games began in 1896 that a host country has shut out athletes recognized by the IOC. Unless there is a last-minute change of heart, the Taiwanese will be missing from Saturday's opening ceremony.

Behind Canada's decision, which was sprung on the IOC only six weeks ago, is its wheat exporting deal with Communist China, its biggest overseas trading partner. Selling wheat to Peking has brought new prosperity to farmers in Western Canada.

Communist China applied last year for Olympic recognition, but with the qualification that Taiwan be kicked out of the Games. The IOC took no immediate action. Peking then made a direct approach to Canada and demanded that Taiwanese athletes be shut out during the Olympids.

The Canadians met them halfway and said the Taiwanese would be allowed in only if they dropped the name of the Republic of China—the name by which their national Olympic committee is recognized by the IOC. The Taiwanese refused.

The IOC, which prides itself on being above politics and dealing only with sport, pleaded with Canada to honor the Olympic charter and grant free entry to the Taiwanese.

But Sunday night, Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, admitted he had failed. The Canadians refused to move one inch.

The IOC Executive Board suggested to the Taiwanese that for the sake of the Olympics and the 4,000 athletes expected here, they march in the opening parade behind the Olympic flag and a plaque bearing the name of the IOC. The Taiwanese rejected the idea and said they would pull out of the Olympics if they were forced into such conditions.

Killanin, announcing the loss of the battle, accused the Canadians at a news conference of a breach of faith. He said they gave a written pledge six years ago that all sportsmen recognized by the IOC would be allowed in the Olympics without visas and raised no objection even last year when the subject of Taiwan was raised in conversation.

Killanin told a news conference: "The whole world is absolutely fed up with politicians interfering with sport."

For once the press laid down pencils and notebooks and applauded.

Montreal has survived as host city for the 1976 Olympics by the skin of its teeth. Some 18 months ago when Montreal was lagging behind schedule with the building of its stadium and the budget was getting out of hand, Killanin and his vice presidents seriously considered switching the Games to another country.

Killanin said if he had known then what would happen over Taiwan, he would have moved the Games.

"Taking into account the state of construction in Montreal, I could certainly have recommended moving the Games elsewhere," he said.

The main body of Taiwan's athletes are in the United States. They failed to get further. They were sacrificed to Canada's political needs because, Killanin said, thousands of athletes from all over the world would have suffered if the Olympics were canceled.

Now the IOC faces a new political threat—from the African countries which may demand an Olympic ban on New Zealand because a New Zealand rugby team is touring segregationist South Africa.

Olympic delegates are waiting to see how Abraham Ordia, president of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa, will act. He led the campaign which led to Rhodesia being shut out of the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

Two African countries, Tanzania and Mauritius have already announced they are pulling out of the Games because of the New Zealand issue.

American reaction to the IOC's capitulation was predictable. "This is the beginning of the fall of the Olympic games," said Doug Roby of Detroit, long-time member of the IOC. "It is not just this issue but I see politics peeking in from several other windows. There is Tanzania's pullout because of the New Zealand matter. The Middle East is in turmoil.

"The situation becomes even more precarious when you consider that Moscow is scheduled to host the 1980 Games. I am deeply disappointed. We caved in to Canada. I think we should have stood up to them."

Philip Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and also a member of the IOC, called Sunday's action "pitiful" and added:

"This blatant and unwarranted action casts aside all of the Olympic principles and the code under which we are pledged to hold the Games. We have turned the Olympic Games into a competition between nations. Political power determines who can compete instead of a world competition as demonstrated by the skills of friendly nations."

Dodgers rally over Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Had Don Sutton known he would be pitching for the Los Angeles Dodgers in their game Sunday with the St. Louis Cardinals, his pregame activities would have been considerably different.

But after all, Burt Hooton had the starting call and Sutton, a member of the starting rotation, had not appeared in relief in about five years.

So before the game, played in near-100-degree temperatures, Sutton ran 2½ miles in the outfield and then rollicked with some teammates in a game of "slip-and-slide" on the artificial playing surface, which had been wetted down to cool it off.

The tiring effects of the unusual warmup by the 31-year-old veteran failed to show when he was called into action in the seventh inning. He held the Cardinals to one hit, a pinch home run by Bake McBride, and was credited with a victory as the Dodgers rallied for a 9-6 triumph.

Sutton was one of six starting pitchers who saw action for both teams in the free-scoring game which the Dodgers won by scoring seven times in the seventh inning.

After returning to the dugout from the slip-and-slide game, Sutton said, Manager Walter Alston informed him that an appearance was possible.

"Walt asked me, 'How would you feel about pitching today?' I said, OK skip. What could you say?" Sutton related.

Alston, who had relieved Hooton with another starter, Doug Rau, before bringing on Sutton, based his decision on the heat and the coming All-Star break.

"Sutton had three full days of rest and Rau was ready," Alston said. "With the heat, I didn't expect anyone to go nine. With the long All-Star break coming up, I thought it would be to his (Sutton's) benefit to stay in tune by going three."

The big blow in the Dodgers' seventh was a three-run homer by Reggie Smith, traded to the Dodgers by the Cardinals earlier this season.

Smith, who said he has "a lot of fond memories" of his playing days at Busch Stadium, didn't let sentimentality stand in the way of performance. He also hit home runs in each of the other two games of the series.

Showdown looms in Cinema 'Cap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Fifth Marine, winner of the recent $132,400 American Derby at Chicago, and Majestic Light, hero of the $165,450 Swaps Stakes here, head the probable line-up as 3-year-olds take center stage at Hollywood Park next Sunday. The setting, the $100,000-added Cinema Handicap at 1⅛ miles, could be a rematch of the Chicago Derby when Fifth Marine defeated Majestic Light. Santa Anita Derby winner An Act, consistent Double Discount and other sophomores are slated to compete.

The past weekend opened with a mild upset as Home Jerome won the $44,050 Lakes and Flowers Hanidcap and returned $11.20. As the second betting choice, Home Jermone beat favored Shirley's Champion by 2 lengths.

The next upset came in Sunday's $112,200 Vanity Hanidcap for mares and fillies. Miss Toshiba was the winner as the third fancy of a crowd of 37,630, with the big surprise being the fifth place finish of 3-1 favorite, Dahlia, the million-dollar mare.

Bastonera 11, the second betting favorite was second, a head back of the winning 4-year-old Miss Toshiba.

Miss Toshiba and Bastonera 11 each carried 120 pounds, Dahlia was high weight at 127 and has yet to win a race on a main dirt course. Her winnings of $1,540,639 have all been earned on grass tracks in Europe and the U.S.

"No real excuses — she just didn't fire," said jockey Bill Shoemaker of Dahlia.

Shoemaker at one stage got up to fourth, fell back to seventh and came on again to finish fifth in the field of 11.

Miss Toshiba is owned by Robert Sangster and trained by Tom Pratt, who said the biggest problem was whether to run the filly on the dirt for the first time in her career.

"After he win in the Wilshire, I talked it over with Fernando Toro and we decided it would be best to keep her on the grass. But since she had done almost all of her training on the dirt, I gave it added consideration. Then I looked at the nominations and thought about the $100,000 and decided to try it," Pratt said.

HARPER RESTRAINED

Baltimore's Tommy Harper is collared by Orioles' manager Earl Weaver (center) and coach Jim Frey Sunday after umpire Alan Clark (far right) called Harper out on a Nolan Ryan pickoff attempt in the eighth inning. Harper was ejected from game but Birds went on to win,

Birds sweep Angels

ANAHEIM (AP) — Three months ago, California manager Dick Williams felt it wasn't unreasonable to expect his team to finish in the first division in the American League West.

Now at the All-Star break and 52 losses in 87 games later, it is unreasonable.

"But," the Angel skipper reflected, "there's no reason why we can't finish ahead of Minnesota and Chicago. I'd say we're on a par with them."

However, the Angels don't appear to be on a par with the Baltimore Orioles.

The Birds, behind the pitching of Dave Pagan and Tippy Martinez and the home run bat of Reggie Jackson, dealt the Angels a 3-1 loss Sunday and sent Nolan Ryan reeling to his 10th loss, despite a 12-strikeout, five-walk performance.

It was the fourth straight win for the Orioles and their sixth in a row over California as they completed a sweep of the three-game series.

Following the All-Star break, the same two teams renew acquaintances Thursday night in BAltimore in the opener of a four-game set.

"I feel sorry for our pitchers," said Williams. "I've felt sorry all year and today I felt sorry for Nolan Ryan."

Jackson slugged his ninth homer following a Tim Nordbrook single in the first inning and it was enough to give Pagan his second victory of the year in his first starting assignment for the Birds since coming over from the New York Yankees in a 10-player deal June 15.

"You have to be on your toes against Ryan or you'll end up a statistic....a strikeout statistic." Jackson smiled. "I've paid my dues for that homer. I can remember striking out two and three times a game against Ryan."

Ryan's 12 strikeouts boosted his major league-leading total to 166 and it marked the sixth time this season and the 77th in his career that the flame-throwing veteran has fanned 10 or more in a game.

After Jackson propelled Baltimore into a quick 2-0 lead in the first, the Angels battled back for a run as Mario Guerrero singled. Dan Briggs doubled and Bobby Bonds lofted a sacrifice fly.

The Orioles added an insurance run in the eighth when Ken Singleton doubled to center and scored on a single by Terry Crowley.

Baltimore managed nine hits off Ryan with Nordbrook the only player to collect more than one. He had a pair of singles.

Dan Briggs doubled twice for the Angels.

ANGEL ANGLES — The Angels and Orioles go at it again Thursday night when they open a four-game series in Baltimore.

Relief pitcher John Verhoeven, the former La Verne College star, didn't see any action after his successful major league debut against the Indians last Tuesday. Verhoeven and his wife, Kathy, moved into a new home in Anaheim Saturday.

Williams said second baseman Jerry Remy, who has been sidelined with an injury, will probably be ready in Baltimore. He has been out about 15 days.

McCulloch signs Rams' contract

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Rams coach Chuck Knox has welcomed 20 veterans and 42 rookies to the opening of the club's summer training camp.

The 62 players were the first of 96 rostered players to report Sunday to the Rams' camp at California State University at Fullerton. Knox expects the remaining veterans to be on hand by Thursday.

The coach had dinner with the team Sunday evening and then spent several hours in meetings. The defending NFL Western Division champions are expected to begin twice daily workouts today.

The Rams signed six free agents, including former Long Beach prep and Southern Cal star Earl McCulloch. McCulloch, a wide receiver, was Rookie of the Year in the NFL while with the Detroit Lions and played six seasons with the Lions and New Orleans Saints before moving to the Portland Storm of the WFL last year.

The 30-year-old veteran has caught 124 passes for 2,319 yards and 19 touchdowns in his pro career.

Other free agents signed include offensive tackle Gene Ferguson of Norfolk State, guard Myke Horton of UCLA, linebacker Ron Davis of Boise State, tight end Phil Rowblicky of Oregon and offensive tackle Melvin Crenshaw of Nebraska.

The Rams also announced the addition of placekicker John Delaney from Nichols College, who was picked up in the supplemental draft.

Defensive lineman Ken Bordelon was sent to the Saints for an undisclosed draft choice. Bordelon was a fifth round draft choice from LSU.

The club waived Alvin White, who was claimed by New Orleans.

All-Star Game gets Mark Fidrych show

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If ABC, televising the All-Star game, ever wants to add some zing to the coverage, it could hang a microphone around the neck of young Mark Fidrych and tune in on the rookie pitcher's conversation with the baseball.

Fidrych, 9-2 with Detroit, will open for the American League in Tuesday night's 47th clash with the two leagues. He'll be opposed at the start by San Diego's sensational Randy Jones, who reached the All-Star break with a National League record 16 victories and only three losses.

Jones is just 26, but he's been around. He lost 22 games two years go, but turned that around by winning 20 last season. The fans are fimilar with the frizzy-haired left-hander.

But Fidrych is a new act. A 21-year-old right-hander, he has captivated Detroit fans with his exuberance. When he works, he thinks nothing of going down on all fours to smooth out the pitcher's mound to his specifications. He cheers for his fielders and perhaps most important are his exortations to the baseball.

Before he delivers the pitch, Fidrych discusses direction and location with the baseball. No one except the Tiger rookie knows if the ball answers him.

Can the expected capacity crowd of 61,000, including President Ford, expect the usual antics from the rookie who is nicknamed "The Bird"?

"I hope I won't change," he said. "It'll be the same game."

Fidrych will be only the second rookie pitcher to start an All-Star Game. The only other one was Dave Stenhouse of the Washington Senators, who pitched the first two innings in what developed into a 9-4 AL victory in 1962.

Those were the days when the Americans still held the upper hand in All-Star competition. Since that 1962 victory, the AL has won only once while the Nationals have taken a dozen games for an over-all 27-18-1 edge in the series.

Fidrych, a cool customer, says he feels no pressure about starting the big game.

"What kind of pressure can there be,?" he said. "It'll be just the same kind of nervousness as before any game."

Maybe Mark won't be nervous but you could bet some AL officials will be. Recent NL domination of the All-Star series has been a growing source of embarrassement for the Americans.

"I am sick and tired of the National League beating us," said AL Manager Derrell Johnson. "We'll use the best players who give us the chance to win. I think we have the pitchers who can do the job they're suppose to do—beat the other league."

Johnson's roster included one last minute change. Oakland second baseman Phil Garner was added to the AL squad to replace rookie Willie Randolph of the New York Yankees, who is nursing an injured knee.

Randolph will be on hand for a pre-game bow, but another casuality, Atlanta pitcher Andy Messersmith, won't be. Messersmith, who was selected for the National League's squad by Manager Sparky Anderson begged off with a hamstring injury and was replaced by teammate Dick Ruthven. But the injured Braves' ace was well enough to pitch eight innings Saturday night against the New York Mets.

While both teams were scheduled to take a pre-game look at Veterans Stadium in brief workouts today, Marvin Miller, executive director for the Players Association, had a closed-door conference with all of the player representatives to discuss the status of contract negotiations. There are still some 40 major leaguers who have not signed 1976 contracts and unless some settlement is reached, they will be free agents in October under terms of an arbitrator's decision and two Federal Court rulings.

BATTING — Willie Montanez, Braves, drove in six runs, three of them with an eighthinning double that gave Atlanta a 9-8 victory over the New York Mets.

Sandra Palmer sets up Open showdown

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sandra Palmer sounded more like a loser than a contender after she rolled in the five-foot putt that sent her into today's 18-hole playoff with JoAnne Carner for the 1976 U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

"I played poorly ... I putted poorly . . . It was pretty sad, really," said the little Texan.

The 35-year-old Miss Palmer dropped a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole to tie Mrs. Carner. She needed a par on the 18th to set up a playoff, a birdie to win.

Mrs. Carner, winner of the Open in 1971, stood at the 18th green and watched as Miss Palmer hit her third shot on the par-five hole 40 feet past the pin. The first putt was five feet short.

"When she hit her first putt and lined up her second and shook her head, I knew she was going to knock it in," Mrs. Carner said later.

While Mrs. Carner and Miss Palmer were at the top, a disappointed Jane Blalock finished third, four strokes off the pace.

The 30-yearold Miss Blalock was tied for the lead on the back nine of the final round Sunday, but she double-bogeyed the 16th to fall out of contention. She finished 75-72-73-76—296.

Mrs. Carner, longest hitter among woman golfers, appeared to have won her second Open when she holed a fourfoot birdie putt on the par-five 17th. But Miss Palmer, the defending champion, refused to quit.

She demonstrated that indominatable spirit that prompted her to comment earlier in the week, "If I were tall, I'll bet I'd be the best player in the world forever."

Miss Palmer, of course, isn't tall. She's 5 foot-1, the smallest player on the pro tour. She makes up with style and heart the yardage she has to concede to other golfers.

The two finalists, a study in contrast when they stand next to each other, completed the 72 holes at Rolling Green Golf Club with eight-over-par 292s to produce the fourth playoff in the tournament's history.

The other playoffs were in 1953, when Betsy Rawls beat Jacqueline Pung; 1956 with Kathy Cornelius topping Barbara McIntire, and 1964, Mickey Wright over Ruth Jessen.

This is the second playoff this year for the two women. Mrs. Carner and Miss Palmer met in a sudden death playoff at St. Petersburg, Fla., this year and Mrs. Carner won on the fourth extra hole.

Susie McAllister, a pro from Beaumont, Tex., shot a final three over par 74, and wound up fourth at 297. Then came Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., who shot the best final round Sunday, 72, and tied for fifth with Amy Alcott at 299.

Mary Beth King of Bernville, Pa., the top amateur, tied for eighth.

Mrs. Carner, who won five U.S. Amateur titles before turning pro in 1970, said the greens were slow Sunday, and she complained that the pin placement on the last hole was the hardest of the entire week.

"The rough was wet and heavy," said Mrs. Carner of Lake Wales, Fla., referring to the early morning rain that delayed the start of the final round several hours. "I just about broke my neck trying to get out of it (the rough)."

Miss Palmer, who started the last round two strokes in front of Miss Palmer, lamented her first nine holes. She bogeyed four of the first five and the eighth, had one birdie and made the turn two down.

"I was discouraged on the front nine," she said. "I thought I was out of it. I told myself, 'Be patient, maybe things will happen and I'll birdie a hole.'"

Miss Palmer said she used the wrong club at 18, on her shot to the green. She used an eight iron and choked up on the club. The ball hit the back part of the green. She had a tough putt on the slick surface.

"I think I had by eyes closed when I stroked the ball," she said. "I kept my head down."

She didn't have to look. The roar of the crowd said it all.

Mrs. Carner rolled in her birdie putt at 17, and Miss Palmer, playing a twosome behind, holed a 20-foot to match that. Both got par at 18, and turned to thoughts of Monday.

Miss Palmer, left with a significant remark: "She (Mrs. Carner) owes me one," referring to the playoff she lost to Mrs. Carner last February.

Mrs. Carner just smiled. It was a smile of confidence.

The winner today earns $9,000. But the money really is insignificant when compared to the prestige at stake for winning the premier tournament on the women's tour.

Judy Rankin, the LPGA's top money winner, finished tied for 14th place, but she earned $1,229, enough to boost her year's earnings to $100,614 and make her the first woman in golf history to earn $100,000 in a single season.

Driver unhappy with '5000' win

Not so with Alan Jones.

Despite winning Sunday's rain drenched 100-mile Formula 5000 road racing feature here, Jones remained pessimistic about the potential of his new March 76A, in a reluctant debut.

"The car still has many problems, mostly the problems of a new car. It does show a great deal of promise in straightaway speed, but the cornering is not good at this point," asserted the 29-year-old Britisher.

Jones would have driven his backup Lola T332 in the race if he'd had a choice. But that choice was eliminated Friday when Jones destroyed the car in a practice crash.

Asked if the other car might won even more handily, Jones replied, "We'll never know, will we?"

The actual potential of the March was hard to determine in the race, however, because of the rain, he said.

Jones took the lead on the 28th of 30 laps and finished 6.8 seconds ahead of pole position winner Al Unser, who along with Brian Redman won split victories in the two 33 mile heat races prior to the feature. Both of those races were run before the rains came.

Unser asserted he thought Jones was merely unlapping himself. Jones had made a two-minute pit stop earlier for fresh tires. "I wasn't really racing him as hard as I would have been, if I'd known he was going for the lead," Unser said grimly afterward. "My crew was showing me the P-1 sign (first position) on the pit board."

"Well he didn't exactly wave me through when I passed him," Jones responded.

Sports briefs

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets and Golden State Warriors, pro basketball's winningest teams this past season, will meet in a pair of pre-season games in October, Nuggets president-general manager Carl Scheer announced.

The first game of the series will be in Oakland Oct. 9, with the teams playing in Denver Oct. 19.

The teams split a pair of exhibitions last season, with the Nuggets winning 111-107 at Oakland, and the Warriors taking a 115-110 decision at Denver.

Golden State finished with a 59-23 record last season, while Denver was 60-24. Both, however, were eliminated in the playoffs.

SAN JOSE (AP) — Paul Colwell and Don Johnson rolled past three teams Sunday to take top money in the $70,000 Professional Bowlers Association Doubles Classic.

Colwell, Tuscon, Ariz., and Johnson, Las Vegas, Nev., defeated top seeds Steve Neff and Eddie Ressler 447-414 in the championship match to claim the $10,000 first prize in the PBA's first doubles championship.

In the first game of the nationally televised four-team showdown, Johnson and Colwell beat Mike Matosich and Tom Wright 461-393. They followed that with a tight 430-414 victory over Ed DiTolla and Craig Mueller to win a berth in the finals.

Johnson praised the teamwork which brought him and Colwell to the top. "I carried us all week," he joked after the match, "and Paul carried us today."

Johnson's win moved him into a tie with Dick Weber for first on the all-time PBA list with 25, only a week after Earl Anthony tied Johnson for second with 24. The victory was number eight in Colwell's career — and his second in three weeks.

Neff and Ressler split $6,400 for second, DiTolla and Mueller received $5,000 for third and Matosich and Wright divided $4,000 for their fourth place finish.

Next stop on the PBA tour is Tuscon, Ariz. for a $60,000 tournament which begins Saturday.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harry Wendelstedt, a 10-year National League umpire, will call balls and strikes Tuesday night in the All-Star game, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Sunday.

Joining Wendestedt, who will be appearing in his second All-Star game, will be Jerry Neudecker, American League, first base; Andy Olsen, NL, second base; Don Denkinger, AL, third base; Dave Davidson, NL, left field foul line, and Jim Evans, AL, right field foul line.

Neduecker will be in his third All-Star Game and Denkinger in his second. The other three will be making their debuts.

Kuhn also announced that the official scorers will be Richard Dozer of the Chicago Tribune, president of the Baseball Writers Association of America; Ray Kelly of the Philadelphia Bulletin, and Bill Liston of the Boston Herald American.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Roman Gabriel of the Philadelphia Eagles will retire this season if the team can't use him, Eagle coach Dick Vermeil said in a press release Sunday.

Gabriel has been working at Rancho Mirage, Calif., on his right knee, which underwent surgery last January, Vermeil said, "but his knee hasn't progressed far enough for him to be a football player."

If his knee improves, Gabriel will call the Eagles in two weeks "to find out if we have a spot available for him," Vermeil said. "Otherwise he is going to retire."

Gabriel became a free agent when he played out his option with the Eagles last season.

BAASTAD, Sweden — Antonio Zugarelli of Italy upset countryman and top-seeded Corrado Barazzutti 4-6, 7-5, 6-2 to win the men's singles in the $100,000 Swedish Open Tennis Championships.

GSTAAD, Switzerland — Mexico's Raul Ramirez captured the Swiss International Open Tennis Championships with a 7-5, 6-7, 6-1, 6-3 triumph over top-seeded Adriano Panatta of Italy.

MOLINE, Ill. — New Zealand's John Lister won the $100,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament with a final round four-under-par 67, two strokes better than Fuzzy Zoeller.

EVERGREEN, Colo. — Veteran Dave Hill scored an easy six-stroke victory in the 13th Colorado Open with a final round two-under-par 69.

RANZAN, Japan — Jumbo Ozaki of Japan birdied the final hole to win the Kanto Golf Tournament by one stroke over countryman Takashi Murakami.

Figueroa knows his time is coming

By Associated Press

Ed Figueroa will spend the All-Star break with his family this year, but he knows his time is coming.

After firing a three-hit shutout Sunday in New York's 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox, Figueroa reflected on his role with the Yankees and his own stature in baseball.

"It is my second year in the big leagues," said 27-year-old native of Puerto Rico. "I just want to win my games. Then next year I have the name. Maybe I can win 20 games with this club.

"Last year I had only seven wins before the All-Star Game. This year I have 10," said Figueroa, 10-6, the third Yankee pitcher to win 10 games before midseason. The other two are Catfish Hunter and Dock Ellis.

"I'd like to go to the All-Star Game, but it is too late now," he said. "I have to wait until next year, so I spend three days with my family. The guys who were picked just beat me to No. 10."

In other American League games, Detroit nipped Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston defeated Minnesota 6-4, Baltimore beat California 3-1, Oakland whipped Cleveland 9-3 and Milwaukee took two from Texas, 6-3 and 5-4 in 10 innings.

Going into Tuesday's All-Star Game in Philadelphia, the Yankees lead Boston by 9½ games in the AL East Pennant race.

Oscar Gamble's two-run, 400-foot homer in the second inning gave the 6-foot right-handed Figueroa all the firepower he needed to give the Yanks their ninth victory in 10 games between the two teams this season.

Figueroa allowed three singles, gave up two walks and struck out four. Chicago starter Bart Johnson, 7-8, seeking his fifth straight victory, took the loss.

Tigers 6, Royals 5

Rusty Staub's two-out, 12th-inning single scored John Wockenfuss and gave Detroit its victory. Wockenfuss had walked and advanced to third on successive sacifice bunts.

John Hiller, 8-4, got the victory in relief, while Steve Mingori, 3-1, was tagged with the loss.

The Royals had tied the game in the seventh inning with three runs.

Red Sox 6, Twins 4

Fred Lynn ignited a 13-hit Boston attack with a first-inning home run, his sixth of the year, and Ferguson Jenkins evened his record at 8-8 in Boston's win.

Jenkins scattered 10 hits before giving way to Jim Willoughby in the ninth. Denny Doyle had a two-run single in the third for Boston, which evened its record at 40-40 going into the All-Star Game.

A's 9, Indians 3

Bill North drove in two runs, scored three more and extended his league-leading stolen bases mark to 42 with a single swipe in Oakland's victory. The A's have won seven of their past eight games.

Winning pitcher Paul Mitchell, 5-5, got relief help from Paul Lindblad, who gave up just one hit and held Cleveland scoreless for the final 3 2/3 innings. The loser was Dennis Eckersley, 4-8.

Brewers 6-5, Rangers 3-4

Hank Aaron homered in the 10th inning to give Milwaukee a sweep of its doubleheader with Texas and a sweep of their five-game series. The Rangers now have lost six in a row.

Aaron's 340-foot homer into the left field stands was his ninth of the season and 754th of his career.

Milwaukee tied the nightcap 4-4 in the ninth on run-scoring singles by Bernie Carbo, who had a two-run homer earlier in the game, and Robin Yount. Bill Castro, 2-0, got the victory in relief.

Jim Slaton picked up his 10th victory against six losses in the opener as Gorman Thomas's two-run double highlighted Milwaukee's five-run seventh inning.

N.L. hurlers have busy day

By Associated Press

How well a pitcher does is up to the man himself. But when he does it is up to his manager, especially around All-Star time...in the National League, anyway.

The American League, having dropped 12 of the last 13 midseason classics, has been given an order by AL President Lee MacPahil the last three years—don't use any of your All-Star hurlers on the Sunday before the game.

But in the NL, anything goes—which is why Jon Matlack, surprise reliever Tom Seaver and Dick Ruthven went.

None of the hurlers picked for Tuesday night's All-Star Game got anything but a workout in Atlanta's 9-8 victory over the New York Mets. But Don Sutton, normally another starter, found himself in an unaccustomed relief role—and found a victory in the process as Los Angeles beat St. Louis 9-6.

In the rest of the NL, Ed Halicki baffled Chicago with a two-hitter as San Francisco beat the Cubs 2-0, Jim Kaat pitched a nine-hit shutout in Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over San Diego, Joaquin Andujar did the same in Touston's 1-0 squeaker over Montreal and Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 8-5.

Matlack, the winner of last year's All-Star Game, had an easy time with the Braves until they bombed him during a five-run seventh inning. One of his successors was Seaver.

"I volunteered to relieve," the Mets' ace right-hander said. "If they thought they could use me, I wanted to play."

Giants 2, Cubs 0

Halicki, who pitched a no-hitter against the Mets last season, had another one going against Chicago until Jose Cardenal grounded a single up the middle leading off the seventh inning. The only hit he and the Giants needed was Gary Matthews' first-inning homer.

"I was disappointed to lose the no-hitter, but it was just as important to me to win the game," Halicki said. "That's what I'm paid for. It's a pretty thin line between a shutout and no-hit ball. You have to be sharp in this league to get either one."

Phillies 3, Padres 0

Greg Luzinski's three-run double in the sixth inning and a strong defense that turned three double plays gave Kaat his first NL shutout, despite his being peppered for nine San Diego hits.

"As long as you don't start keeping score by who gets the most hits, we're not going to worry about it," Kaat laughed. "Without our defense, those nine would have been 15 or 16."

Astros 1, Expos 0

Andujar's shutout was his third of the season. "I've been sick for about four or five days," he admitted afterwards. "I felt dizzy before the game. But I love baseball. Every time I go out there, I give 200 per cent. The way I was hustling, no one could tell I was sick. You have to be a man to play this game."

The man who gave him the game was Leon Roberts with a fifth-inning single that drove in the game's only run.

Pirates 8, Reds 5

Cincinnati relievers Pedro Borbon and Will McEnaney gave Pittsburgh its victory.

First Borbon hit Tommy Helms with a bases-loaded pitch in the eighth inning to force in the tie-breaking run, then McEnaney served up a juicy pitch that Rennie Stennett ripped for a two-run double.

American Legion roundup

Claremont wins easily

Claremont Post 78, 21-13 and 5-1 in the second half of league action, built up a 6-0 lead and coasted to a 14-5 victory over Rowland Sunday afternoon at Pomona College.

In other valley American legion action, Montclair's Keith McCune hurled a five inning no-hitter as Montclair drubbed Chino 12-0 at Montclair High. West Covina downed LaVerne 10-4 and El Monte defeated Pomona, 4-2.

Brad Kirkendall hurled a shutout at Rowland into the eighth inning before Rowland was able to score. However, Kirkendall was forced out, after he hit the lead-off man in the inning, due to a sprained thumb.

Before injuring the thumb, Kirkendall hurled a strong seven innings as he held Rowland to just five hits while fanning 9 batters. His control was perfect until the hit batsman as he didn't walk a batter. Kirkendall hurt the thumb at the plate as a batter.

Mike Davis and Jim Tullis paced the 16-hit Claremont attack as they each banged out three hits apiece.

Tullis finished the game with four RBI's and in his last 40 at bats he has collected 14 base hits for a .350 average. Tullis, who at one time in the season was 2-for-26 at the plate, has lifted his average to .342.

Claremont broke open the contest with four runs in the second inning. Kirkendall singled and advanced to second as Jim Healey beat out an infield hit and he scored as Paul Sokolowski singled. Mike Davis singled in Healey and Sokolowski advanced to third as Davis took second. Dick Bell singled to drive in Davis and Sokolowski. Tullis singled in Bell after Peacock had walked with the fourth run of the inning.

Claremont, 5-1 in second half action leads Pomona by two full games. Post 78, 11-5 overall in District 18 league travels to Whittier Narrows to battle El Monte Wednesday night in a 7 p.m. contest. Len Peacock (6-3) is the probable starter Wednesday night for Post 78.

Montclair jumped off with a three run first inning, a four-run second inning and five-run third frame to defeat Chino Sunday afternoon. Montclair forced the five inning rule which stops the game when a team is leading by a score of 12-0.

McCune stopped Chino cold as he allowed only two free passes while striking out eight Post 299 batters.

Rick Adams backed McCune's no-hit pitching with a three-hit performance which included two triples and a home run. The three extra base hits gave Adams a total of five runs batted in.

West Covina, red hot since the Upland American Legion tournament, banged out 13 hits to down a cold La Verne squad. La Verne has not dropped five of its last six contests since the holiday tournament.

West Covina broke open the contest with a four-run fourth inning. Post 790 had built a 3-1 lead through the first three frames of the contest. Two La Verne errors helped West Covina in the fourth as they put three base hits together for the runs. Mark Bridgewater continued his hot hitting with a solo homer.

La Verne was throttled by Don Groh until the sixth inning when Post 330 scored two runs off the West Covina pitching ace. Both runs were unearned as Groh threw the ball away on a pickoff attempt and tossed two wild pitches. Groh was relieved by Mike Pill who fanned five La Verne batters in the 3 and 1/3 innings he pitched.

La Verne's roster has been reduced to 10 men due to injuries. Gregg Sayegh injured a shoulder, Steve Benoit hurt his elbow, and Steve Campbell rebroke his wrist.

Post 330, 23-9 on the year, returns to action Tuesday night against Anaheim in a 5:30 p.m. contest at La Verne College.

Pomona Post 30 record dropped to 18-12 overall and 2-3 in District 18 play during the second half of action. Post 30 got a forfeit win Saturday night because Baldwin Park folded.

El Monte scored only one earned run as Pomona's defense fell apart. Post 30 committed five errors in the contest.

Pomona's two runs came on a fifth inning double by Jeff Seaman and a triple by Mike Keegan in the sixth frame.

Post 30 resumes action Friday when they host Hacienda Heights at Ralph Welch Park in a 7 p.m. contest.

Big rally gives win to West

OAKLAND (AP) — After three hours of tennis, it came down to one point — and longtime rivals Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong were on opposite sides of the net as it was played.

When it was over, Goolagong had returned a short, crisp Evert shot into the net, and the West had won an incredible come-from-behind 28-27 victory with a 5-4 super tie-breaker round at the World Team Tennis All-Star Classic Saturday.

Did the cheers of 12,581 fans, most partisans for the West, help her game? "The crowd's reaction was just great," a smiling Miss Evert said after the match. "It really helps psyche you up."

The West, guided by Golden Gaters coach Frew McMillan, took an early 6-2 lead when men's doubles teammates Rod Laver, San Diego Friars, and Tom Okker, Golden Gaters, trounced Tom Alexander of the Boston Lobsters and Phil Dent of the New York Sets.

The East, coached by Fred Stolle, pulled to within one game when Goolagong, Pittsburgh Triangles, trimmed Phoenix Racquets ace Evert 6-3 in women's singles.

The East then surged to a 1411 lead as New York Sets teammates Billie Jean King and Sandy Mayer crushed the West's Tony Roche, Phoenix, and Golden Gater Francoise Durr in mixed doubles 6-2.

Hectic pace agrees with Ilie Nastase

MYRTLE BEACH (AP) — Ilie Nastase has kept a hectic pace in recent weeks — getting from one corner of the globe to another — and he gives no indication of slowing down.

The colorful Rumanian flew into Myrtle Beach Friday night from Hawaii for the first Grand Slam of Tennis, which he handily won Sunday by downing Manuel Orantes of Spain 6-4, 6-3.

Nastase hurried back Sunday afternoon to Hawaii where he plays World Team Tennis for the Hawaii Leis.

Just a little more than a week ago, he was in England, losing in the finals of Wimbledon to Sweden's Bjorn Borg.

The 30-year-old shotmaker says he plans a rest in a few months. He says he'll take November and December off, but in the meantime, he is scheduled for one tournament after another and in between he'll take the court for the Leis.

In his first set Saturday in the tournament at the Myrtle Beach Tennis Club, he seemed to be suffering from jet lag as he fell 0-6 to Jimmy Connors. But, he quickly found his stride and rushed through the remainder of the tournament without dropping a set to claim the $75,000 championship prize.

"That's pretty good money for two days," he said Sunday.

All four said they liked the tournament format and playing for one of tennis' largest purses.

Big League roundup

Amer. ends season

Pomona American B downed Pomona American A 14-6 Sunday afternoon at Simons Junior High as both big league teams concluded their seasons. Neither team will be in the upcoming playoffs.

Chino Hills swept a doubleheader from Chino 3B as Gene Campbell hurled a five-hitter in the opener. Chino Hills captured the first game 5-1 before being awarded the night-cap as Chino 3 B forfeited the contest.

Pomona American B Bill-s Tree Service iced the contest with a 10-run third inning. Pomona First Federal had taken a brief 6-3 lead with a five run second inning outburst.

The key blows of the 10 run frame were a two-run single by Elton Keyes and a bases loaded triple by Ken Gendreau. Bill's Tree Service was aided by one big First Federal error and six free passes by Pomona First Federal pitching.

Jim Saige paced Bill's Tree Service attack with a single and double in four trips to the plate. Gendreau drove in three runs with a triple and base on balls. Keyes knocked in three runs with a single and ground ball to short.

Pomona First Federal's attack was led by Larry Acosta with three hits in four at bats.

Chino Hills, which had five players named to the Inland All-Star squad defeated Chino 3 B on just two hits. Chino Hills won the second game on the strength of a forfeit. The game was played anyway and Mark White was credited with a victory.

In the opener, Campbell was the main story for Chino Hills as he fanned eight batters while walking two.

The Inland Big League All-Star squad was picked this week and they will begin action on July 26 at Riverside. Joe Pimentel, manager of Chino Hills was named as the squads manager and Richard Pimentel was named coach of the squad.

Did you know that a big league baseball player once struck out while sitting on the bench! . . .It happened in 1952 to Sammy White. . .He had 2 strikes on him and was replaced by a pinch-hitter. . . The pinch-hitter took a third strike, but under baseball scoring rules, the strikeout was charged to White since he had 2 of the 3 strikes—so, White struck out while sitting in the dugout!

Six hurt in traffic accidents

Progress Bulletin

Pomona, California ■ Monday, July 12, 1976

Four traffic accidents in the Chino and Pomona areas injured six persons over the weekend.

One of three persons injured in a two-car collision at Euclid and Kimball avenues, Chino area, Saturday was still hospitalized today.

Stephanie E. Summers, 18, of Riverside was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Kaiser Hospital in Fontana.

Her eastbound car crashed into a northbound car driven by Geraldine Campbell, 32, of 1692 E. Granada Ct., Ontario, highway patrolmen reported.

Mrs. Campbell and her passenger, John R. Campbell, 32, of the same address, were treated at Chino General Hospital and released. Miss Summers was taken to the same hospital and later transferred to Kaiser Hospital.

Allen L. Bell, 24, of 329 W. Bonita Ave., San Dimas, escaped with minor injuries when his pickup truck crashed through the cul-de-sac of the Grand Avenue service road a half-mile west of Grand Avenue, Pomona area, Saturday night.

The car was airborne for several feet and crashed through a barbed wire fence, coming to rest just short of a four-foot deep concrete drainage ditch.

Bell told the highway patrol he had fallen asleep. He was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

A motorist was arrested Saturday night after his car was involved in a collision at Holt Avenue and Fillmore Street, Pomona police reported.

The collision was between cars driven by Earl Joseph Bliss, 34, Pomona, and Frank A. Cardoso, 16, Upland. Bliss was arrested on a drunken driving charge.

A passenger in Cardoso's car, Frank V. Toeda, Chino, suffered a cut eye and was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Also in Pomona, a young woman escaped serious injury Saturday night when she lost control of her car in the 1200 block of E. Kingsley Avenue and it jumped a curb and ran through several front yards before stopping.

The driver, Laurie Jean Swann, 21, said she was turning when the car skidded in a puddle of water and she lost control of it.

The victim was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was released after treatment of mouth injuries.

Two lawns and a flower bed were damaged.

MALE EXCLUSIVE?

If this long line of men waiting their turn for agility testing is any indication, service in the fire department is still a career for men. Only a few women applied. More than 500 took agility tests Saturday after passing earlier written examinations administered by Pomona, Upland and West Covina fire departments. Those who successfully passed this second phase of testing went on to oral interviews later in the afternoon.

WATCH YOUR STEP!

Darrel Malle of Anaheim steps carefully on the 100-foot ladder climb in the agility test sponsored by the Pomona, Upland and West Covina fire departments Saturday at Ganesha High School. Approximately 500 took the tri-city agility tests which also included the hose carry, ladder carry, wet hose carry, mile run and agility run.

Fleet convention

Delegates selected

Delegates to the Fleet Reserve Association's Southwest Regional Convention and National Convention will be elected Wednesday at 8 p.m. when Branch 211 and Unit 211 of the Ladies Auxiliary meet at the American Legion Hall at Chino.

The Southwest Regional Convention will be held at El Cortez Hotel, San Diego, Aug. 14. The National Convention is scheduled for Sept. 19-21 at Waikiki, Oahu.

At a recent joint meeting, Joseph P. Moran, national Fleet Reserve Association president, presented a 30-year membership pin to Harold Edick of Pomona, a charter member of Branch 211.

Dave Terwilliger of San Dimas, newly elected president of Branch 211, has announced that the branch and the unit will launch a drive for new members.

Sally Terwilliger, newly-elected president of Unit 211, reported that light refreshments will be served at the meeting.

Chino board continues developers' tax talks

A controversial tax on developers to provide money for new schools in Chino will be discussed further at Tuesday's school board meeting.

The proposal for a possible $200 tax per dwelling unit was considered briefly at last week's board meeting but no action was taken. The issue also was pondered at a recent joint session of the Chino City Council and Planning Commission.

Supt. Royce Lapp said this type of tax is under a "legal cloud" with developers in Northern California suing cities to recover back fees. Whether cities legally can charge developers for new schools is being questioned, he noted.

Lapp said the fee hopefully would slow Chino's growth by increasing the price of homes. New people in the community would begin paying for schools, he added.

Pico Rivera man drowns in dam

A 32-year-old Pico Rivera man slipped beneath the surface of the water in San Gabriel Canyon Dam and drowned early Sunday afternoon, sheriff's deputies reported.

The victim was Angel M. Medina, whose body was recovered by divers.

The book will include street furniture and equipment selected by an independent jury of experts.

A bus pickup will begin at noon at all recreation playgrounds. The activities at the park will begin at 1 p.m.

An excursion to Newport Dunes Aquatic Park, a salt water lagoon with swimming, paddleboards, rafts and two giant water slides, will be held July 22 for local children 8 to 15.

The fee for the trip is $1.25 for youngsters 12 and younger, and $1.50 for those 13 and older. The fee includes transportation and admission.

Registrations for the beach trip and Newport Dunes are being taken at the City Hall.

Copter crashers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jet helicopter crashed while on a demonstration flight, injuring the pilot and passenger, officials said.

The aircraft, a demonstration model manufactured by Hughes, fell to the ground from 1,000 feet when the controls froze Saturday. It crashed on Hughes property in West Los Angeles.

The diagonal panels in the rear may be removed and replaced according to the type of concert offered.

School board reviews offer

The Claremont school board at a special 8 p.m. meeting today will make its first response to wage and benefit proposals of the Claremont Faculty Association and Chapter 200 of the California School Employes Association.

The board has given the public opportunities to comment on either proposal.

The board met last Thursday night with its representatives on collective bargaining with the two groups.

In other matters, the district is expected to accept bids and to award a contract for replacing carpeting at Danbury and La Puerta schools, and to call for bids for refinishing the gymnasium floor at Claremont High.

Russia supplied by 3rd parties

It is obvious Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld don't read their own agencies' reports.

If they did, the Ford administration would not even consider supplying some of its latest military hardware to Yugoslavia — reportedly including the TOW wire-guided missile, in short supply even in the United States, if recent columns are to be believed.

This aid is ostensibly being given to enable President Tito and his successors to fend off an invasion by the Russians — it being essential to U. S. interests, according to Kissinger's advisers, to maintain Yugoslav independence. This in addition to more than a billion dollars in military and economic assistance in the past.

There's a great deal of malarky here.

Tito has put on a show of independence. But study what and who he's worked for in virtually every crisis. Inevitably it is in the interests of the USSR or one of Moscow's allies. Moreover, both the Pentagon and State department know that any advanced weapon supplied to Belgrade will be in the hands of the Russians soon after, delivered by high Yugoslav officials. Past cases can be documented by U. S. and British intelligence.

The Russians have no need to take over the country. They have it in their pocket. Its "independence" serves Moscow well.

Like the Soviets, the Yugoslavs have been angling for advanced U. S. technology, both military and civilian, and for a reason. There's a limit to what we will supply the Russians even under the Kissinger form of detente. Moscow therefore seeks what it wants through third parties. To make these "third-country" requests more palatable to Washington, Communists in other lands have been pushing the concept they are not tied to the Soviet Union and, in fact, are in deadly fear of what Russians agents and troops might do given the chance.

Now some of these Communists, as in China, mean what they say in this instance, though there are strong forces even within China favoring rapproachment with the USSR. Yugoslavia, despite its elaborate system of guerrilla regional forces, is not in this category.

No guerrilla force in its right mind would turn over secret night-fighting devices upon which its security could hinge, to any country it feared would invade them. These Yugoslav officials did within weeks of being supplied such equipment by an American firm whose officers were encouraged in this sale to Yugoslavia by the Pentagon and State Department. No isolated example, the transfer of these weapons to Moscow by the Yugoslavs was reported by British intelligence. The information has been in the hands of U. S. intelligence for more than six months.

Yugoslavia, thus, is a convenient channel through which the Russians can secure advanced industrial and military technology.

Why then do Kissinger's men "leak" that these deals will show the world and Moscow we are determined to halt Soviet takeovers?

The plea for arms for Angola was another hypocritical gesture. Kissinger did not take the time to determine the type of individuals or organizations U. S. arms would go to or whether they had the cohesion and military know-how to survive if given American assistance. It was enough to say the enemy was Communist.

Now there is no doubt the victors won because of Russian supplies and Cuban troops. The U. S. government's own specialists reported to the State Department and Pentagon there was no evidence the Russo-Cuban-backed victors were Red. There is no way of knowing whether this analysis was correct or not; but it was the information President Ford and Kissinger had at hand when they asked Congress for arms assistance.

Sometimes it is difficult to figure what is going on in the minds of our top government officials.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

An attitude we often share is . . . what's the use? Why make an effort when no one particularly cares? Why put ourselves to any trouble when no one is going to notice anyway?

No matter what we do, it is for us — the individual. Maybe it is to salve our own conscience, to save face or just to put us in a better light — but it is for us. We cannot deny how much better we feel when we have met a responsibility, or given for a good purpose, though no one even bothered to say "thanks." There are a lot of reasons for doing something well, but the main one is that it steps us up in our own eyes. If we do not have that self respect, we are far more apt to give up and ask, "What's the use?"

Thought

Therefore you have no excuse, O man, whoever you are, when you judge another; for in passing judgment upon him you condemn yourself, because you, the judge, are doing the very same things. — Romans 2:1.

The public forum

Who is to blame?

Dear Editor:

The temination of the bookmobile of the Pomona public library has caused much displeasure among those who had come to depend upon it in its four years of existence.

The question isbeing asked, "Why give up the bookmobile? Why can't the library cut some other service?"

There are many good justifications for the phase-out of the bookmobile. It was done with great reluctance after serious planning and it is hoped that reasonable people will understand that the library is not to blame for its demise.

Because of the huge deficit existing within the city of Pomona it has been necessary for the city council and administration to trim all city expenses, including funding for the library. Therefore, because of inflation and no tax increase earmarked for the library, the budget could not be balanced without drastic cuts.

In compliance with city hall's decree, the library administration is attempting to use the reduced funds available to meet the needs of the greatest number of patrons.

Statistics show that maintaining the services of the main library must be the primary goal. On the other hand, the bookmobile was a special, separate service that could be cut without jeopardizing other services. Also, an additional consideration was an annual cost savings of $47,000.

The Saturday and Sunday closings, reductions of library hours from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays, are further efforts by the library administration to save overhead and personnel cost while continuing to maintain efficient services.

It is a sad situation indeed, when desirable and beneficial programs such as offered by our library must be restricted or eliminated. Just what is the cause? Who is to blame? True, the city council holds the purse strings, but who is to blame for inflation, for higher costs of everything from utilities and office supplies to employe wages and fringe benefits? Who is to blame for a crime rate that requires top budget attention for police and fire protection while those activities that contribute to and enhance the quality of life in a community must be given the lowest priority?

Gone are the good old days

WASHINGTON — For the first time in the roaring, rollicking, recent history of presidential conventions, the delegates may have to buy their own booze and take taxis instead of riding around in corporate Cadillacs.

The painful memory of Watergate has brought an end to the glorious freeloading that characterized the Democratic and Republican convocations of the past. Upon the advice of their lawyers and priests, the corporate Samaritans no longer dare lavish favors upon the political luminaries who will gather this summer to nominate the next President.

In this post-Watergate year, the auto manufacturers won't furnish gleaming new automobiles to whisk the delegates around the convention cities. The distillers don't plan to dispatch long-legged girls dispensing free booze. The once-pampered delegates won't return home laden with goodies. There'll be no free briefcases for carrying their papers, no free pen-and-pencil sets for marking ballots, no yacht cruises to relax from the political rhetoric.

Those corporate contributors who haven't been infused with the new Watergate morality have been impressed at least by the new federal election laws. Their lawyers have advised them not to make an offering that might faintly resemble a corporate campaign contribution.

A few brave corporations will maintain hospitality suites, where stray delegates may relax over Scotch and soda. The American Bankers Assn. and the mutual savings banks, for example, will provide suitable refuges for their political friends.

At the Democratic convention, which starts today, the machinists and the ladies' garment workers will throw a bash for the friends of labor.

The railroads will operate a lounge, stocked with roast beef and beer, for working reporters. But anyone who even looks like a politician will be barred at the door. The Pepsi people will also provide free cola for the press. But the delegates will have to pay for their Pepsis. Elsewhere the politicians, who used to be the objects of corporate attention, will be turned away.

International Telephone and Telegraph began the 1972 political season by offering to help subsidize the Republican convention. Richard Nixon wanted to stage his renomination rites in San Diego, a city that had been witness to his early struggles and triumphs and had historically given him a higher vote than any other comparable metropolis.

But the burghers of San Diego were oblivious to the honor President Nixon held out and the city fathers voted against even submitting a bid for the convention. To prevent a presidential humiliation, ITT offered $400,000 to help out with the expenses and to make the convention financially attractive to the city.

Eight days after San Diego was selected, the Justice Dept. announced the dropping of its antitrust suits against ITT. Then we got hold of the famous Dita Beard memo, which linked the $400,000 offer with the antitrust settlement. The scandal caused Nixon to abandon San Diego and ITT to withdraw its financial pledge in awkward haste.

Yet other corporations, undeterred, coughed up huge sums to make the 1972 conventions more pleasant for both the Republicans and Democrats. The Whittaker Corp., for example, provided Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien with a $200,000 pleasure boat and even offered to name it the "Larry O" in his honor. He accepted the yacht but declined the name, not wishing to advertise his free yachting privileges. The boat came stocked, incidentally, with free booze.

Both parties ganged up on the corporate fat cats in 1972 to squeeze advertisements from them for the convention programs. In a rare example of cooperation, representatives from the two parties met secretly at Ford Motor headquarters in Washington to plot together how to get the most possible advertising from the corporations.

But on the eve of the 1976 conventions, the whole atmosphere has changed. ITT, laying low, won't even put up money for a hospitality suite this year. The company will send a couple of lobbyists to observe the conventions, with instructions not to pick up any checks for strangers.

The convention programs this year will be published without ads. The airlines, which have provided the traditional delegates' lounge in the past, will leave the delegates to find their own retreats. "We're leaning over backwards this year," said a spokesman.

At past conventions, the Big Three auto manufacturers donated 400 to 500 free cars for the political bigwigs. Attendants were provided to give the cars a daily scrubdown and mechanics were dispatched to keep the motors running. Even the parking was free.

It usually took days to round up the cars after the delegates had gone home. Some of the cars were abandoned, with the keys still in them. Some were stolen, a few wrecked. The total cost to the auto companies ran around $200,000.

The motor moguls are secretly delighted with the new campaign law, which gives them an excuse to withdraw the free cars and buses. "We wanted to be sure everything was legal, so we cut it out," explained a General Motors spokesman.

Our man in Washington

Bend when necessary

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Welcome to the third century!

Americans everywhere are recovering from a celebration of our 200th birthday and things are beginning to return to normal.

It is almost a shame that it must end so soon. Oh! The celebration will continue for the rest of this year, but the climax has been reached. It is all downhill from this point forward.

This anniversary was so grand it almost makes you want to stick around for the tricentennial.

Like President Ford observed, the bicentennial celebration brought out the best in people.

In this city where just over one year ago more than 500 Washingtonians and visitors were attacked during the "Human Kindness Day" celebration there was a festive and peaceful mood despite the hundreds of thousands of people crowded together for the fireworks and parades.

For the first time in years, maybe decades for some people, there was a true neighborliness about the District of Columbia.

From all the reports we've seen the same was true in the rest of the nation. While this type of peace and serenity may be common to middle America it is a welcome change to the cities.

It was a spectacular way to end 200 years of freedom and a bombastic entry into the next century.

Unfortunately we are still plagued by the same problems that confronted us prior to the July 4 celebrations and those problems will undoubtedly continue to cause the friction that has dominated much of the news.

Still a national election is upon us and with that an opportunity to choose someone we believe can bring us into the full, free and prosperous era we all long for.

We are finally at peace with the world, albeit a tense peace in some areas. If we can only return the economy to stability we can move to the final step of creating the perfect nation.

Equality for all people is within our grasp today. Blacks, women, Mexican-Americans, Jews and all other ethnic, and religious groups have a real opportunity in this land known for opportunity.

The differences we consider major today will look insignificant with the passage of time, but we must approach it with the same tolerance we approached the recent celebration.

We must remember that we cannot do it in one day and we must forgive the impatience of the underprivileged.

We must also instill the basic philosphies that have made us a great nation. We must not destroy our morality and our beliefs to meet the needs, but we must bend a little when it is necessary.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Did you notice that on one of the TV networks broadcasting this country's all-day July 4th Bicentennial celebration the program's principal sponsor was Ex-Lax? Probably a good thing, too. For, if you gotta go all out, you gotta go all out. And, thanks to Ex-Lax, we could be sure there would be no irregular patriots half-heartedly celebrating our nation's 200th birthday.

Ralph Nader nears his nadir

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — All heroes become bores in the end, but Ralph Nader?

Ten years ago when he published his classic work on the car as citrus, "Unsafe at Any Speed", he was a worried-looking nobody with a sense that the world was mad — and he was wonderful. Since then he has published 40 more books, organized into a dozen corporations, hasn't said a positive word about anything on the continent — and appears increasingly to be wearing out his welcome.

Assuredly, Big N always had critics. Corporation barons, government flunkies — those kinds of people. Now, however, his worth is decreasing in the public sector. College kids don't send him money so readily as before; the press is not so easily manipulated to praise his view; and, most importantly, there are even one or two consumers who are beginning to wonder about the wisdom of a man who, in the name of progress, would give the government of Wayne Hays, William Simon and Hubert Humphrey greater control over private industry.

This erosion of public confidence in Nader did not set in suddenly. It started, perhaps, when the man of the people lobbied successfully for such things as automobile seatbelt buzzers. In the old days they would have guillotined a man for less. Nader was spared but cautioned: "Ralph, you can't help humanity by driving it crazy." Nader responded by lobbying for buzzers on the ignition switch as well.

And this is what he has become, to a degree: arrogant. Once when he presented a $34.12 ticket to Allegheny Airlines for a flight, he was apologetically refused a seat. The airline said it had overbooked the flight, which was a hedge against those ticketholders who traditionally do not show at departure time.

The airline said, correctly, that if the overbooking procedure was not followed the fare costs would eventually go up. To hell with higher prices, said Nader, who earns $250,000 a year himself, and besides has most of his fares paid by others. And he has sued. This is consumer protection?

There are those who say Ralph Nader has become not so much arrogant as touchy. And perhaps this is kinder as well as more accurate. It was not arrogance, after all, that led him to withdraw his name this year from the Massachusetts presidential primary, and it was certainly a matter of remarkable sensitivity when he gave his reasons: "Arbitrary and capricious," he said of the state's decision to include his name on the ballot, then he followed by accusing Massachusetts officials of conspiring to turn him into a "partisan politician." How awful.

Indeed, for a man who can dish it out, Nader is uncommonly delicate when it comes to affronts against him, real or imagined. He brooks no criticism from the unwashed. Currently he is suing a writer named Ralph de Toledano for $1,005,000 worth of libel. De Toledano's offense? He dared to write that Nader used "falsified and distorted evidence to make his case against the automobile." Every Nader foe east of Detroit has said the same thing, but Big N is making certain De Toledano doesn't say it again, at least for awhile. There is nothing like a civil suit to dampen the first amendment. It narrows the enthusiasm greatly when one sees he may go broke for his opinions.

And yet Nader believes in nothing so much as opinions, his own: nuclear power must be stopped; safe automobiles must be manufactured, however financially impractical; the nation needs yet another bureaucracy acting for consumers.

Lately Big N has even been hinting of economic revolution; and though the does quite well himself in the present system — in 1974 he raised $1.4 million from college students who checked off portions of their school fees to him — he nonetheless is pushing for government of the John Kenneth Galbraith kind of socialism.

For many, Big N's ideas still have merit, even excitement. But what is worrisome is that they now smack, as does he, of zealotry. Big N was born without a neutral gear, he would either be the man who saves us with foresight or destroys us through blindness. As time passes that choice seems less and less appropriate. Undoubtedly, Ralph Nader is still a wonder. He is offensive, though when he tries to walk on water.

Where to get canning lids

Last year there was a terrible shortage of canning lids.

Recently I read a newspaper article to the effect that there are enough lids to meet the demand this year but I couldn't find any at the store where I have bought them in the past.

Can you tell me where to find some? — J.S., Upland.

We can, although they are still not plentiful.

Stater Bros Market in Claremont had a case of the regular size lids when we called.

Alpha Beta at 2109 S. Garey Ave., Pomona, had some but only in one size.

We struck gold at Gold Strike Market, 412 N. Park Ave., Pomona. John Norr, grocery manager, said he had a "fair supply, not enough to set the world on fire." His "fair supply" proved to be six cases. He had both regular and wide mouth lids.

Upland Feed and Fuel Co., in your home town, had none but was going to try to get some.

On June 16 I went to the emergency room of a hospital in the valley area.

My husband accompanied me. We were asked to have a seat. There were two people ahead of us.

We had entered the emergency room at 6 p.m. At 7:10 p.m. I went to the desk and asked for my insurance form back as I was too sick to wait any longer. I had had a headache four days but it developed into a migraine on the day I went to the hospital.

The receptionist told me to wait as I was the next one to be called to see the doctor. Two more people were called in. One had obvious burn injuries.

I was called and put in a cubicle. My blood pressure and temperature were taken and then the nurse left (there was a screaming child).

After I waited 35 more minutes, nauseated, my head splitting, I walked out.

I went to another facility and received immediate care.

The hospital has billed me for $22. I don't think I should have to pay this although the business manager says I must. — J.S., Chino.

The hospital administrator investigated your complaint at our request.

He upheld the business manager, who said you requested treatment in the emergency department on your own volition, stating you had no family physician.

Acknowledging that you did wait because of other patients being treated, he said the waiting period in the emergency department is very unpredictable because of the nature of services rendered.

The bill for $22 was listed as a "basic charge." As a courtesy to you, the hospital has billed your insurance carrier but will expect payment from you if your benefits don't cover the service given.

You are, according to the federal Consumer Information Center, because staring at the center line can have a hypnotic effect and result in an accident. It is better to move your eyes slightly to scan the highway.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You tend to expect more today than conditions warrant. Building unrealistic hopes is foolish. View things with a jaundiced eye.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't rely solely on Lady Luck and your good looks to get you by today. You'll have to work for any rewards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't let hunches or intuition take precedence over logic today. If it doesn't compute in your mind, chances are it won't work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Normally you can't be mistaken where bargains are concerned. Today, you may be taken in by the glitter and overlook the value.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Friends are prone to tell you what you'd like to hear today rather than give you a frank opinion. Bear this in mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Stick to your sensible health habits today. The temptation to overindulge will be strong. You'll stray without rigid self-discipline.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It could prove costly on a risky financial expenditure to take the word of someone who tends to exaggerate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Look for ways to trim the family budget today. Remember, it's not made of rubber and has limits to its elasticity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're liable to make some lavish promises today in order to get others to do things. Remember, if they produce you'll have to pay.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a strong possibility you won't make the best of your opportunities today, especially if they happen to be material ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Important matters must be guided by your own hand today. Otherwise, the results won't be what you desire.

Ann Landers

A look at that 'other man'

Dear Ann Landers: You recently had a column describing "The Other Woman." Why is it no one has ever described "The Other Man"? He is everywhere. Places you'd never suspect. I'd like to try my hand at it, since I know him well. My wife knows him even better.

The other man is never seen in the morning, unshaven, with hair disheveled, in a ratty bathrobe, groping for his glasses. He appears in the morning (at work) or in the evening at a favorite rendezvous, looking perfectly groomed and very appealing.

The other man is not puttering around the house in torn trousers and an old shirt, trying to fix the plumbing or a garage door or a leak in the roof. No hint of perspiration from mowing the lawn or washing the car. He smells of cologne, toothpaste and aftershave.

The over man is always in a good mood. When he is with you, he is out for a good time. He leaves his worries at home.

The other man invariably has a wife who has back trouble, is emotionally disturbed, frigid, and is a terrible nag. She doesn't understand him and talks of nothing but bills, unmanageable kids, bothersome relatives and things that are depressing. But he can't leave her to marry you — for awhile — because of financial circumstances, the children, his aging mother, his religion or his boss. His list of excuses is endless.

The other man doesn't care that he has caused his wife untold hours of anguish, that she has become a guilt-ridden nervous wreck, confused and unsure of herself. He doesn't give a thought to the fact that his children have heard rumors, or sense something is terribly wrong in the family. He is having a great big round ball — concerned only with himself, his pleasure and his ego, in spite of what he has led his playmate to believe. Do you know him? Look again. — Watching It All From Up Close

Dear Watching: Thank you for an insightful description. It's bound to hit a lot of people where they live — or at least visit.

Dear Ann Landers: The reader who signed himself "Tokyo" was wrong and you were right. He said the letter about the Japanese surgeon who sewed sheep hymens in deflowered virgins was a phony. The operation was, according to the original writer, called "maku saisel."

The Doubting Thomas pointed out to you (with a great deal of personal satisfaction) that there is no letter "l" in the Japanese alphabet. He said that was the tip-off.

I was born and raised in Japan and can vouch for the fact that the surgery described is not uncommon in that country. It is called "amku seisei," which means membrane regeneration. Obviously, someone made a typographical error. It should have been an "i" instead of an "1." So don't let the so-and-so grind you down, honey. — Nagasaki Nick

Dear Nick: I appreciate the vote of confidence, as well as the research. You are right. It was indeed a typo, as several of my Japanese friends pointed out. (This column appears in the Asahi Evening News, an English-language paper in Tokyo.) Thanks for writing.

Joe Firman

After effects of affluency

A child of the Depression am I, one of millions of now portly and prosperous men and women who lived through "the Big One." Who compulsively eat everything on our plate, save string and paper bags, eye $49.99 bargains with deep suspicion, and talk wistfully of when bread was a dime a loaf.

My generation was raised to "make do or do without," and while my early years were not spent in grinding poverty, as the saying goes, still I wore my brother's hand-me-down suits, my soles had holes, and Mother cut my hair. My brothers and I scoured alleys and vacant lots for empty bottles that could be redeemed at 2¢ each and perhaps add up to a Saturday afternoon movie (25¢).

In those days of my youth, the guy with a job was a hero, lucky stiff. The high school boy who pumped gas at the Shell station or hustled vegetables at Schultz' grocery store after school was admired and envied more than the captain of the football team. Delivery boy jobs were eagerly sought; newspaper routes were at a premium. You'd wash a car, mow a lawn, shovel snow from a driveway for 25¢ — and be grateful.

Times, it seems, have changed. The younger generation has grown up without that rigorous discipline we endured, and they accept all the luxuries of our fat-cat society without effort or commitment. And, of course, it's our fault, not theirs.

Our generation had suffered, and we didn't want our kids to have the same hangups. So we lavished on them the material goodies of a world they never made — motorcycles, surfboards, guitars, tickets to rock concerts, tuition for college.

After the Depression (it's always capitalized) with its stock market crash, Wall Street suicides, unemployment, bread lines, apple stands, CCC, Hoover, and "Prosperity is just around the corner," America took the only sensible way out — by going to war. This brought practically instant prosperity (not capitalized) as well as Roosevelt, ration stamps, D Day, the St. Louis Browns' first pennant of the millennium and Gen. George Patton (played by George Scott). We used to say, "It's a helluva war, but it's better than no war at all!"

Now America is a fat cat again. There is prosperity, inflation, unemployment, crime in the streets, and all the other attributes of an affluent society. The new generation will spoil and coddle its sprouts as we did ours. Parents today will give the kid a car when he reaches 16, instead of sharing the family car. Rather than get a summer job, the youngster will go to Europe. His $25-a-week allowance will keep him in hamburgers and fries and Elton John records. Only the truly harsh disciplinarian will make his child use his allowance for bail when he's picked up for smoking pot. "Underprivileged" means the boy has black-and-white TV instead of a color set.

By the year 2000, I expect the weekly allowance of the average middle class, suburban American boy and girl will be $1,000, and they'll be buying tape decks for their own airplanes. "Underprivleged" will mean not having their own theater.

O tempora! O mores!

Dr. Lamb

Test shows nervous stomach

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on a nervous stomach. I have a bitter taste almost every morning when I first get up.

I went for a gall bladder X ray and my doctor gave me eight dye tablets to take 14 hours before the X ray. Around 4:30 the next morning my head started spinning and I almost passed out. Then I had diarrhea. I asked the nurse about this and she said the dye pills sometimes did this.

My gall bladder had swollen to the size of a hen's egg. Then I was given an egg yolk mix to drink, waited 40 minutes and had two more X rays. My gall bladder had returned to normal.

The doctor said my gall bladder was OK but I had a nervous stomach. Could this be true? Is it serious? When I was X-rayed could they tell if I had ulcers or a tumor too?

DEAR READER — Your experience with the gall bladder test was not too unusual. The nurse was right — the pills do act as a laxative to some people.

Your gall bladder did not swell up in an abnormal fashion. The gall bladder is designed to collect bile formed by the liver. When it fills it swells normally. The pills you took contain a dye that is excreted by the liver in the bile. The dye shows up on X rays and in this way the gall bladder, full of dye stained bile, can be seen. Your description is a normally filled gall bladder.

If your gall bladder had contained stones they would have been outlined in the dye-stained bile. Then the drink you had contained fat. Fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract, expelling the stored bile. The X rays showed that your gall bladder responded normally and emptied when you drank or ate fat. The very reason why you are not supposed to eat anything that would contain any fat after you have taken the dye pills and before you have your first X ray is because fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-9, Gall Stones and Gall Bladder Disease. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019.

"Nervous stomach" covers a lot of territory. It is true that nervous tension can cause indigestion symptoms or acid indigestion. The nervous tension causes the stomach to form excess amounts of acid digestive juice. This condition can lead to ulcers. The taste in your mouth suggests through that the stomach contents leaked backward into the lower esophagus while you were lying down. Try not eating anything for at least three hours before you go to bed, take some antacid also, and see if that helps.

An X ray of the gall bladder alone will not outline the stomach to tell you if there is disease in the stomach or if you have a hernia through the diaphragm. However, if your doctor had you drink a milk shake thickenss drink after your gall bladder X rays he may have been X-raying your stomach at that time. Ask him what he did and how he knows that you do not have a hernia through the diaphragm or a peptic ulcer. Look at the bill and if it does not include a bill for X rays of the stomach — perhaps labled as examination of the upper gastrointestinal system (often noted Upper G.I.) your stomach has not been examined.

Oswald: "How about some examples of strategic bidding?"

Jim: "I have a good example right here. The game was team-of-four with international match-point scoring. South was pretty sure that he could wrap up seven hearts. His problem was to get to play hearts when his not vulnerable opponents held the spade suit."

Oswald: "His bid of just five hearts was a calculated risk. He would have looked mighty silly if East-West had let him play there."

Jim: "Strangely enough, five hearts making seven would have been a score of 710. At the other table North and South slam-banged into seven hearts and East-West took the save at seven spades. The defense collected just four tricks to score a mere 700."

Oswald: "I don't like to take away credit from South's virtuouso bidding performance, but I feel that if East had been really alert he would still have bid seven spades rather than risk letting his opponents score their vulnerable grand slam."

Jim: "I agree but you can't quarrel with success."

Black, blond and red wigs

Envision three actors on a stage, each wearing a different colored wig, one straight, one curly blonde and one tousled red. Which is the villain? The hero? The comic servant? Correct, the stereotypes go all the way back to the ancient Greek theatre. Black was villainous, blond heroic, and red humorous. It's utterly unreal. There's no basis at all for tying together the colors with the characters. But when I asked you to identify the roles by the wigs, you guessed rightly, did you not?

Q. "About 20 years ago, the Hollywood Women's Press Club gave some sort of honorary title to Ronald Reagan. What was it?"

A. "World's most sincere actor."

LOVE AND WAR

Among the pirates on the sea of matrimony, the women outnumber the men considerably. Or so our Love and War man has reported. By pirates, he refers to those citizens who break up other people's marriages. Most men tend to keep a hands-off attitude towards seemingly happy marriages. But most women, if they pirate at all, are inclined to regard a seemingly happy marriage as a challenge. When queried in the matter, they say that a marriage that can be broken up isn't worth saving.

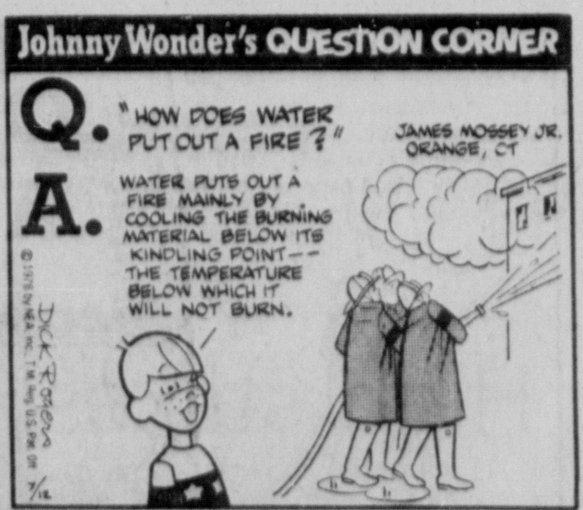
JOHNNY WONDER



Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "HOW DOES WATER PUT OUT A FIRE?"
JAMES MOSSEY JR. ORANGE, CT
A. WATER PUTS OUT A FIRE MAINLY BY COOLING THE BURNING MATERIAL BELOW ITS KINDLING POINT—THE TEMPERATURE BELOW WHICH IT WILL NOT BURN.
DICK ROGERS
7/12

Before we can understand how water puts a fire out we have to remember that before wood and other fuels will burn they must be heated to their kindling points, the temperatures at which the fuel can easily combine with oxygen. (There must also be plenty of oxygen, which usually comes from the air.)

When a fireman squirts water on a burning wall he is putting the fire out in two ways.

The heat of the fire turns the water to steam. The expanding steam smothers the fire by shutting out the air needed by the blaze, and the fire dies down.

At the same time, the water cools the burning material. Cooling is the main thing that puts the fire out. The wood cannot burn, even with air around it, unless it is hot enough.

Fire extinguishers, such as those in public buildings, usually contain chemicals that form a gas that will not burn.

The gas spreads over the burning material, shuts out the air, and smothers the fire.

In 1804, American statesman Alexander Hamilton died from a wound inflicted in a pistol duel with Vice President Aaron Burr.

In 1808, Joseph Bonaparte entered Madrid as King of Spain.

In 1817, the American naturalist and writer, Henry David Thoreau, was born in Concord, Massachusetts.
